U.S. Combat Role Ends May 1

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U. S. troops will cease to play a major combat role in Vietnam after May 1, but the Pentagon said today that more than 100,000 combat troops will remain there in a security role.

A Pentagon spokesman, Jerry W. Friedheim, mentioned the figure after Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said in Bangkok, Thailand, today that by May 1 "a major portion of our combat forces that have a combat responsibility or a combat assignment within the country will have been withdrawn."

Friedheim said that the present force level of 385,000 U.S. troops in Vietnam would be cut to about 285,000 as of May 1, and that more than 100,000 of these will be combat troops.

Other U.S. officials said the role of the remaining combat troops will be to supply the South Vietnamese with air and artillery support, logistics and security. They said the troops might be sent out on patrol as part of their security role.

As withdrawals continue after May 1, Friedheim said, combat troops will still constitute 40 to 50 per cent of the force

U.S. officials say that even when their major combat responsibility is over, American troops will still sometimes be involved in shooting and being shot at. For example, the officials said a patrol of Americans might be sent out to seek Communist troops as part of their security role.

Defense secretary Melvin R. Laird mentioned the May 1 goal for the first time publicly today during an informal news conference on arrival at Bangkok, Thailand on the second leg of a round-the-world trip. He goes on to Saigon and top-level conferences on Friday.

Laigd said most U.S. troops "with combat responsibility" will be withdrawn by May 1.

Those that remain, Washington sources said, will be used as advisers with South Vietnamese units or will be kept in a reserve status to cope with any emergency situations posing a threat to the security of other American personnel. In Paris on Tuesday, Laird mentioned a mid-summer goal of ending U.S. combat responsibilities. This and his reference today to May 1 represented the first move by the administration toward a scheduled withdrawal timetable.

RECENT RULING

Communes Face New Attacks

By MARY LEYDECKER

Marin's hippie communes may face renewed attacks by city officials in the wake of a recent ruling by a federal judge in San Francisco who found a Palo Alto anti-commune ordinance legal.

The ordinance of the Peninsula city is similar to one passed by Larkspur and considered by other Marin cities as well as the county board of supervisors.

Larkspur's ordinance has also been under attack in the courts, and because of the decision last month in the Palo Alto case, Judge Albert C. Wollenberg of the federal district court, a ruling in the local case may be expected soon.

Larkspur City Atty. Robert W. Elliott said yesterday he would soon file a final brief in that city's case in Marin Superior Court, where "The One World Family of the Messiah's World Crusade" is testing the Larkspur ordinance.

At stake is whether or not communal groups calling themselves families can live together in residential areas zoned for single-family homes.

After the advent of such communal living, Larkspur sought to get rid of groups by defining a family "as an individual or two or more persons related by blood, marriage or legal adoption, or a group not exceeding five persons, who need not be related . . . living together.

The Palo Alto ordinance set the limit for unrelated persons at four.

Schultz Wins On Design

By WAT TAKESHITA

Marin County should develop major resort centers to draw overnight tourist trade and small conferences instead of remaining as a way-stop for daytime tourists.

This is a key recommendation made by Economics Research Associates (ERA) of Los Angeles in a visitor enterprise report which will be presented tonight to the City-County Planning Council.

The council, which asked for the visitor study, will meet at 8 p.m. in the faculty lounge at Redwood High School.

The report, intended as a guide to boosting tourism in Marin, points out that the county gets 20 to 25 per cent of the daytime tourist trade in the entire Bay Area, but only 1 to 3 per cent of them are overnighters. Because they stay only a few hours, their quick movements choke the highways, and yet Marin has little to show in revnue. Almost 90 per cent of them spend less than $10 per visit.

The solution, said the Los Angeles firm, is to appeal to overnighters whose expenditures are higher and who create less traffic congestion.

Economic Research Associates completed the study at a cost of $12,500. The 110-page report said Marin could support 3,000 resort hotel rooms and 1,000 vacation trailer spaces and recommended that the county immediately master plan 1,100 acres in West Marin (the east shore of Tomales Bay to as far south as Olema) and 100 acres along San Rafael and Richardson bays for resort use.

The report added the master plan should be specific enough to insure proper balance of such facilities as resort hotels, restaurants, marinas, golf courses, commercial, entertainment and related facilities.

This should be accompanied, the study said, by strong zoning and architectural controls to preserve the environment.

Resort hotels are especially attractive because they draw weekenders and vacationers who are at present not attracted to Marin and because they do not increase the need for services such as schools and fire protection.

The important thing, said ERA, is to create a recreational attraction big enough to draw and keep overnighters — facilities like golf

Envoy Grabbed In Red Protest

MOSCOW (UPI)—U.S. Embassy sources said today three Russians grabbed an American diplomat by his lapels outside a theater Wednesday night and asked him "how would you like being treated the way Zionist thugs treat our diplomats in America?"

It was the first report of physical reprisals in the new U.S.-Soviet diplomatic war of nerves, kicked off Tuesday when the Soviets announced they could not guarantee the safety of Americans in Russia in view of "Zionist" attacks on Soviets in America.

For the first time in more than four years Soviet authorities Wednesday evening permitted a "spontaneous demonstration" in front of the Embassy. About 20 young persons stood before the gate and chanted slogans for 15 minutes.

More delegations of Soviet citizens entered the U.S. Embassy peaceably to deliver letters of protest against the harassment of Soviet officials and performers in the United States.

The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said tonight "somebody in Washington" was behind the anti-Soviet demonstrations.

The newspapers said the campaign was partly intended to distract American attention from the Vietnam War, inflation and unemployment.

Israel also has a hand in the incidents, Izvestia said.

The sources said the Russians Wednesday night approached the diplomat and his wife outside the Taganka Theater, Moscow's showplace for avant garde plays, and grasped his lapels.

"They just shook his lapels a bit and asked him how he would like being treated the way Zionist thugs treat our diplomats in America," the sources said. The incident ended in a few minutes when the diplomat and his wife entered their car, they said.

The embassy circulated a background guidance sheet to the American community on the situation today, stating, "The U.S. government... expects the Soviet government to take necessary steps to guarantee... (safety) for American officials and private citizens and organizations in the Soviet Union."

It confirmed that "threatening phone calls have been made to American officials in Moscow," and said that U.S. officials were doing all they could to protect Soviet citizens in the United States.

"It would be unrealistic, the embassy memo said, "to expect

Major Tourist Centers Urged

By LARRY MOWELL

By the slimmest of margins, the Larkspur City Council last night approved design of a disputed creekside apartment building planned by developer Neils J. Schultz Jr. (Other stories, page 3.)

Overturning a planning Commission ruling that the building would be too massive for the site, the council voted 3-2 in favor of the structure, Mayor Benton A. Sifford Jr. and Alfred Malvino against.

Concerned, however, that the decision might set a precedent for longer and longer buildings, the council decided to amend the zoning ordinance to limit building lengths. A workshop session was set for next Wednesday at 8 p.m. to discuss limits.

Councilmen Neil Brixon and William G. Fleckles said the building was just barely tolerable.

"I believe there is a limit as to where we can go," Brixon said, "I feel this has reached that limit." Nevertheless, he moved approval of architectural supervision.

"I have to second it although I think it is barely compatible," Fleckles said.

Schultz plans a 20-unit, three-story apartment building at 1005 to 1025 South Eliseo Drive. The building will stretch 141 feet

Talks On Dim Side; Third Year

PARIS (UPI)—The Vietnam peace talks entered their third year today with Allied negotiators complaining that serious negotiations had yet to begin and a peaceful settlement of the war was not in sight.

U.S. Ambassador David K.E. Bruce told the Hanoi and Viet Cong delegates their peace demands were "incompatible with any real kind of negotiations," and urged them to reconsider their approach to the two-year-old talks.

Bruce's South Vietnamese colleague, Ambassador Phan Dang Lam, opened today's 98th session with the comment: "The Paris meetings are now entering their third year without having yet produced any concrete result which would permit us to foresee that peace will soon come."

The Hanoi delegation made public today names of three American pilots it said were killed when their planes either were shot down or crashed in North Vietnam.

Delegation spokesman Nguyen Thanh Le disclosed the names which he said had already been given to a U.S. Senator and an antiwar group in New York City.

He said he was making the disclosure only because the Nixon administration had pointed to the absence of two of the names on Hanoi's official prisoner list as evidence that the list was incomplete.

The Hanoi spokesman identified the three dead airmen as Donald Maurice Singer, Arthur Stewart Mearns and Samuel Fantle III.

Their hometowns were not available and no details of the dates or places of their deaths were given.

Synthetic Hormone Called Major Feat

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — University of California researchers have announced the synthesis of the human growth hormone —a development they said could provide a major research tool in the treatment of cancer, heart disease, diabetes and problems associated with growth.

The hormone, secreted by the pituitary gland controls body growth, size and shape, regulates production of mothers' milk and has been used successfully in the treatment of a form of dwarfism which afflicts thousands of youngsters each year in the United States.

Dr. C. H. Li, 57, who headed the research team which reproduced the hormone in the UC hormone Research Laboratory, estimated it would take 5 to 10 years for commercial drug manufacturers to provide large quantities of the synthetic human growth hormone (HGH).

Li, director of the UC Hormone Research Laboratory, said a long range goal of his research was possible development of a modified hormone which would inhibit the growth of breast and other cancers.

He said several apparent attributes of HGH would be studied when sufficient quantities of the hormone are available. These include repairing bone fractures, promoting healing, lowering blood cholesterol levels, enhancing resistance to infection, and improving the actions of male and female sex hormones.

Dr. Philip R. Lee, chancellor of UC hailed the test tube duplication of the complex

Flight To Jerusalem To Save Peace Talk

By U. P. International

U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring interrupted the Middle East peace talks today to fly to Jerusalem where Israeli military sources accused Egypt of another violation of the cease-fire and said that Egypt may try to cross the Suez Canal this year with Russian help.

Diplomatic sources at the United Nations in New York said Jarring was making the trip to Israel with Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah to satisfy demands he meet with such Israeli leaders as Premier Golda Meir and Foreign Minister Abba Eban before "meakningful" peace talks can be held.

The sources said Jarring would leave tonight despite Arab opposition to the trip and Egyptian charges it was a "delaying tactic and a stalling game." A new protest came today from the Palestinian guerrillas who said in Amman that Jarring's alleged delaying tactics were aimed at undermining Arab unity.

The United States and other Western delegations supported the Jarring trip as a means of preventing collapse of the newly resumed talks.

An Israeli military spokesman in Jerusalem said two of Egypt's Soviet-built Sukhoi 7 jets flew over Israeli positions along the Suez Canal Wednesday in another violation of the truce and that a formal protest had been lodged with the United Nations.

It was the first time Israel had accused Egypt of violating the cease-fire since Egyptian aircraft made three overflights of Israeli positions along the canal last Nov. 22 and 23. It was Israeli charges of Egyptian truce violations that led Israel to pull out of the talks last August.

In Tel Aviv, an authoritative military source said Israel could not rule out the possibility that the Egyptians with Soviet backing would attempt an amphibious crossing of the Suez Canal this year. The source said such an attack would be foolhardy for the Egyptians but Israel must consider the possibility.

The sources said Soviet amphibious equipment, aircraft, tanks, heavy guns and ground-to-ground rockets were still arriving in Egypt. He said the rocketswere of the Luna type, known in the West as the

McGovern Readying For Second Presidential Try

WASHINGTON (API) —Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota resigned today as chairman of the Democratic Party Reform Commission as a first step toward becoming an active candidate for President.

McGovern told newsmen that it was "a fairly accurate" assumption that he would announce for the Democratic presidential nomination later this month. He also was a candidate for the nomination in 1968, entering the race after the assassination of Sen. Robert D. Kennedy, D-N.Y.

The reform commission that he headed —and which generally was referred to as the McGovern Commission —was one of two created by the Democrats as a result of the tumult at the 1968 national convention.

Nearly all of the McGovern Commission's work so far has involved writing guidelines for selection of delegates to future conventions.

Explaining his decision to resign the chairmanship, McGovern said his schedule was becoming too heavy and that he

Jury Continues To Eye Valentine's Day Cases

I-J Special Report

FAIRFIELD — A Solano Superior Court jury continued today laboriously considering the cases of seven men arrested during last Valentine's Day's demonstration against the San Rafael Independent-Journal.

The seven were indicted by the Marin County Grand Jury on a total of 36 charges arising from the violence of Feb. 14. After the defense was granted a change of venue, the number of charges was trimmed to 34 by Judge William E. Jensen, who presided over the trial since it began Oct. 20.

The rally was called by Bay Area labor organizations in sympathy with San Francisco International Typographical Union Local 21, which went on strike against the I-J one year ago today.

Each of the seven defendants faces at least one felony charge and several misdemeanor counts.

The defendants are: John J. DeMartini, 47, of Mill Valley, vice president of Local 21, and the only striking I-J employee on trial; Charles P. Vance, 57, of South San Francisco; James S. Brooke, 36, of Guerneville; Joe Reese, 32, of Hayward; Nimmes H. Shelton, 41, San Francisco; Alvis D. Bailey, 43, San Francisco, and Terry W. Lansing, 20, of Oakland.

All are members of Local 21 except Bailey, a Teamsters Union member, and Lansing, a student.

The jury of 10 women and two men received the case shortly before noon yesterday, and soon called on Judge Jensen for help. Jurors expressed confusion as to which defendants faced which counts. Jensen gave them a sheaf of verdict forms listing the defendants and charges separately.

The jury was sequestered beginning Tuesday night in a Fairfield motel, but Judge Jensen directed it to deliberate in the courtroom.

The judge suggested that jurors consider one defendant's case at a time deliberating and voting on each

Laird, Generals Plan Talks As Cambodian Defense Deteriorates

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. sources said today in Saigon and Phnom Penh that the U.S. air campaign against the Ho Chi Minh Trail has experienced only limited success and that American military planes may have to fly fuel into Phnom Penh to meet the threat of a Communist Tet offensive.

The Cambodian situation was becoming so serious that the second ranking U.S. commander in Vietnam, Gen. Fredrick C. Weyand, flew to Phnom Penh for talks with Premier Lon Nol and U.S. Ambassador Emory Swank, and to have a first hand look at the deteriorating situation.

The Weyand-Lon Nol meeting preceded the weekend trip to Saigon of U.S. Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird and Pacific commander Adm. John S. McCain to discuss the same subject.

Military sources in Saigon in reporting limited success of the costly non-stop three month aerial offensive against Communist supply routes said a typical result of a full day's bombings by 30 B52s and several hundred fighter-bombers might damage or destroy less than 20 trucks with 2,500 tons of bombs. The Communists have used as many as 5,000 trucks on the trail.

With U.S. commanders warning of the possibility of a large scale Tet offensive in Cambodia the end of this month UPI correspondent Kate Webb reported from Phnom Penh that diplomatic sources were discussing the possibility of an airlift.

The Communists have cut Route 4 leading from Phnom Penh to the southern port of Kompong Som, blocking Phnom Penh's fuel supplies, They also have ambushed a number of convoys moving up the Mekong River from South Vietnam with oil and gasoline supplies and crews were reported balking at making the hazardous trip.

A government operation to reopen Highway 4 was in its second week, but there have been heavy Cambodian losses and no progress. And in their latest river ambush the Communists blew up a navy utility craft loaded with about 100 55-gallon drums of fuel.

Military gas supplies have not been rationed but a Cambodian spokesman said the air force did not know where the next fuel was coming from for its small but vital fleet of prop-driven T28 bombers, Russian-built Mig jets and old French training planes.

Saigon military sources said in making their pessimistic assessment of the results of U.S. bombing attacks they were taking into account one massive hit made by air force jets in December when they reported more than 7,000 secondary explosions on the Ho Chi Minh trail in Laos.

Halt Of Legal Opium Imports Asked By Panel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government officials once considered a $5 million yearly outlay to buy the entire Turkish opium crop, but rejected the idea for fear it would stimulate opium production in other countries, according to the House Crime Committee.

Turkish opium is the source of an estimated 80 per cent of illicit heroin distribution in the United States. Turkey is one of 12 nations where opium may be grown legally.

The United States imports nearly 300,000 pounds of opium each year to make morphine and other pain-killing derivatives. The committee recommended, however, that all legal opium imports be stopped because synthetic painkillers have been developed that could take the place of opium derivatives.

The committee also recommended Turkish farmers be given subsidies to turn to other crops and that satellites monitor opium growing areas.

Concerning the proposed purchasing of the opium crop, the committee said the plan put forth by "responsible" government officials was rejected "after substantial consultation" with the State Department, the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Drug Control, and the United Nations.

The committee agreed with the final decision that such purchases would "stimulate rather than stifle world opium production.

"If the world community thought that our government was in the opium purchasing business, then we can foresee nonproducing nations (with the proper soil and climatic conditions) going into opium cultivating business," the committee said.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

GI Drug Deaths

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. officials disclosed today that an improved reporting and diagnostic systems shows the number of drug deaths among American GIs in Vietnam is up to 70 per cent higher than previously thought.

A total of 93 American servicemen died from drugs in the first 11 months of 1970 according to figures supplied by military spokesmen who said actual figures for drug deaths could even be higher.

The total included both deaths whose cause was determined by autopsy and a larger number attributed to narcotics and drugs after a clinical diagnosis system took effect in August.

Capitol Safe

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Quit worrying about the U.S. Capitol falling down. A new engineering survey shows that its sandstone west front —usually referred to as crumbling —is in poor shape and needs big repairs but it isn't about to collapse.

The survey, by the New York engineering-architect firm Praeger Kavanagh Waterbury, temporarily at least stymies plans of congressional leaders to bypass the restoration job by replacing the wall with a marble one up to 88 feet further west.

Congress had appropriated funds to start planning the 4 1-2 acre extension but in a compromise settlement with the plan's opponents agreed that the money could not be spent until an alternative proposal to restore the wall as it stands had been proved unworkable by an independent engineering survey.

New DDT Ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A new government crackdown on DDT is expected within a few weeks. But it probably will fall short of the complete, across-the-board ban demanded by environmentalists, government sources predicted today.

The new action, sources said, is expected to be a cancellation of federal registrations of DDT for a number of specific uses on crops —including cotton, citrus fruits and a number of vegetables.

The action, which sources said is due during January — possibly by mid-month —will come from the new Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). It will be the third major step since the White House announced in November, 1969, its intention to cancel all "nonessential" uses of DDT by Dec. 31, 1970.

Death Toll

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. Command said today 33 Americans were killed in the Indochina war last week, eight fewer than the previous week. Another 305 GIs were wounded.

It brought to 44,441 the total Americans killed in the war since Jan. 1, 1967 and 293,529 wounded.

The wounded total last week was the highest since two weeks before when 377 Americans were reported wounded.

Besides the 33 killed in combat, the U.S. Command reported 32 GIs dead from illnesses, accidents and other noncombat causes last week, raising the total of nonbattle deaths in the war to 9,064.

Signs Aid Bill

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—President Nixon has signed into law a bill authorizing a $550 million aid program for Asian and Middle East nations, including language banning the use of U.S. troops in Cambodia.

The biggest share of the military and economic aid — $255 million — will go to Cambodia.

Also included are $150 million for South Korea, $30 million for Jordan, $13 million for Indonesia, $5 million for Lebanon, $65 million for South Vietnam and $17 million to compensate for shortages in previous years' programs.

Defends Duty

NEW YORK (UPI)—Lt. William L. Calley Jr., who is accused of murdering 102 Vietnamese civilians, says he was doing his duty in the alleged massacre at My Lai in 1968. He calls the Army a Frankenstein monster.

Calley is scheduled to testify in his own defense in the post-holiday session of his court-martial that begins next week at Ft. Benning, Ga. His opinion of his actions in the My Lai sweep by American infantry is in an interview in the February issue of Esquire, published today.

The six-officer jury in his military trial is not sequestered but has been instructed not to read about the case nor hear it discussed.

Pot Smoking Cadets Booted

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UPI)—Three cadets have been dropped from the U.S. Military Academy for smoking marijuana, West Point officials confirmed today.

An academy spokesman would not say when the dismissals occurred, nor would he divulge the names or classes of those involved. Sources said, however, the dismissals occurred just prior to Christmas leave.

The dismissals brought to six the number of cadets separated from the Academy since 1968 because of involvement with marijuana. Academy records showed two cadets resigned during the 1969-70 year and one in 1968-69.

Shipyard Strike

STOCKHOLM (UPI)—Three thousand shipyard workers went on strike two days ago in the Polish seaport of Gdansk, where the bloody December riots began, the Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet reported today.

Aftonbladet said in a front page story that the shipyard workers struck in protest against the arrest before Christmas of 200 workers who participated in the December riots.

The new strike action began Tuesday, Aftonbladet said in the report datelined Gdansk and signed by a staff correspondent Thomas Walden.

The newspaper said the 3,000 striking workers went to the shipyards both Tuesday and Wednesday but refused to work.

Here's One Man Who Believes In Women's Lib

DENVER (UPI)—Marguaret Peterson, 25, a night shift billing clerk for a local trucking firm, says she has only one regret about the way she handled a would-be attacker.

"I should have beat him to a pulp," Miss Peterson said.

The man grabbed her as she walked from a bus stop and told her: "Don't yell or I'll kill you."

Miss Peterson began screaming and tossed her attacker to the ground. When he started to run, she grabbed him and told him what she thought of him. "But you couldn't put what I said in the paper," she said.

The attacker, struggling to get away, told her, "I'm sorry, lady. I'll never do it again." He then slipped loose and ran.

Girl, 15, Bruised When Hit By Car

A 15-year-old San Anselmo girl was treated Tuesday at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael for cuts and bruises on her legs sustained when she was struck by a car while crossing Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in San Anselmo.

Police said Miriam L. Jacobs was walking in the crosswalk when she was struck at 8:20 a.m. by an auto driven by John Felix McGregor of 1675 Grand Avenue, San Rafael. McGregor told police he was blinded by the sun.

Weather Forces Bartering In Omaha

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Except for southern Florida and the Pacific Coast, cold arctic air covered the nation once again today. The economy was affected, and in parts of Omaha, Neb., it was frozen shut.

Residents on Omaha's Northwest Side had returned to the bartering system in the wake of this week's heavy snowstorm. With snow-clogged streets, heighbors had been forced to trading —a pack of cigarettes for a quart of milk, baby food for breakfast cereal. . .

It has been so cold in Arizona that citrus industry spokesmen say fruit crop losses there may run into several million dollars.

Near Franklin, Ind., a 69,000-volt transmission line snapped, leaving thousands of homes without electric power in a four-county area for varying periods Wednesday.

Four Lincoln, Neb., residents heading homeward after a vacation in Colorado said they helped 211 snowbound motorists along interstate 80 west of Lincoln during Monday's storm.

Manson Defense Drags On In Long Final Arguments

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Charles Manson's attorney told the Tate murder trial jury that it might be more interesting if he recited the Gettysburg Address, but that his job was the "drudgery" of going over the record.

Irving Kanarek was as good as his word. On the sixth day of his "final" arguments Wednesday he reached page 14,950 of the 20,000-page transcript, with no end in sight.

Even as Kanarek was speaking, Manson and his three female codefendants filed a formal motion to fire all their lawyers. Superior Court Judge Charles H. Older turned them down.

"To wax poetic," said Kanarek, "I am no Horatio at the bridge. But to paraphrase Lincoln, they won't remember what we say here, but they will remember what we do here."

Kanarek, who previously has evoked the names of Richard Nixon, George Wallace, Robert Welch, Mr. Magoo, and Charlie Chaplin, as well as the French revolution and the My Lai massacre, was expected to keep talking until Older orders him to halt.

Council Orders Signs Down

Larkspur City Council last night stood by an order for abatement of the last two billboards in the city after developer Niels J. Schultz Jr. refused to agree to take them down by March 1.

The council had ordered the abatement Dec. 2, but last night suggested the billboards, both near the Highway 101 Greenbrae interchange, might be allowed to remain until the end of February. Schultz, however, declined to agree to remove them by that date.

He held that he should be given six months to conform, as was Dr. Robert C. Ceniceros when the council ordered him to bring a fence within the city height limit.

Councilmen noted the billboards have been illegal since 1969.

Water Recedes

BANGKOK (UPI)—Flood waters in Thailand's four southernmost provinces receded today after a week of continuous rain but some lowlying areas still were under water.

Bon Air Span Repairs Could Equal Original Building Costs

Cost of repairing the Bon Air Bridge could equal what it cost to build the span in 1958, the Larkspur City Council learned last night. (Another story, page 1.)

Furthermore, the bridge might have tobe closed for up to 20 days while work is done on it, City Engineer Roy H. Hoffman told the council.

Hoffman said lowest of three bids for repairs to the foundations was $125,000. Adding $15,000 for contingencies and fees, he said, means a total of $140,000, the cost of construction 13 years ago.

Based on an estimate of $100,000 for the bridge repairs, the city had worked out an arrangement whereby the Army Corps of Engineers would pay half, the state 30 per cent, and city and county 10 per cent each. New discussion of cost sharing will be held next Wednesday, said City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst.

The bridge was weakened during Corps of Engineers dredging operations which exposed bridge piling, Bathurst said.

The Larkspur City Council also:

ABATEMENT — Delayed for a month abatement proceedings against Peter J. Hunt of 167 Via La Paz after presentation of evidence that Hunt is solving a drainage problem that dumps water into a neighbor's yard.

POLICE QUARTERS — Met with the city attorney in closed session for 15 minutes to discuss possible condemnation proceedings for new police headquarters. Under consideration is an office building immediately north of the main fire station on Magnolia Avenue.

PLANNING COUNCIL — Decided to send a planning commissioner to a City-County Planning Council meeting to judge the group, meanwhile tabling a two-year-old planning commission recommendation that Larkspur become a member.

ASSESSMENT DISTRICT — Heard from Bathurst that forming an assessment district for construction of a road in Greenbrae is stymied by refusal of the majority property owner, Marin Rod and Gun Club, to participate.

BUILDING CODE — Adopted a new uniform building code, along with slight raises in inspection fees.

NORTH RIDGE — Authorized Mayor Benton A. Sifford Jr. to discuss with Crote Madera and Mill Valley a plan for the cities to buy open space along the ridges which separate them.

MOSQUITO DISTRICT — Reappointed Gilbert Dubuc to a two-year term on the Marin Mosquito Abatement District board.

RAISE — Gave final approvalof a 7.5 per cent raise to Bathurst, increasing his salary to $20,000 per year.

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of Jame Lienkaemper from the parks and recreation commission and set next Wednesday to interview three persons who have filed for his seat: John Rocky, Carol Bindi and Guilio Boeri.

POLICE CARS — Authorized purchase through the state of two American Motors police cars.

CONFLICT OF INTEREST — Discussed problems resulting because City Atty. Robert W. Elliott also represents developer Niels J. Schultz Jr., but took no action.

BURGLARY REPORTS — Asked that printing of a week's burglary roundup in the Independent-Journal be discussed at the next meeting of the Council of Mayors and Councilmen. Councilman Alfred Malvino said, "I personally can see no benefits to printing such a list."

Bennett To Speak At Santa Rosa

William M. Bennett, new member of the State Board of Equalization, will speak before the annual Sonoma County Irate Taxpayers Committee at 8 p.m. Jan. 20 at the Santa Rosa Veteran's Memorial Building.

Committee president William Pisenti said the meeting will be open to all taxpayers.

Toll Plaza Plans To Be Discussed

Preliminary engineering plans for modernizing the Golden Gate Bridge toll plaza, at a cost of $3.3 million, will be considered by bridge district directors at 10 a.m. tomorrow in the toll plaza office.

The directors hired outside engineers in 1969 to begin work on the project, which will include reversing the one-way toll collection system to collect from northbound traffic. Southbound traffic will be routed around the west side of the administration building via a new roadway.

The finance-auditing committee will meet first at 9:30 a.m.

King Gets Honor As 'Folk Hero'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The District of Columbia school board has voted to suspend public school classes on Jan. 15, birthday of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Hillcrest Board Plans New Hospital

By BONNIE BARD

Hillcrest Hospital directors told city officials from Southern Sonoma last night that they plan to build a new hospital in East Petaluma next year.

The hospital board thus revealed competition with plans by Quantas Development Co. for a 200-bed hospital at the rear of McDowell School on Petaluma's east side.

Hillcrest administrator Joseph Horner and planners from the firm of Stone, Marraccini and Patterson of San Francisco said 250 beds would be needed by 1990 to meet a projected population of 85,000 in Southern Sonoma.

Representatives of Quantas and its associate firm, Young American Homes Inc., attended the meeting at Petaluma City Hall but made no comment. City officials from Petaluma, Rohnert Park and Cotati were at the session.

Horner said directors had chosen a location near Highway 101 to build a new hospital. He said the present 57-bed hospital would be retained for specialized care such as obstetrics or geriatrics.

The hospital's planners had advised against any large building program on that hillcrest site because of the hilly terrain and rock base that would make construction costly and difficult, the meeting was told.

The planners estimated the cost of a new 100-bed hospital at between $8 and $10 million. Horner said the hospital district would not be eligible for massive government aid and that the large share of construction costs would probably have to be financed by general obligation bonds approved by voters. The hospital district includes Petaluma, a small section of North Marin, Rohnert Park and Cotati.

Hillcrest board president Jack Garrison said that if Quantas's plan is superior to Hillcrest's and the rival facility could provide better medical facilities at less cost, the board would support it and make planning information available to them.

He said, however, that Hillcrest began its long-range plan studies last October, months before the Quantas plans became known.

Final approval for hospital plans lies with the Bay Area Comprehensive Health Facilities Planning Council.

Dr. William Heneks, president of the Sonoma County Comprehensive Health Planning Association, said his group's policy has been to support one large medical facility for Southern Sonoma, rather than several small facilities.

He said the association would officially review Hillcrest's plan next month. While he stopped short of assuring endorsement, Dr. Heneks said past applications for expansion funds have always received the association's support.

Any plan for a hospital in East Petaluma was soundly criticized by Rohnert Park representatives, who said they felt their city should be selected for the site.

Developer Paul Golis and Councilman Arthur R. Roberts questioned the planners population projections for Rohnert Park as being too low and said they should have a hospital of their own.

COMMUNE

the Palo Alto ordinance, Judge Wollenberg said that the commune members "are unquestionably sincere in seeking to devise and test new life styles . . ."

However, the judge found, such groups are not protected by the same longtime rights afforded to traditional families.

Several factors distinguish traditional families from "voluntary" ones, he wrote in his decision. "The traditional family is an institution reinforced by biological and legal ties which are difficult, or impossible, to sunder."

The traditional family "plays a role in educating and nourishing the young which, far from being 'voluntary' is often compulsory. Finally, it has been a means, for uncounted millenia, of satisfying the deepest emotional and physical needs of human beings," the judge wrote.

Judge Wollenberg said that "emotional ties between commune members may exist, but this is true of members of many groups." He termed the communes similar to such traditional groups as religious communities and residence clubs.

"The right to form such groups may be consititutionally protected, but the right to insist that these groups live under the same roof in any part of the city . . . is not," he concluded.

The judge said that these groups are free to live together in other than in residential zones.

Finally, the judge touched on an economic question raised by Palo Alto city attorneys.

"Many older neighborhoods have large, once-distinguished town houses and often owners find it more profitable to rent . . . to large groups of unrelated persons with independent sources of income," the judge said.

This practice could cause the rent structure of a whole neighborhood to rise, he concluded.

Larkspur's One World Family lives in an old, 18-room house which was formerly a convalescent home.

Attorney For Angela Comments

One of Angela Y. Davis's attorneys said today that "it is premature" to speculate on possible motions for a change of venue in her trial on charges stemming from the Aug. 7 Hall of Justice shoot-out.

And a Marin County bail bondsman said Miss Davis should have "no trouble at all" arranging bail, even if the courts set a figure as high at $500,000.

Attorney Howard Moore Jr., reached in Atlanta, Ga., today told the Independent-Journal that "people are a little ahead of themselves" in speculating whether Miss Davis's trial might be moved from Marin County to either San Francisco, Los Angeles or elsewhere.

(Meanwhile, Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty said he "certainly wouldn't welcome" a change of venue to Los Angeles, according to United Press International.)

Attorney Moore said he and Miss Davis's other attorneys plan to return to Marin Superior Court on Feb. 5. At that time, Moore said, the defense will present further arguments on two motions made earlier this week, to have the court set bail, and to set aside the grand jury indictment against Miss Davis.

Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson said Tuesday that he would ask an outside judge to rule on the motions.

Moore said today he will be in charge of Miss Davis's defense during the actual trial — if the attorneys fail in their attempts to win dismissal. Attorney Michael Tigar will handle most of the pretrial matters, Moore explained.

Miss Davis's bail — if granted — would be "no trouble at all," according to Joe Pecora, owner of the Marin Bail Bond Agency.

A number of bail bondsmen would divide the coverage among themselves, Pecora explained today. He said that "10 or 15 or 20" persons each could pledge collateral consisting of deeds of trust, bank deposits or other security, to the bondsmen. The bondsmen's fee would be the standard 10 per cent of the amount of bail set by the court, Pecora said.

"We'll bail anybody so long as there's collateral," Pecora added. "We're not judging the guilt or innocence; anybody's entitled to bail if the court says so."

Pecora said he had inquiries on bail for the former UCLA college professor as soon as she was returned to Marin County.

In a sidelight to the Davis case, yesterday entertainer Dick Gregory told an audience of 2,000 Laney College students and the press at Oakland's Civic Auditorium that Miss Davis was "definitely a political prisoner" and a "victim of a plot."

He said the Federal Bureau of Investigation has thoroughly infiltrated Communist Party circles.

courses, marinas, or spectacular outdoor settings. These must be supplemented by a mix of other recreational facilities to diversify the visitors' stay, and service shops such as restaurants, gift shops and drug stores to supply visitors' needs.

In the off-season winter months, the report said, small conferences would be an ideal complement to the tourist trade. Conferences of executives, special discussion groups and training groups draw up to 40 persons and do not require the large convention-type hotels, the study added. "Most conferences are scheduled to avoid weekends and summer weekends and summer vacation period, thereby providing an ideal seasonal balance," the report said.

Vacation trailer spaces would attract families on a more modest budget and with more rugged objectives, ERA said.

Marinas to complement resort hotels are most promising in Richardson Bay and San Rafael Bay, and on a limited scale along Tomales Bay, the firm said.

ERA recommended that the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitor's Bureau act as a permanent advisory board with whom prospective investors in resort and hotel facilities could consult. The chamber could then act as liaison between public agencies and prospective investors. The $30,000 per year which the county gets from its motel and hotel room tax should be used by the chamber to acquaint potential investors with Marin's assets as a resort area, ERA said.

ERA predicted that a full complement of resort hotels with related services and recreational facilities would bring in $100 million annually for the next 20 years in the form of new construction and retail sales.

the series of demonstrations in the United States to come to a sudden end, although the U.S. government is acting to prevent recurrence of violence."

The Soviet protest delegations preceded and followed the brief demonstration outside the embassy Wednesday night when 20 young Russians chanted slogans for about 15 minutes before being shood away by a Soviet sentry.

The chanters followed a delegation of what the Soviets called "indignant workers" who peacefully entered the embassy to deliver letters protesting incidents in the United States in which militant Jewish demonstrators attacked Soviet offices, diplomats, artists and entertainers.

over two lots on the bank of Corte Madera Creek, according to plans presented by Schultz.

Schultz and his architect, Richard R. Zahm of Kentfield, made a one-hour presentation that included color slides designed to show why the building proposed would be compatible with the north shore of the creek.

Schultz said, "We are not requesting any variance or any privilege. This is something we are entitled to by right under the ordinance of Larkspur."

No variances were required because the planned structure met all setback, height and other limitations of an R-3 area. However, Schultz had to gain approval for design of the building.

While opposing planning commission rejection of the building's design, Schultz did concede: "I think the one (argument) that was most pervasive was building across lot lines."

Planning Chairman Robert H. Lee agreed last night. He said it "boils down to excessive mass of this structure."

He said approval would signal the first three-story structure built across lot lines along the creek. "This would create a tunnel effect," he said.

"I'd like them (the council) to consider what our limitations are about building across lot lines. Where do we stop?" he said.

He read from a memorandum from City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst which said, "As a matter of policy, structures occupying widths in excess of two parcels along either side of Corte Madera Creek must be discouraged."

Lee said a new plan to cover three lots with a building has reached the commission on the heels of Schultz's plan.

Several citizens in the audience of 40, including representatives from the Larkspur Town Meeting, backed Lee.

Schult's appeal to the council was the first time in at least five years, and probably the first time ever, that a decision on architectural design was appealed to the city council, Bathurst told the Independent-Journal.

Bathurst, whose staff had recommended approval with certain modifications to the planning commission, again recommended approval of the Schultz plan last night.

"It was the general consensus opinion that what the staff did not like was the visual mass of the building from Corte Madera Creek," he said.

However, he added, "In all, looking at the lot again, we feel that this structure can be compatible." He suggested indenting the building slightly at one point to eliminate the mass problem. Schultz agreed and so changed his artists's rendition of the building.

The council action came only three months after it had denied a commission request for a moratorium on creek building to allow time to work out criteria for creek development.

Lee's comment on the tunnel effect, a phenomenon disputed by Schultz, related to a claim by conservationists opposing an earlier building application that the apartments were creating a "Chinese Wall" keeping the public from the creek.

Schultz argued his plan would not harm the creek and "in fact, our landscaping will increase the natural amenities of the creek."

saying "peace is still very far from our reach."

The Allied negotiators attacked the communist demands for the overthrow of the Saigon government and the unilateral and unconditional withdrawal of U.S. and other Allied forces from the south as obstacles to the opening of genuine negotiations.

Bruce also complained about the Communist attitude toward prisoners of war, repeating his charge Hanoi was guilty of "cynical exposure of prisoners of war to public curiosity for propaganda purposes" when it allowed a Canadian television correspondent to make a controlled and later censored film on American prisoners in North Vietnam.

Bruce began his conference statement by telling the Communist delegates "serious negotiations call for willingness to discuss reasonable proposals without posing demands on a take-it-or-leave-it basis or as preconditions to discussion."

Mrs. Duskin Gets Alimony, Support

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The wife of wealthy dress manufacturer Alvin Duskin has received a final divorce decree, custody of three minor children and $2,166 a month in alimony and child support.

Duskin also agreed to pay $7,000 on a piece of property and give it to Mrs. Constance Duskin.

hormone as "a great basic research breakthrough with possible applications ranging from the study of growth and development of human beings through the possible treatment of cancer and arteriosclerosis."

Its first beneficiaries will probably be the 10,000 to 50,000 children suffering each year from hyper-pituitary dwarfism. They could grow to normal size with HGH treatment.

Li, who has spent 32 years studying the pituitary gland its hormones, likened making HGH to building a highway.

The hormone, which is made naturally in the pituitary, a pea-sized gland at the base of the brain, consists of 188 amino acids and is the most complex protein ever synthesized by man.

"We had to put 188 amino acids together, one block at a time, then we had to build two bridges —a small one, like the Golden Gate bridge, and a large one, like the (San Francisco-Oakland) Bay Bridge," Li said.

"We built the highway first — block by block. That took about two years. Then we spent two years on the bridges."

There was one difference — every time a mistake was made on the "highway," Dr. Li and his colleague, Dr. Donald Yamashiro, had to start constructing it all over again. The "bridges" are essential chemical bonds connecting a pair of specific amino acids on the long "highway." Without them, the hormone doesn't function.

Li and his team first isolated and purified HGH, one of 100 hormones made by the pituitary, in 1956. They determined its structure a decade later.

In 1961, they started using HGH taken from dead bodies to treat undersized children suffering from one form of dwarfism. With steady medication over a period of several years, the youngsters grew to normal size.

However, an inadequate supply of HGH from cadavers limits the treatment to about 1,000 children a year in the United States. Pediatricians estimated another 10,000 to 50,000 youngsters are being condemned to permanent dwarfism because of the supply shortage.

The authoritative Israeli source said if the war of attrition along the canal were renewed more firepower would be involved. He said the Russians by using the Luna rockets would not have to risk their planes near the canal.

The source also said the array of Soviet SAM missiles along the canal was more dangerous now than last summer and that Israel could not ignore nor afford to take lightly recent Egyptian threats to resume the war of attrition.

In Paris, meanwhile, Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad conferred with French Foreign Minister Maurice Shumann on how to speed up efforts to restore peace in the Middle East. Riad has said Egypt might not extend the current cease-fire beyond its Feb. 5 expiration date if Israel does not make a firm commitment to withdraw its troops.

might be a presidential candidate. Since he might become involved in trying to win delegates, he said he felt he should not be telling them how they should be chosen.

McGovern described the 1968 convention as a "traumatic shock" to the party. He predicted that the 1972 convention, as a result of revised procedures, would be "the least boss-ridden" ever.

He said that in getting state Democratic organizations to comply with commissions' proposals, the group already was "at least half way home." By July 1 more than half of the states will be in compliance and most others will be near the goal, he said.

OBITUARIES

REID KIMBALL

Memorial service for Reid Kimball of Synanon's Marshall facility will be tonight at the Synanon Santa Monica center he once headed.

Kimball, 52, died Monday at a San Francisco hospital after suffering from a heart condition for several years.

A reformed heroin addict and gangster, he rose to a top position in the ranks of the organization dedicated to reforming addicts and to forging a new life style.

Born in Logan, Utah, he moved to Santa Monica as a child and became an addict as a young man. He was also a gambler and hoodlum operating in San Francisco and Los Angeles, according to Charles Dederich, founder of Synanon.

"He was quite a roller, closest thing to a gangster that the West Coast had at that time," Dederich said.

The head of Synanon told of a time when Kimball was arrested in Santa Maria with $35,000 or $40,000 in his pocket. Police, unwilling to be responsible for it, locked the cash in the cell with him.

Kimball never served time in prison.

In 1959, in failing health and down in his luck, he joined the year-old Synanon. He kicked the drug habit after 20 years.

He was a Synanon director from 1962 to 1967 and was head of the San Diego branch in 1965 and the Santa Monica facility, the group's largest, in 1966 and 1967.

He was in Marin in August of 1964 when Synanon opened its Marshall facility, but returned to Southern California until a year and a half ago.

Surviving are his wife, Ronna of Marshall and two sisters living in Santa Monica.

His great-grandfather, Heber C. Kimball, was the first president of the mormon Church after Brigham Young.

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER

Mrs. George Weger of San Rafael urges her daughter, Dionne, 2, into a makeup rubella innoculation clinic at 920 Grand Avenue, San Rafael. Wendy, nose pressed against the door, appears as hesitant as her twin sister. However, Jill Weger, 4, looks on more cooly since she is a veteran of the rubella campaign of November and December when more than 18,000 youngsters aged 1-11 were vaccinated. The makeup clinics are to run through Jan. 26 at locations throughout the county. (Independent-Journal photo).

'Airphibious,' Space Age Boat, Will Carry Mail At Sports Show

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—"Airphibious One," so-called space age boat, will carry U. S. mail on its historic world's first indoor balloon flight at the Friday opening of the San Francisco Sports and Boat Show.

Airphibious One is a combination boat and balloon, or skyboat, designed by Brooks Stevens, Milwaukee, famed industrial designer. It is designed for sale to anyone who wants to fly from his own backyard to the nearest lake.

There will be 500 inaugural flight memorial covers to be carried as U.S. mail the first day. These will be addressed to the boat show office and taken to the Vistacion Valley Post Office to be cancelled and returned. The inaugural covers will then go on sale to stamp collectors for $1 each.

In the four-times-a-day flights of Airphibious One during the course of the 10-day show "commemorative" covers will be flown as well as post cards. These will be sold at a post office in the lobby and are intended to be mailed to friends.

The strange new aircraft will be piloted by Don Piccard, Swiss-born son of famed balloonists Jean and Jacques Piccard.

He designed the balloon on the craft. It measures 35 feet high by 28 feet at the equator. The gondola boat is six feet in diameter and powered with a 35 horsepower outboard motor which, when idled, fans the balloon on course, and in water powers the boat.

New Fire Station Talk Is Launched

The San Rafael Fire Commission has started a new discussion of a new main fire station.

Fire Chief Vance Trivett said the commission, which met Tuesday, "spoke generally" of the area of Second and C streets and Third and C streets as possible locations.

A new station was rejected by San Rafael voters last June.

Trivett said the commission's interest now is simply to present possible locations to the city council for their consideration.

He said the commission will continue its hunt for flat property away from one-way streets.

He listed lack of space and a deteriorating building as reasons for moving from the main station located at C Street and Fifth Avenue.

In other action, the commission formally hired seven new firemen at $794 per month each.

Heavy Vote At College Of Marin

A heavier than usual turnout of voters was reported yesterday at the College of Marin during the first day of student body elections.

About 300 students voted yesterday, a college spokesman said, predicting this spring's election would have one of the largest ballot counts. Voting ends today.

The last election, held in October, saw only about 190 students vote.

The higher count yesterday may have been the result of wide differences in political philosophies among candidates.

PEOPLE'S PARTY

One group of five candidates, representing the People's Government Party, maintains it will "have student government relate to the people."

Composed of what it terms "the most far out people on this campus," the party claims it relates to the plight of all people.

A campaign statement calls for student government to cease being "the symbolic puppet" for administration and faculty and for an end to administration "harrassment" of students through use of disciplinary probation.

Party candidates are Robert E. L. Fisher for president, Henry Crutchfield for vice president, C. Jerry Coleman for secretary, David A. Govoni, running unopposed for treasurer, and Landy Scott for spirit and athletics commissioner.

INDEPENDENT SLATES

Other students running for office are Steven C. Banks and Dean Paul Carry for president, Kenneth Batt and Tim Nielsen for vice president, Olga Lynne Nicholes for secretary, Douglas W. Hunt for public relations commissioner, Robert A. Mayer and Michael Satterlee for college center commissioner, Mark A. Buckley for rallies and assemblies commissioner, Richard G. Mills for spirit and athletics commissioner and Rosemary MacFarland for head yell leader.

The campaign statement of candidate Carry calls for a return to constitutional government and then adds that all political activities concerning the "outside world" be held off the campus.

Candidate Banks said if elected he will work toward a solution to student problems, such as finding doctors and dentists offering discount rates for needy persons, low cost housing, job placement, child care centers and an analysis of where the college's money goes.

Nejedly Bill Bans Soap Phosphates

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The sale and manufacture of phosphate detergents—the key ingredient of modern laundry soap that housewives depend on—would be banned under a bill introduced by Sen. John A. Nedely.

The Walnut Creek Republican said Wednesday medical evidence indicates that phosphate poisoning attacks the liver, kidneys and intestines. He estimated soap manufacturers do a $150 million annual business in California.

"In the prevention of use lies the most appropriate answer," Nejedly told a newsman who inquired why a ban is necessary.

The lawmaker also said phosphates cause algae to proliferate in fresh water lakes. The algae extract oxygen from the water and clog fish gills, eventually suffocating them," he said.

The freshman lawmaker, who for two years has led an unsuccessful attempt to completely ban DDT, estimated 6 million pounds of phosphates seep into California's underground water supply annually from septic tanks and sewage treatment plants.

Nejedly, a member of the Sierra Club, when asked where housewives would find substitutes to do the family laundry, replied:

"What did grandmother do? She used a fat and lye combination soap that was biodegradable."

The legislator said manufacturers are capable of producing laundry soap without phosphates that has the same cleansing power. "If housewives understand what they (detergents) are doing to the environment, they'd be for the ban," he said. "Now they're compelled to contribute to the contamination."

The measure would ban the sale or use of any pre-soak product containing phosphates beginning Jan. 1, 1972 and would prohibit any phosphate soap as of Jan. 1, 1973.

VERBAL BATTLE

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Big John Wayne and anti-war protestors had a verbal shoot-out in the streets of Sacramento, according to a complaint filed with police by a 22-year-old Sacramento man.

The incident allegedly occurred Monday night as the Academy Award-winning star of countless Westerns left the Sacramento auditorium, where he had served as master of ceremonies at Gov. Ronald Reagan's inauguration gala.

Witnesses asserted that Wayne saw the group and also noted that the antenna had been broken from the car he was using and said "what the — is that?"

He then reportedly walked toward one person carrying a VC flag, but was restrained by a companion.

"You haven't even been there and don't know what it's all about," one witness said Wayne told the group. "I have been."

TRIES AGAIN

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A bill easing the restrictions on the teaching of sex in public schools was submitted Wednesday by Sen. Albert S. Rodda, D-Sacramento.

The measure would allow sex education courses without parental consent if a mother or father could inspect the class materials during or after the course. Currently, no sex education course can be taught unless a parent or guardian gives prior written permission.

The Rodda bill is similar to legislation defeated last session.

MINORITY CHIEF

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Sen. Fred Marler of Redding has been chosen minority floor leader by Senate Republicans.

Chosen unanimously Wednesday for the post of GOP leader in the upper house, the lawmaker pledged "to keep a unified Republican party."

"We have slipped periodically into factions that have prevented us from being a workable, viable minority," said Marler, who was elected to the Senate in 1965.

He also said he would try to "put aside pure partisan politics so we can settle down to do the people's business."

'False Advertising' Charges By FTC

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) issued false advertising charges today against the makers of "Veg-o-Matic," a food cutter, and Telex hearing aids.

The FTC said Veg-o-Matic television commercials claim the product will cut and slice raw carrots, ripe tomatoes and similar foods, but the packaged instructions warn:

"Don't slice raw carrots, raw beets, lemons, oranges, ripe or overripe tomatoes. Veg-o-Matic is not intended to slice these foods."

The FTC said Telex hearing aids, contrary to their advertising, neither are new inventions nor have new mechanical or scientific principles, are not invisible when worn, and will not enable many people with hearing disabilities to consistently distinguish sounds in group conversations or amid background noise.

The agency said Telex advertisements also create the "false impression" that the firm offers free books on hearing disabilities with no strings attached.

Actually, the FTC said, names of people responding to the offer are given to dealers who send hearing aid salesmen to the respondents' homes.

Both FTC actions were proposed consent orders. The firms can sign them, agreeing to stop the allegedly deceptive ads without acknowledging guilt; or contest the case before an FTC hearing examiner.

Fund For Machine Gets Boost

Two major gifts have swelled the campaign for funds for a Marin General Hospital linear accelerator past the $35,000 mark, and a leading figure of the entertainment world has agreed to headline a fund-raising dinner for the campaign Monday night.

The gifts, announced today by Mrs. Walter G. Strauss of Terra Linda, campaign chairman, are $10,000 from the William G. Irwin Charitable Foundation of San Francisco and $2,000 from Marin Lodge 1108, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks.

The show business headliner is Edgar Bergen, who will fly from Hollywood with his wooden alter-ego, Charlie McCarthy, to entertain at a dinner Monday evening at Sabella's of Marin.

In addition to Bergen and McCarthy, familiar to two generations of radio listeners, movie goers and TV watchers, the entertainment will include Julie Dickinson and John Scott, who are appearing in the Fairmont Hotel's New Orleans Room in San Francisco. Also on the program will be a Dixieland band made up principally of Marin County physicians.

Sabella's will donate all food and facilities for the dinner, and restaurant employees will donate their services, in hope of bringing the campaign to its goal of $50,000, said Mrs. Strauss. If that much can be raised, Marin Hospital District will provide the rest of the funds for purchase of the linear accelerator, she said.

The machine would replace the cobalt bomb unit at the hospital for treatment of cancer. It is a more recent development and more effective, according to the medical profession.

Stabbing Of Inmate Is Fatal

A 30-year-old San Quentin convict was stabbed to death as he returned to his cell from an evening meal yesterday.

Harvey C. Fortner of San Pablo was stabbed three times in the back and once in the stomach about 5:15 p.m., said Associate Warden James W. L. Park. He was pronounced dead at the prison hospital at 6:02 p.m., Park said.

A 12-inch home-made knife was found in the cell unit and is presumed to be the murder weapon, Park said. One suspect was held today in an isolation cell, he said.

Fortner was originally convicted of burglary in Contra Costa County and later escaped from a work camp in Lake County.

17 Road Deaths

MANILA (UPI)—Seventeen persons were killed and 54 others injured in two separate road accidents in the Philippines Wednesday, police reported today.

Woman To Plead In High-Speed Chase

A San Francisco woman has been arraigned in Marin Municipal Court on charges of reckless driving and failure to heed a red light and siren after she allegedly led California Highway Patrol officers and sheriff's deputies on a bizarre high-speed chase New Year's Day.

Kathryn Ann Ours, 27, was arrested after the chase, which began in Kentfield and ended when the woman rammed two sheriff's cars on the Waldo Grade with her auto, officers reported.

The highway patrol gave this belated account of the events leading to the arrest of Mrs. Ours, who was reportedly distraught over marital difficulties when the incident occurred:

A motorcycle officer, on patrol in Kentfield, saw Mrs. Ours speeding east on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at 9:45 a.m. and gave chase. Lights flashing and siren wailing, he pursued her onto Highway 101 and south on the freeway until she exited on East Blithedale Avenue in Mill Valley.

Another highway patrolman in a car joined the caravan of pursuing officers as Mrs. Ours drove south on Highway 101 at a high rate of speed.

Finally, with the highway patrol cars in front of and behind Mrs. Ours's car, and with the sheriff's cars on either side, the woman was brought to a halt, but not before she had rammed the sheriff's vehicles.

The highway patrol said Mrs. Ours did not stop because she thought the officers had been called by her husband to arrest her.

She is scheduled to enter a plea next Tuesday, in Marin Municipal Court.

Student Reports Are Due Study

The Marin Junior College District board, meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at Olney Hall, will hear four reports on students at the College of Marin.

The reports include a survey of dropouts, enrollment, a study on black students and a student characteristic report.

In other action, the board will consider changing the district's name to Marin Community College District and a teacher training agreement with the University of California and review the college's study program for the winter quarter.

Panel To Discuss Police Relations

A police-community relations workshop will be held Saturday at 10 a.m. at Christ Episcopal Church, Sausalito.

The program, which will run until 3 p.m., will feature a panel discussion on "Police Community Relations in Sausalito" with a panel made up of policemen businessmen and two members of the street ministry.

Purse Stolen From Car: $600 Loss

A purse containing about $600 in cash and jewelry was stolen yesterday from the front of an auto parked outside Wigs-N-I at Corte Madera Shopping Center, police said today.

Officers said Irene R. Speed of Hayward, district manager for the wig company, parked her car at about 7:45 p.m. When she returned 10 minutes later, the purse, containing $126 in cash and between $400 and $500 in jewelry, was missing.

Eviction Panel Back For Study

A proposal to establish a five-person tenant eviction panel to review and make decisions on evictions from public housing has been sent back to the drawing board by commissioners of the Marin County Housing Authority.

According to Wallace K. Shepherd, authority executive director, commissioners indicated Tuesday they favored the idea of such a group, but objected to committing the authority to the decisions of the panel.

The commission also wanted further time to study the plan, he said.

Shepherd said the panel would include one representative from each of the following groups: Senior Citizens Coordinating Council, Marin City Community Services District, Tenants Union, Department of Public Social Services and Housing Authority.

The proposal again will be resented at the commission's Jan. 20 meeting.

The Marin County Housing Authority also:

TV CABLE — Awarded a bid for wiring and amplification necessary to install a television cable system in Marin City Public Housing to Cable Antenna Systems of San Rafael, whose low bid was $24,708.

SENIOR CITIZENS — Agreed to renew for another year a contract with the Marin Senior Coordinating Council to provide employment, transportation and recreation for senior citizens qn Marin City and other housing authority housing projects. The commission agreed to pay the council $6,000 in 1971.

BOILER SYSTEM — Awarded a contract for a boiler system for heating to the E. H. Morril Co. of San Francisco with a low bid of $8,853.

REPRESENTATIVE — Chose Melvin Randolph, manager of Marin City Public Housing, to represent the authority on the Marin Economic Opportunity Council board.

WORKSHOP — Authorized the executive director to attend the National Association of Housing and Redevelopment Workshop in San Diego Jan. 15 and 16.

SUBSTANDARD HOUSING — Adopted a resolution stating the housing authority will not in the future allow any substandard dwellings to be placed under the leased housing program.

Pay Hikes In Dixie Ruled Out

There will be no pay raise in the Dixie School District for fiscal 1970-71 the Dixie School District board decided without comment last night.

Supt. Clifford W. Campbell said that while the formal action was to deny teachers' request for an 11.8 per cent raise retroactive to July 1, the intent was to refuse any raise at all.

The Dixie teachers may be the only ones in Marin denied an increase this year, according to Campbell.

The board made it clear, said the superintendent, that it refused the raise because of its pledge to the electorate in connection with a tax increase election last April.

However, the session was not all salt in the wounds for the teachers. Campbell said the board, considering the projected budget for next fiscal year, decided there will be money for raises in 1971-72, and that teacher pay will be a high priority item. The superintendent predicted negotiations will start within two months.

Campbell said a slight increase of revenue is predicted, and fewer teachers will be needed because of decreasing enrollment.

1,000 Laid Off At Westinghouse

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Westinghouse Electric Corp. has confirmed a report that 1,000 workers will be laid off within the next two weeks at its columbus, Ohio, major appliance factory.

The plant employs 5,000. The company said falling sales and a substantial accumulation of inventory had forced the layoff decision.

Miller Slide Issue Slips Past Council

After months of hesitation, the Mill Valley City Council agreed today to hire a San Francisco engineer to conduct soils tests of the Miller Avenue earthslide.

The action, which came on a 3-2 vote at an adjourned session, followed a 15-minute closed meeting with city Atty. Leland H. Jordan.

The soils investigation is needed if the city is to collect damages from the owner of the land on which the slide occurred.

Today's vote was identical to one on Nov. 2, when the council voted 3-2 to appropriate $3,500 to hire the firm of Dames and Moore to conduct the soils tests.

Although funding was approved in November, signing of the contract was delayed until today. Councilmen Edward J. Boessenecker, Jean S. Barnard and Robert H. Andresen voted for the investigation, while Mayor George E. Wickham and Councilman Jerome C. Hauke opposed it.

City Mgr. William H. Cunningham said the work would start within 10 days and probably would be completed in three months.

The slide once was owned by Thomas Collison, former Mill Valley resident now living in Spain, but it was sold in November to Melinda Rowe-Beddoe, Collison's daughter. She lives in Berkshire, England.

To Perform

The Marin Youth Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Hugo Rinaldi, will perform Feb. 6 at 9 a.m. on Radio KKHI.

Rec Program Set Monday

The Corte Madera winter recreation program will begin Monday, offering 33 activities ranging from belly dancing to bridge.

The courses, most of which will run for 12 weeks, also include: Preschool play group, preschool Polynesia, tumbling, preschool dance, preschool creative art, arts and crafts for 8 to 10 years olds, ice skating, ballet, baton twirling, guitar, judo, ceramics, knitting, creative dance, yoga, tennis, exercise group, hula lessons, drawing, fundamental of investments and a drop-in center for high school students.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL

IRS Plans To Audit More Tax Returns This Year

There are a few people who do not pay their taxes fully, completely and on time and these few people do run up the costs of collection. There may be more of them than we think and Uncle Sam intends to do a great deal more auditing this year than he has in the past.

The IRS asked for an increase in its budget of over $53 million for fiscal 1971. They claim this increase is necessary because they expect to process over 113 million returns.

The thing we are interested in is that they have asked for an increase of 41.5 million for compliance and an increase of 2,894 people in the compliance section.

To my mind this indicates that each return is going to get a more thorough going over than in the past and that more returns are going to be audited.

Actually the percentage of returns audited is declining according to the IRS. In 1963 it audited 5.8 per cent, in 1969 3.18 per cent and they are estimating 2.6 per cent for 1970 and a slight increase of 2.83 per cent for 1971.

While the percentage of returns audited has been declining, I believe that the audits have been a good deal rougher.

NO CHANGE

IRS states that about 41 per cent of all audits result in no change and they are trying to establish criteria for doing audits that will produce a higher percentage of change audits and a lower percentage of no change audits.

To achieve this, they plan to do more "interview" type audits as opposed to the correspondence audits. In other words, you may be asked to come in and bring your supporting material.

The IRS states that "the interview process takes a greater amount of time" and that's one reason the total number of examinations has decreased over the years, and they are going to concentrate on the interview type examination for low income tax payers. On the other hand, those in higher brackets can handle the matter easily by correspondence because they are usually dealing not with the taxpayer but with his tax accountant or his lawyer.

IRS FORMULA

The IRS is using a mathematical formula on individual returns to determine which returns should be audited.

Your deductions must be within a certain percentage of your adjusted gross income, otherwise your return will be selected for audit.

The big question is what percentages can you deduct and be safe.

If you have a deduction that seems to you to be large in relation to your income, you should fully explain it on your tax return or on a sheet of paper attached to your tax return.

If you have a deduction, you should take it regardless of the amount, and since your taxes are self-assessed and since the burden of proof is on you, you should maintain adequate records to prove every item entered on your tax return.

KEEP RECORDS

People lose deductions not because they are not entitled to them, but because they cannot substantiate them. Good record keeping is over half the battle.

It is very important to report all of your income and deductions accurately, and be sure to put them on the proper lines and check your arithmetic carefully. Accurate reporting on the proper lines with correct arithmetic should let your return slide through the computers unnoticed. However, if there is anything wrong with your return, it jams up the computer or makes for editing before it can be put through the computer and it does get extra scrutiny which may lead to being marked for audit.

While most of us have nothing at all to fear from an audit, it is a time consuming process and it always seems to occur at a time when we are busiest and least able to give it the care and attention it deserves.

Hearing Set In Auto Theft

Ronald Bernard Coy, 20, of San Francisco, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of auto theft.

Preliminary hearing was set for Tuesday.

Coy was arrested in San Francisco after police gave chase when he made an illegal left turn in a car stolen in Novato Nov. 27, according to Novato police.

Grand on Spaghetti
RAGU
"America's Tastiest"

Thai Power Play Favors General

BANGKOK (UPI)—A general who already is the most politically powerful man in Thailand is a good bet to become the nation's next prime minister.

For a man who insists he is a soldier and not a politician, Deputy Prime Minister Prapass Charusathiara is remarkably adept at the science of polics.

Prapass sounds like a soldier when he says, as he did again last week, that it has never been his intention to be the prime minister.

He moved back into the politician's stance when he followed that remark with this one: "One human being, however, never knows what the future will hold for him."

Prime Minister Thanom Kittikachorn has indicated his intention to retire at the end of 1971.

There are other possible contenders for the top job, but few doubt that Prapass can have it if he wants it.

For the record, Prapass stands firmly behind Thanom, whose daughter is married to Prapass' son.

There have been local press reports that Prapass has let it be known to all political factions in the country that he firmly supports Thanom.

This message reportedly warned against any attempt to change the government through unconstitational means under the misconception that he himself might favor such efforts.

So what appeared to be a pledge of support, leaked to the press, came a few days after Thanom had reshuffled his cabinet, bringing in Sen. Prasit Karnachanawat, long regarded as a close associate of Prapass.

The appointment of Prasit, a member of the Liberal Party, as Deputy Minister for Economic Affairs, may have been aimed at bringing the Liberals closer to the ruling government party.

In any case, it appeared to strengthen Prapass' position as a possible successor to Thanom.

Some observers believe Prapass prefers to wait and take over the job of prime minister in a peaceful transition rather than forcing a showdown which could be risky as well as disruptive.

Prapass, who also commands the Thai army and heads the Interior Ministry, is the top contender, but some others are considered in the running.

They include Prasert Ruchirawongse, director general of police; Air Chief Marshal Dawee Chullsapya; Lt. Gen. Sawaeng Senanarong, a minister attached to the prime minister's office; Gen. Kris Srivara, deputy defense minister, and Deputy Foreign Minister Sanga Kittikachorn, younger brother of the prime minister.

Thanom, beset with a host of governmental problems he has been unable to solve, appears to be operating on borrowed time.

There is division in the ranks of the government as well as the ruling party, a long standing problem of insurgency within Thai borders and a serious economic slowdown.

The snipers are beginning to undermine Thanom, a moderate man and a popular leader when times were good.

But now that hard times are here, the followers of Prapass say the reins of power should pass officially to the strong man, the man who has always held them anyway.

Oregon Schools Boss To Teach

DALLAS, Ore. (UPI)—Oregon State School Superintendent Dale Parnell has returned to the classroom —to teach.

Parnell plans to teach for a month at Whitworth Grade School hwere because he feels administrators should do so from time to time to "keep up on what's going on in the classroom."

He promised that other top state education officials would periodically return

Just Not In On The Prank

MANSFIELD, Ohio (UPI)—Service station attendant John Kennedy wasn't in on the gag pulled on a newly married couple. When he saw a note in a car's gas tank which read "Help, I'm being kidnapped," he called police.

Four Ohio highway patrol cars converged on the service station here Tuesday.

The patrolmen found a recently rubbed out "just married" sign on the back of the couple's car.

William F. Sinzinger, the driver, said his uncle must have been responsible for the note.

"I guess my uncle's sense of humor isn't exactly funny," he said.

OAS To Meet Soon On Terrorist Acts

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The foreign ministers of the Organization of American States have decided to meet in Washington Jan. 25 to try to find ways to stop political terrorism in the hemisphere.

"This conference is very necessary so that our governments can continue to deal, at the highest level, with the grave problem of terrorism in its several shapes, especially that related to the kidnapping of persons for purposes of blackmail," said Raul A. Quijano, Argentina's ambassador to the OAS.

Reagan Cut In Medi-Cal Draws Fire

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A delegation of welfare rights advocates urged legislators Wednesday to reform California's welfare system and increase grants.

Assemblyman Willie L. Brown, D-San Francisco, who set up the talk session, told the 15 legislators present they were "here as students" to liste n to the 10 "specialists" in welfare.

The welfare panel was harshly critical of the Reagan administration's recent 10 per cent cutback in Medi-Cal spending. The cut was initiated last month to head off a threatened $140 million Medi-Cal deficit, according to the administration.

Helen Little of San Francisco, coordinator of the group and a recipient of aid to the disabled, asked the lawmakers to eliminate "the differences in the grants" of various aid categories in favor of "an adequate flat grant" of at least $300 a month for a single person plus $100 a month for each additional person in the home.

"I'd like to see any of you live on $140 for one month for a mother and one child," she told the legislators.

Sausalito Planners Veto Idea For Central Ferry Terminal

The Golden Gate Bridge District's bid for a single ferry terminal in central Sausalito took a direct hit amidships last night when the city planning commission turned thumbs down on the proposal.

The planners voted unanimously after a two-hour hearing to recommend to the city council that the district's request for a terminal at Litho Street and Bridgeway be denied.

The city's planning director, H. Eric Borgwardt, had recommended rejecting the district's plan in a report issued last week.

The district's proposal called for construction of a pier facility that included an underground 350-car parking lot and some commercial development.

Unless the district is able to convince the city council it should overrule the planner's decision, it will be forced to honor a commitment it made to the city last June and construct a ferry terminal in Marinship.

Dale E. Luehring, general manager of the bridge district, told planners last night that only 26 persons from the Marinship area are using the commute ferry. He said he felt that if most Sausalito residents were forced to drive north to catch a ferry into San Francisco, they would just continue to drive their own cars in to work and defeat the purpose of the ferry operation.

He also said the Litho Street site — which is adjacent to the land just purchased by the city and which is earmarked for construction of a library and other municipal buildings — would be ideal to handle the heavy weekend tourist ferry traffic.

The city wants the Marinship terminal to handle weekday commute use and a smaller terminal developed in downtown Sausalito for weekend tourist use.

Borgwardt was adamant in his opposition to the Litho Street site. He said a terminal there that included parking and commercial development would turn that residential area of the city into "another Union Street."

"The primary objection to that site is its impact on the surrounding area," he said. "Do the residents of this city really want the area, which is primarily reserved for residential use, engulfed in people?"

The commission seemed to object most to the parking facility which the bridge district has proposed. Commissioner John M. Davis admitted he didn't like the Marinship site, but indicated he felt the parking facility would be a significant detriment to the area around Litho Street.

Several commissioners pointed out that while few Marinship commuters were using the ferry now, establishment of a terminal there might prompt new residential development in the area.

The commission also asked Luehring to consider developing the temporary ferry landing now being used which is adjacent to the Trade Fair. Luehring said this was being considered.

Luehring last night showed the commission a model of a new ferry the bridge district hopes to build soon. Costing $2.1 million, the ferry has a possible speed of 25 knots carrying 750 passengers and is 165 feet long, Luehring said.

Luehring said that as soon as a terminal site is decided upon, he hopes to order at least four of the new boats, with one of the new craft being assigned to the Sausalito run and the other three being designated to the planned Central Marin-to-San Francisco route.

Sun Blinds Driver, Car Hits Pole

A 54-year-old Kentfield woman, reportedly blinded by sun shining on an icy windshield, struck an island and traffic signal pole on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Greenbrae Monday, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Isabelle W. Leggett of 58 Berens Drive was treated at Marin General Hospital for a bruised nose, scraped knee and hand and a possible whiplash after the accident, which occurred west of La Cuesta Drive about 7:40 a.m.

N. Marin Board Sets Rates For Point Reyes, Inverness

North Marin County Water District directors have approved rates and connection charges for new customers in the Point Reyes Station and Inverness Park area.

The district is scheduled to take over the Point Reyes and Inverness Park water companies operated by James J. Downey within a few weeks.

District Mgr. Eugene S. Churchill said the takeover, tentatively scheduled for Jan. 12, could be delayed, pending approval from the state Public Utilities Commission.

A bi-monthly rate of $3.50 plus 30 cents per 100 cubic feet of water was set for the new customers, and a connection fee for standard hookups will be $350, Churchill said.

The rates are higher than in the eastern sector of the district but about what was estimated at earlier hearings on the proposal to acquire the two private companies, he said. Takeover of the two companies was approved by voters last year.

The North Marin Water District Board also:

BILLS — Revised its policy on paying excess costs resulting from leakage in a consumer's line, agreeing to pick up half the costs beyond double the normal bill, as compared to the former policy when the district picked up half the costs beyond four times the normal bill. Churchill estimated the change would cost the district about $850 a year.

OCEANA MARIN — Authorized James D. Fritz, chief engineer, to determine project costs and assessment spreads for a proposed improvement district to finance sewage facilities in Oceana Marin Unit One, near Dillon Beach, covering 57 lots.

Edward W. Adams, parks and recreation director, reported attendance at recreation events was 28,128 last month, up 9,354 from December 1969.

The commission adjourned until 8 p.m. Jan. 18 at the Novato Community House.

Plastic Age Invading U.S. Homes

NEW YORK (UPI)—The "Plastic Age" is making it big on the American home furnishings scene.

By 1980, more than three-fourths of all furniture will be made in part or entirely of plastic, according to an executive of a leading producer of cycolac, a material largely responsible for the trend to modern plastic furniture.

"While plastic will continue to be used in large volume as a substitute material in structural and decorative applications, the greatest growth will be in exciting new designs that bring plastic out in the open by capitalizing on their visual appeal and design versatility," says Jack L. Shafer, vice president and sales director for Borg-Warner's Marbon Division.

"There also is an ever increasing demand for color in furniture, and only plastic can offer such a wide variety."

Sales of plastics for furniture are expected to rise from about $100 million in 1969 to $500 million by 1980, he estimates, citing industry predictions that by such time up to 80 per cent of all furniture in offices and homes, as well as appliances, sporting goods, toys and other products, either will be made entirely of plastic or use plastic in major sections.

Cerebral Palsy Appeals Mailed

United Cerebral Palsy of Marin has mailed appeals to 4,000 past contributors in an effort to raise $10,000 to carry the organization through its 1971 program.

Leif W. Evensen, president of the organization, said that the group has depleted its reserves.

Dr. Rudolph Kupfer, chairman of the group's professional advisory committee, pointed out that the organization receives no funds from the United Bay Area Crusade. Funds raised are used to help support camperships, a swimming program, a workshop and respite home for cerebral palsy victims.

Cold Wave's Big Gas Bill

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A California cold wave resulted in a new record for the consumption of natural gas, Pacific Gas & Electric Co. said Tuesday.

Between 7 a.m. Monday and 7 a.m. Tuesday, the company's 2.2 million customers in Northern and Central California used 3.635 billion cubis feet of the gas.

The old record of 3.3 billion cubic feet was set last December and PG&E predicted the new mark would also be broken rapidly.

Helen Clinton's Friends To Hear Concert At Party

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Another party in observance of the 90th birthday of Mrs. Delmar Smith Clinton will be given Sunday at 3 p.m. at the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley, with a concert as the highlight of the afternoon.

Mrs. Clinton, born on Christmas Day, 1880, in San Francisco, but a resident of Mill Valley most of her life, has been a leader in Marin social and music circles for many years.

She is giving the party herself, but it is being cosponsored by personal friends who are members of the Outdoor Art Club, of which she has been a member for more than 60 years, serving as president in 1927-28.

SINCE ONE of Helen Clinton's major interests over the years has been music, many of the 85 guests expected to attend the party will be friends who are members of Marin music organizations such as the Marin Symphony Guild and Marin Music Chest that she helped to found.

Highlight of the afternoon will be a concert by the Symphony Piccola, a group of first chair players in the Marin Youth Orchestra led by Hugo Rinaldi. The performance, which was one of the items offered in the recent auction sponsored by the Marin Symphony Guild, was purchased as a gift for Mrs. Clinton in recognition of her interest in and support of young musicians. She has attended every concert of the Marin Youth Orchestra since its inception 17 years ago.

The young people performing will be Mary Helen Weinstein, Peter Manu, Dan Smiley, Carole Tomlinson, Carma Romano, Judy Sakanari, Carolyn Thode, Linda Begeley, Laurie True, Steven Levintow, Jed Barahal, Michelle Bergman, Joan Oakley, Scott Sinott and Cindy Hill.

They will play the kind of music Mrs. Clinton loves — Vivaldi's Triple Violin Concerto, Greig's "Elajic" Suite, Tchaikovsky's Variations on a Rococo Theme and the Handel Concerto Grosso, Opus 6, No. 1.

THOUGH SHE lived in San Francisco during her ealry years —her maiden name was Helen Mar Davis — Mrs. Clinton spent all of her summers in Main on her uncle's 160-acre ranch that was located in what is now Scott Highlands, Mill Valley, and has many fascinating memories of those horse and buggy days. She remembers when the land for the town of Mill Valley was auctioned at a sale in Old Mill Park.

In San Francisco Helen led the gay life of a popular belle in the Bay Area at the turn of the century. During this time she was the first woman to drive an automobile — an electric one — in San Francisco and was probably one of the first women to go up in a balloon.

At a bon voyage party for her and her widowed mother, who were going to visit a friend who was the American consul general in Tientsin, China, Helen met and fell in love with Delmar Smith Clinton, a young civil engineer, and they were engaged by the time the ship reached Manila, where he had a building contracting business in the Philippines.

Married in 1906, they lived in Manila 20 years, taking an active part in social life. Mrs. Clinton became the captain of the first women's polo team in the Philippines.

FOR THE birth of her three children she returned to the summer home the family had in Mill Valley. Later they bought the home her stepfather had built in Mill Valley in 1902, and she still lives there with her son, John D. Clinton. Her other children are Mrs. Gerald K. Drew of Rehoboth Beach, Del., and Delmar Clinton of San Fancisco.

During World War I, when her husband became a colonel in the U.S. Army, the family lived in Washington, D.C., for a year, and after the war they lived again for two years in Man-

Weight Control Classes Begin

Registration for a second winter class in weight control sponsored by the Marin County Heart Association may be made with the Heart office in San Rafael.

First class opens Jan. 19 and the 12-week evening sessions will be held on consecutive Tuesdays from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Heart Association office in San Rafael.

The series will be instructed by Pamela Gilroy, registered dietitian. Pre-registration is required because of limited classroom space.

Open to both men and women, the course of study will feature adapting of many favorite recipes to low-calorie count, food preparation around the whole meal pattern, and shopping tips for food while counting calories.

Physician's written referral is necessary, as the course will use a 1200 calorie base with anticipated weight loss of one and one-half pounds per week.

Class sessions will also feature films, a physician speaker and physical therapist.

How To Plan The Perfect Kitchen

HACKETTSTOWN, N.J. (UPI)—When measuring the convenience factor of your kitchen, the American Institute of Kitchen Dealers suggests you consider the following:

Is there counter space between all major appliances? Can you attain access to the area behind your refrigerator for periodic cleaning? Do you have access to the items stored on the top shelves of your cabinets without having to climb, stretch or bend? Are all major appliances near a source of water?

In Spite Of It All Big Brothers Are Loved By Their Younger Sisters

DEAR HELEN:

You know, I've been telling my big brother I can't stand him, but I really love him, so I wrote—

What Is A 17½-Year-Old Brother?

A 17½ year old brother is the guy who spends one-quarter of his life underneath his car, another quarter under the hood, still another behind the wheel, and the last fourth doing various things such as sleeping, eating and dating, not necessarily in that order.

Who else can argue two hours with your father about "Why 'Hello Dolly" should be done in the nude?

And isn't he the guy who goes out and buys a flea collar so your mother will stop griping about his long hair?

He also has a not-so-silent protest against maxis and midis — in fact he's been known to shout in the middle of a shopping center: "Down with stupid midis!"

He says he hates all your girl friends but every time they're over he walks around like Adonis. Somehow he manages to leave his Beatles record in your room so he'll have to ask for it, too.

He writes good mad letters to the editor.

He also says he digs beautiful blondes with lots of great hair. Then why is he going with a not-so-beautiful brunette with split ends? Why else? She understands him. Oh yes, a 17½-year-old needs lots of understanding.

His idol is Joe Namath. At 17½, a guy doesn't realize Joe also throws a great forward pass.

And last week, didn't you catch him sitting in the bathtub with blue jeans on, trying to form-shrink them?

He is concerned with and dedicated to the solving of today's problems, although occasionally he has this terrible urge to laugh.

Last, there are only two words to describe my big brother: born winner. (He never got caught at anything). His only credo is: At 17½, ya can't lose!—16½.

DEAR READERS: Big Brothers are great. Here's another sister who thinks so:

A big brother is the first to tell you your levis are too tight and your skirt is too short, though he likes "that look" on other girls.

He brings his cute best buddy home just after you've put your hair up in soup cans. And by the time you're combed and made up, they've left already.

He's the one who tells you which boys are okay and which he'd better not ever catch you with — or else!

He's the one who, when you were kids and he was sick you gave your best suffed animal to... And when he lost his first love (even though you didn't like her) you thought your heart would break for him.

He tells you what a dumb bunny you are — but nobody else had better! He teases you till you cry, then gives you a big hug. He wouldn't tell you that you looked nice if his life depended on it. But he's the first one to tell another guy proudly, "That's my little sister."

He's the one who, when you finally get the guy to come to the house, takes over the conversation with talk about cars and football.

He's the fella who hollers about girl drivers, but teaches you to drive, and lets you use your car.

Now that you're older, he'll tell you off-color jokes, and embarrass himself silly. But if you tell him one — he gets "that look" on his face, and you feel silly.

A big brother is the one who, when you were going to run away, took your face in his hands, told you he loved you and talked you right out of it.

And when he goes in the service, it hits you all of a sudden what a super-great guy he is, and you only hope that some day that special fella you meet will be just like him. — ANOTHER SISTER

American Children Among The Largest In The World

American children are among the largest children in the world, according to the National Center for Health Statistics, Health Services and Mental Health Administration.

In a recent report the Center noted that increases among U.S. children ages 6 through 11 years have been about 10 per cent in height and 15 to 30 per cent in weight over the past 90 years. At 8 years of age (the age which has been used for a major international comparison) U.S. youngsters are in the highest group, both in height and weight.

Commenting on the center's report Dr. Arthur Lesser, director, Maternal and Child Health Service, HSMHA, said.

"The NCHS survey findings support the belief that improved living conditions and improved nutrition have a positive effect in helpind individual children reach the body size which genetic and other factors have determined is possible for them."

The findings were based on a health examination survey of a representative sampling of the nation's 24 million children between the age of 6 and 11. The results were compared with earlier studies of American children and with surveys conducted by other countries.

On a geographical basis, the survey showed that American boys and girls in the Midwest and Northeast tend to be taller and heavier than children in the South or the West.

American Negro children, the findings revealed, tend to be taller, while white children are somewhat heavier. Boys of both races are essentially the same height, but white boys are slightly heavier than Negro boys at each age. Negro girls are on the average taller than white girls but they weigh less until age 11. Then they become both taller and heavier than their white counterparts.

These data and their use as new U.S. standards for growing children are discussed in a new publication, "Height and Weight of Children, United States," PHS Publication 1000, Series 11, No. 104. Single copies can be obtained free from Office of Information, National Center for Health Statistics, HSMHA, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Md.

MUSIC REVIEW

Russian Shines With Symphony

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

SAN FRANCISCO — Seiji Ozawa's return to the podium and the San Francisco Symphony debut of the virtuoso Russian violinist Igor Oistrakh were the major points of interest in the orchestra's concert last night at the Opera House.

Still wearing a neck brace, the diminutive maestro conducted without his customary fiery exuberance, using small but eloquent gestures, but nevertheless still with plenty of spirit and fine control of his musicians.

High point of the evening was the magnificent playing of Oistrakh in Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnole," performed as the last number on the program. It was a rather extraordinary placing for a guest artist. In this case, however, it was logical since a program generally builds to a climax, and Oistrakh's performance certainly provided that.

The 40-year-old violinst does not have a robust tone, apparently preferring to concentrate all his energy in producing a flawless purity and richness of tone and perfection of technique at fantastic velocity without any evidence of effort or strain. His runs and trills were executed so lightly and at such lightning speed that one could barely see his fingers move. A fast vibrato resulted in a richness and warmth of tonal color that was almost vocal.

Ozawa carefully controlled the orchestral volume so that it would not be competitive with or overplay the violin tone, and there was remarkable rapport in the rhythmic feeling between Ozawa and Oistrakh.

Of course, this is just the sort of romantic music in which the Russians excel.

Preceding the Lalo work was another delightful one in the French romantic tradition, the Waverly Overture by Berlioz, who was perhaps master of them all in this genre. His richness of orchestration was evident even in this work, written when he was a student.

Outstanding was the beauty of the cello playing in the enchanting dreamlike section that preceded the brilliant close.

The real test of the orchestra's caliber came in Ives's "Three Places in New England," which ended the first half of the program. Each musician seemed to be following his own independent course in dense, assymetric passages of awesome rhythmic complexity — such as the point in the middle section, "Putnam Camp," inspired by a Fourth of July picnic, in which two bands are heard playing simultaneously. Yet Ozawa pulled it all together to create a meaningful though cacaphonous effect. Everything from sentimental popular tunes to ragtime-like passages and square church hymns required versatility in execution.

The concert opened with a smoothly flowing performance of the Mozart Symphony No. 36 (Linz) in C Major that ranges in tempo and mood from courtly grace to sparkling effervescence.

City Work Plan For The Jobless

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Housing and Urban Development Department (HUD) has worked out a $4 million pilot project to put 1,500 jobless space industry technicians and 500 former servicemen to work in Model Cities projects.

The plan, developed by HUD Assistant Secretary Floyd Hyde working with city and state officials, would recruit and give quick "orientation" courses to unemployed former aerospace workers and "Vietnam era" veterans who have either background in social sciences, managerial experience or military training that would be of use in the federal program designed to rejuvenate urban neighborhoods now on the decline.

Spain Is Feature Of Next Film

Eric Pavel, a travel film producer, will narrate his two-hour adventure film, "Span," Monday at 8:15 p.m. at the San Rafael High School auditorium.

It combines a study of the Spanish people and the architectural, historical and cultural aspects of Spain.

Pavel spent six months making the film.

The series will continue Jan. 25 with Russ Potter narrating a film of Hunza, Kafiristan, Nagar and Pakistan.

Riles In Shakeup Of Office

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —New state schools chief Wilson C. Riles yesterday announced the demotions and reassignments of six aides of former Superintendent Max Rafferty.

"I feel it's very important to make these changes if we're going to get some accountability, direction and goal-setting," Riles, who took office as state superintendent of public instruction Monday, told a news conference.

Riles said his administration would work with the legislature and with Gov. Ronald Reagan and would pursue "a team approach to solving the problems of education here in California rather than conflictive, divisive approaches."

INTERIM AIDES

Riles also announced three interim appointments "to fill the directing and policy-making slots" in his own administration. He said he would appoint a special committee to assist him in "combing the country and recruiting" the best talent available for permanent jobs.

He also appointed Greg Lipscomb, 28, a campaign aide, as his special assistant.

"I'm reducing some of these men to the levels where they can be competent in their jobs," he said of the top Rafferty men being reassigned. "If not, we will dismiss them."

The men being demoted were:

—Everett T. Calvert, granted a four-year contract by the state Board of Education last year as deputy state superintendent for administration. Riles said he would keep his title but be reassigned to "other duties that will not be in a policy-making capacity." He said Calvert's salary would be reduced from its present $29,000 to "below $20,000." Calvert's new job could include "some research duties," Riles said.

TO FORMER JOB

—Edwin F. Klotz, chief deputy superintendent was returned to a former civil service position of national defense education consultant.

—Eugene Gonzales, acting program deputy, was reassigned to his previous post as associate superintendent and chief of the division of instruction.

—George Guftafson, special consultant in education innovation and curriculum, had his job "terminated," but Riles said he would "probably" take a civil service job.

—Collier McDermon, assistant superintendent in charge of the Los Angeles office, was being removed from that post and was also expected to revert to civil service status.

—Walf Oglesby, special assistant to the state board, was also fired and was expected to return to civil service.

Those named to interim jobs were:

—Milton Babitz, 54, former assistant chief of compensatory education, the division Riles formerly headed, to acting chief deputy superintendent.

—Tom Shellhammer, 58, former chief of evaluation in compensatory education, to acting deputy superintendent for programs.

—Alwin J. Schmidt, 61, former fiscal chief in compensatory education to acting superintendent for administration.

Riles said he expected to make permanent appointments in three to six months.

Lipscomb, a former San Francisco Chronicle reporter, worked in the election campaign under media director Sanford Weiner.

Independence Set For Daily Cal

BERKELEY (UPI)—The Daily Californian, student newspaper at the University of California Berkeley, is moving off campus to become independent, it was revealed Wednesday.

The move is part of a new agreement reached by the newspaper staff, campus publications and the chancellor's office.

The move will be effective when regents approve guidelines for the newspaper at its meeting Jan. 21-22 in San Francisco.

Plans call for the Daily Cal to be sold beginning next fall and to establish a new Publishers' Board that will have a student majority.

Under the guidelines, the board, the paper's senior staff, the associate publisher, and a special critique committee will review copies of the paper.

However, the paper will retain campus ties and receive some student fee money until it can support itself. There is no timetable.

In the past UC Regents have been sharply critical of the Daily Cal and other campus newspapers. Last July, they deplored "the frequent use of campus student newspapers as instruments of socio-political advocacy and for the dissemination of lewd and obscene articles and photographs."

For the first time in 60 years, the Daily Cal will not be under the Associated Students government. Instead, it will become an autonomous campus unit under a reorganized publications board, which is expected to give closer scrutiny to content, quality, and performance.

Bay Air Board Hires Sacramento Lobbyist

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Bay Area Air Pollution Control District directors hired a Sacramento lobbyist yesterday for the first time, but shied away from a suggestion that they hire one of the "old guard" lobbyists.

District chairman Victor Calvo, a Santa Clara County supervisor, arguing "we're wiser to tie in with the new breed," successfully supported the hiring of a 38-year-old lobbyist reportedly close to the new Assembly Speaker, Bob Moretti, D-North Hollywood.

The new lobbyist, to be paid $10,000 for the current legislative session, will be Jerry Desmond, an attorney. His lobbying firm was formed last year after he served for four years as a lobbyist for the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Both Desmond and an "old guard" lobbyist, Daniel J. Creedon, were suggested to the district board by its chief administrative officer, D. J. Callaghan. Creedon is widely regarded as one of the most influential men in the Capitol, but Calvo objected that Creedon last year was linked with former Sen. Richard J. Dolwig, R-Redwood City, in reports of special favors that allegedly benefitted Dolwig's insurance business.

Calvo said that Creedon's record was "not exactly lilly white in the past." Creedon, 55, is a former assemblyman.

Bay Area Air Pollution Control District directors also:

ADVISORY COUNCIL — Reappointed James F. Reed III, mayor of San Anselmo, and Joseph D. Coons of San Rafael, a consulting engineer, to the district's advisory council. Reed, as a member of the Marin Conservation League, was one of four on the 20-member council representing organizations active in environmental fields.

VIOLATIONS — Received report that the number of observed violations during 1970 totaled 1,421, down from 1,901 in 1969. Marin had 36 last year and 47 the previous year. Callaghan attributed the drop to a better enforcement program, thus forcing air pollution sources to keep their guard up.

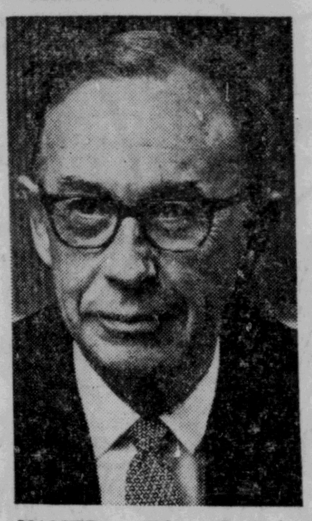
SPEAKERS — Received report that district representatives had made 292 speeches during 1970, reflecting a rapid increase in interest in air pollution. The figure for 1969 was 149, and for 1968 it was 69.

COMPUTER — Voted to set up an electronic data processing system, and to create a position of data processing supervisor with a monthly salary of $1,007 to $1,224.

CARS — Voted to buy 25 new American Motors compact cars from G. K. Hardt of Santa Rosa at a total cost of $56,258.

RADIOS — Voted to buy 10 mobile radio units from the Radio Corporation of America for $6,500.

MONITORS — Voted to buy a sulfur dioxide monitor for $5,279.



NAMED — Edgar F. Kaiser, chairman of the board of Kaiser Industries, will serve as Bay Area chairman of a "Take Stock in America" savings bond drive.

$700 In Tools Taken From Shed

Tools valued at $700 were stolen last weekend from a construction site in the 700 block of Bolinas Road near Fairfax, sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

The tools were stolen from a shed owned by Jorgenson and Davis Inc.

Solano County Attacked

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Bay Area smog officials denounced Solano County yesterday for seeking to exempt half its territory from their jurisdiction.

The smog officials also got a warning from Sonoma County Supervisor Bob Theiller that his county "may take the same position."

The six-county Bay Area Air Pollution Control District, which includes Marin, has tried for 15 years to annex Sonoma, Napa and Solano counties. The district finally won the battle last year in the Legislature with a new law forcing the annexation next July 1.

But the new law provided a partial escape for the three northern counties by allowing them to ask the State Air Resources Board to exempt portions of their territory from the Bay Area District.

Solano County supervisors exercised this provision Tuesday in a 4-1 vote to ask the state board to exempt the northeastern half of the county, a largely agricultural area that includes Dixon, Vacaville and Rio Vista.

The Bay Area district's chief administrative officer, D. J. Callaghan, promptly urged his board yesterday to oppose Solano's petition when it is heard by the state board.

Callaghan said that the area Solano wants to exclude from the district "does cause pollution that blows into the Bay Area."

Contra Costa County Supervisor James P. Kenny warned that if Solano succeeded, then other counties in the district would seek to secede. "They only want less enforcement and less cost," he said of Solano. "To them, the question is which district can they get the best deal from."

There is no district in the Sacramento Valley area yet, but a 1970 state law assures that one will be formed soon. Thus the county's agricultural areas cannot escape regulation, Callaghan noted.

District directors postponed formal action on opposing Solano's bid, pending a presentation of Solano's arguments at 9 a.m. Jan. 22 in district offices, 939 Ellis Street.

Theiller, noting his county supervisors may also move to seek an exemption for a portion of Sonoma, said its representatives also will speak at the Jan. 22 meeting.

Callaghan noted that Sonoma's "only immediate problem" would be the need for a dump in the central part of the county. The county's government, he said, is acting to acquire such a dump.

The district's ban on backyard burning, as well as all its other regulations, will be applied to the northern counties as soon as possible, several directors indicated yesterday. The regulations can take effect 90 days after they are annexed on July 1.

To smooth the way to imposing the regulations in the three counties, district directors voted to pay representatives from the three as "consultants" at the regular directors' fee of $50 a meeting plus expenses until they are seated as directors after July 1. Each of the three counties will get two representatives on the board.

Novato's Foretaste Of Transit Issues

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

The Golden Gate Bridge District's rapid transit plans, which could cost up to $1 billion, still are "years ahead of us," the district board's new president declared last night.

President Lowell Edington of Napa, speaking at a Novato hearing on the plans, said they were ordered by the 1969 Legislature to "show what we can do."

But he said that the district nevertheless will be able to "keep pace with the demand without getting too far in hock — and before you people have to face this great bonded indebtedness."

Edington, who stressed he was voicing his own opinion, said that existing district reserves, combined with expected federal grants, should be able to finance a joint bus and ferry system adequate to relieve congestion for many years.

The plans and their huge price tags were not intended to "scare people," he said. The plans anticipate a bond issue up to $277 million, an issue that would require two-thirds voter approval.

Edington did not offer an estimate of how many years it may be, however, before full rapid transit will be needed. The cost estimates in the plans, drawn by the district's consultants, assumed it would take five years to arrange financing and five years to build a system. It would be completed by 1980 under the consultants' plans.

The plans, under the edict of the 1969 Legislature, must be presented to the 1971 Legislature in April. The district's bonds will be retired this year, and the plans must also include a suggestion on how to dissolve the district in event this is sought by the Legislature.

The plans proposed five alternative transit systems, ranging from "fixed guideway" — perhaps a rail system —to buses on an exclusive right-of-way from Novato to downtown San Francisco. The bus rapid transit would be the cheapest, at $495 million.

Routes proposed in the plans include variations of a second deck on the bridge, an underwater tube and a new bridge to Richmond to link Marin to the Bay Area Rapid Transit District.

—One member of the audience, Fred MacDonald, recalled that bridge engineers eight years ago had vetoed plans to put BART trains on the bridge.

But the bridge district's engineer, Robert E. Shields, said that he and the consultants were "convinced" train cars could be designed to be accommodated on a lower deck. BART's cars were too heavy, he said.

MacDonald, who said he favored freeways over transit, predicted that new freeways will be needed despite any transit system because of the crush of weekend and holiday traffic. "People have enough restrictions Monday through Friday and shouldn't also have them on weekends," he said of transit.

MacDonald also said that San Francisco should restrict growth of its job market, which attracts ever more commuters, until it accepts more freeways. The pollution problem of motor vehicles will be licked, he predicted.

Also expressing doubts about the transit plans was George A. Amaroli, a director of the North Marin County Water District. He predicted that transit would encourage a population growth "unparalleled in mankind."

He proposed instead that gasoline be rationed to force car pools and that commuters riding alone across the bridge be charged a $25 toll.

Shields, however, noted that past proposals to charge tolls on the basis of the number of persons in a car always foundered on the problem of taking the time to make the head count. Such a system would back up traffic severely, Shields said.

As for the impact of transit on population growth, said bridge consultant John Torrey, "growth will occur regardless of transit."

Philip K. Buskirk of Tiburon, a member of the citizens panel advising the district on the plans, added that the cost of doing without transit also would approach $1 billion — just for new freeways. Without transit, he said, Highway 101 would have to be widened to 18 lanes, eating up 1,000 acres for new rights-of-way.

Olympic Art Exhibit Is Set

The Marin Museum Association's latest exhibit, Olympic Art 1972, will feature a series of original graphics interpreting the spirit of the 20th Olympic Games.

The collection of lithographs, serigraphs and posters will be on display on the third floor of the Marin County Civic Center from Jan. 18 through Feb. 26, 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., weekdays.

The collection was provided by the United States Olympic Committee.

It's Been Dark Year —But Bright One, Too

It has been a dark year.

One year ago today, most of the San Francisco Typographical Union members employed in the Independent-Journal's composing room threw up a picket line around the I-J Building instead of reporting for work.

The strike started with violence to equipment. Before the night crew left in the early hours of Jan. 7, 1970, someone sabotaged several pieces of the equipment with which the printers worked.

It continued with other kinds of violence.

ON ITS FIRST night, a bottle of paint was thrown through a window of the home of the mechanical superintendent, and a newspaper delivery van was forced off the road. These incidents set the pattern.

On St. Valentine's Day, a demonstration organized by the union turned into an assault in which virtually every window of the I-J Building was broken. The scene in downtown San Rafael was one to be long remembered with shame and disgust.

Throughout the long year, advertisers and subscribers have been threatened by telephone. Many store windows have been broken. Other business places have been stink-bombed. Goons have tried to halt deliveries of merchandise to I-J advertisers. Tires on automobiles of employees and suppliers have been slashed. Homes of several employees have been firebombed.

THE SAN FRANCISCO Typographical Union has disavowed the violence. But it hired attorneys tc defend seven men arrested in the Valentine's Day melee, a union member charged with firing a shot through a window of the I-J Building, three union members charged with breaking store windows.

On July 4, Alan W. Daly, who had been in charge of converting I-J typesetting to computerized operation, was shot by one of two youths who forced their way into his home. The two subsequently confessed and said they were hired by Frank Thurber, a member of the San Francisco Mailers Union, which is a Typographical Union subsidiary. When Daly died of his wounds, both youths and Thurber were charged with murder. The youths were sentenced to the California Youth Authority; Thurber, convicted, to life imprisonment.

Violence, coercion, intimidation. .

BUT IT HAS BEEN a bright year.

Despite the intimidation, despite the window breaking, Marin business houses have continued to place their advertising where it would reach the most Marin readers.

And despite the threats, readers have stayed with the I-J. Circulation and advertising have declined but little. Thousands of Marinites have gone out of their way to show their support to advertisers who refused to be intimidated.

Despite harassment, non-striking I-J employees — including the vast majority of all those who were on the job a year ago — have continued to endeavor to put out the best possible daily paper under difficulties.

And the I-J has never missed an issue.

Repeatedly, the Typographical Union and the Teamsters Union, which joined its activities although not on strike, have been held in violation of court orders and of the National Labor Relations Act. Where the facts have been presented in court, the forces of intimidation have been found in the wrong. Attempts by the Typographical Union to sustain charges against the I-J have been uniformly rejected by the courts and the National Labor Relations Board.

We hope there is not another such year — ever. But it has proved Marin will not be intimidated.

Hibernation?

When the days are short and gray and the rain comes down steadily, we struggle with a natural inclination to emulate our cousins, the bears, and sleep the winter away.

Other people report they feel the same lassitude in our gray winter days. Add to the weather the annual orgy of over-eating during the holidays, and you have a recipe for relaxation.

No, we couldn't really sleep all winter. But right now we feel like a week in bed might do it.

Sound Talk From Governor On State's Welfare Crisis

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Despite the fact that Gov. Ronald Reagan's second inaugural speech consisted of a "lot of the same," there were some truths in it that will come home to the people of California in the years to come.

The governor's discussion of the welfare situation contains some words of warning that need to be taken to heart. Without comment, therefore, we will provide some of the quotes:

"WELFARE HAS proliferated and grown into a Leviathan of unsupportable dimensions.

"We have economized and even stripped essential public service to feed its appetite.

"Now the economic downturn has brought us to the moment of truth we have avoided for too long a time.

"It has already been suggested that we meet this situation by simply adding to the taxpayers' heavy load. That, of course, is an easy out —for everyone but the taxpayer who already pays too much for government.)

"I'm inclined to believe you didn't send us here to find easy answers. A tax increase, even under the illusion that it would be a temporary expedient, will not resolve the problem. In the first place, temporary taxes have a way of outliving the problems that caused their birth. Government may protest that it never gets the money it needs, but it always manages to find a need for the money it gets. . .

"UNLESS AND UNTIL we face up to and effect complete reform of welfare, we will face a tax increase next year, the year after, and the year after that, on into the future as far as we can see.

"There is no limit to the potential growth of the present welfare structure, short of total redistribution of the earning of all who earn and produce. . .

"Over the years, we've talked about welfare, studied welfare, applied alterations, and streamlined administration where possible, but we've avoided facing up to its lack of a goal...

"The present confusion must be replaced with a program designed to save, rather than destroy, California's greatest resource — its people — a program that will maximize human dignity and salvage the destitute."

This is sound talk and straight talk. It is to be hoped the governor's warning will not have sounded in vain.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

A Sunday fisherman was hauled into court and fined $10 for catching a dozen more black bass than the law allowed. "Do you have anything to say?" queried the magistrate. "Yes, your honor," pleaded the fisherman. "Can you give me six copies of the court order to show my wife and friends?"

The recent bankruptcy proceedings against the once-mighty Penn Central Railroad reminded one Wall Street veteran of the 1929 crash story of the lad who begged his father for a toy railroad set. The father looked up despairingly from the evening stock market report and murmured, "Wait another few days, and I'll buy you the New York Central."

"Okay, you monsters! You're getting smaller and SMALLER AND SMALLER"

Sad History Of F-111 Has Lesson For America

(Reprinted from St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

The story of the TFX fighter plane — the F-111 — may go down in history as a capsule summary of that era in the Pentagon, roughly spanning the '60s, when the military budget went through the roof and the wraps came off of weapons spending. After an eight-year investigation the McClellan subcommittee has issued a report on what it calls the TFX "fiasco," and it contains all the elements that made this period, for the armed forces brass and their allies in defense industry, the golden age of the military-industrial complex.

The TFX originated in a brilliant concept which might have revolutionized weapons procurement and saved a lot of money. It was to be a single all-purpose fighter which both the Navy and the Air Force could use. But the service bureaucracies fought the idea ferociously from the start. Each wanted its own weapons system, its own particular idiosyncrasies of hardware, its own procurement apparatus. As each demanded variations in what was to be a single design, costs began mounting and never leveled off.

ON TOP of this bureaucratic wrange came the disgraceful jockeying among firms, economic interests, states and political powers for the contract. Boeing's design won the approval of most military experts, but in the end General Dynamics, with all kinds of Texas influence behind it, won the contract on a higher bid.

The McClellan committee denounces former Deputy Defense Sec. Roswell L. Gilpatric for the rawest kind of conflict of interest, and so far has has given no convincing defense. Having been intimately connected with top management of General Dynamics before joining the Defense Department, Mr. Gilpatric then played an active and forceful role in persuading Secretary McNamara to give his firm the contract. Sec. of the Navy Korth, whose role in the decision was less vital, nevertheless also acted improperly, for he had been connected with a Texas bank serving General Dynamics.

The web of business connections, political alliances and economic-military influence spread widely through all branches of government and both parties. Let it not be forgotten that after the sordid story had begun to come out, Richard M. Nixon in 1968 hunted Texas votes by promising that the TFX contract, which had become an important source of Texas jobs, would never be canceled by him.

AND WHAT is the upshot of the whole shameful history? The Navy version of the F-111 has been abandoned because it would not fly off carriers. The Air Force version has been grounded after displaying in Vietnam an unfortunate tendency to crash mysteriously. Originally the contract called for production of 1,726 airplanes at an average cost of $3,400,000. To date 538 planes have been built and the average cost is at least 14 million dollars per plane — a four-fold escalation.

A fiasco, the McClellan committee calls it. That is the understatement of the year. Secretary McNamara bears a heavy responsibility before history, and so does everybody else connected with the TFX. But the real lesson is one for the American public, and for Congress. It is for them to resolve that never again must the military establishment be allowed so large a measure of unaudited freedom, so much unmeryted awe and uncritical acceptance, as to get away with anything like a repetition of the TFX story. From secretary of defense down, the Pentagon and its allies have forfeited any claim to be taken on faith.

Defensive Driving Course Offered

The National Safety Council has had an excellent program of defensive driving going here for two years and some 475 persons here in Marin County have taken the course because of its lack of publicity. By means of a student work book, diagrams of accidents, and color motion pictures it demonstrates how to prevent accidents.

We have a group of six volunteer instructors that have been trained by the National Safety Council, and they have willingly served these past two years.

National Retired Teacher Association and the American Association of Retired Persons sponsor these courses, making it possible to offer this course to the NRTA and AARP for $1. A new class in defensive driving will start Jan. 11 at the First Methodist Church in San Rafael from 10 a.m. to noon and will continue for four weeks every Monday morning.

Congress Allows Employes To Set Own Pay Hikes

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Among the bills that slid quietly through Congress during the adjournment rush last week was one in which the lawmakers abdicated what little power they still had over the federal payroll.

Henceforth the salaries of civil service workers and members of the armed forces will be fixed by administrative action within the executive branch of the government.

The President will have the final say, as he does—at least theoretically—in all executive branch decisions. But he will have to rely on studies and recommendations made by federal employes.

THUS A CRUCIAL role in the pay-setting process will be played by civil servants whose salaries will be affected.

The only guideline laid down by Congress is that federal pay scales should be "comparable with private enterprise pay rates for the same levels of work."

Observe that phraseology carefully. Not "for the same jobs," because many federal jobs have no precise counterparts in private industry. The comparison is to be in terms of "levels of work"—a rather vague concept that leaves room for a good many subjective judgments.

And under the new legislation, those subjective judgments will be made by federal employes who have a personal stake in the resulting pay scale.

There is provision for a committee of three persons, appointed by the President from private life, to review proposed wage boosts and to advise the President whether they seem fair and reasonable. But Congress itself normally will have no part in the process. The President will simply proclaim new wage scales and they'll go into effect automatically every Oct. 1.

THE NEW SYSTEM will take effect in 1972. In the meantime, the bill allows for an interim pay boost of about 6 per cent, retroactive to Jan. 1, for 4 million civilian and military personnel.

This will cost $2.2 billion and will boost the federal payroll to $53 billion a year.

The average civil service worker will get an increase of about $584 a year, which will bring his annual pay to $10,311.

There was a time, some years back, when government worjers were clearly underpaid. But 10 across-the-board raises in the past 10 years have made federal service one of the better-paid occupations in America.

For example, Civil Service grade 11, which includes office managers, accounts and computer programmers, now commands a top salary of $15,478. The top salary (paid automatically for those with sufficient time in service) is $18,449 in grade 12, $21,791 in grade 13, $25,538 in grade 14, $29,752 in grade 15, $33,627 in grade 16, $34,810 in grade 17, and $35,505 in grade 18.

And that's before the pending 6 per cent increase takes effect.

If the new law results in additional wage boosts every Oct. 1, as it is widely expected to do, working for the government may become one of the most financially rewarding careers that a person can pursue. Moreover, federal employes also have a high degree of job security, one of the best retirement programs in existence, and a good many other fringe benefits.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Story Of 1956 Repeated In New Polish 'Reforms'

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Since the "bread and freedom" riots of 1956, relations between church and state in 90 per cent Catholic Poland have reflected accurately the state's confidence in its own security.

Thus, the new regime headed by party leader Edward Gierek may be expected to go to considerable lengths to establish good relations with Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski as it attempts to patch over the damage left by December's anti-government demonstrations.

The outspoken Polish primate already has listed his demands including freedom of expression and conscience and what Madison Avenue might call a truth-in-advertising policy to establish confidence between government and the governed.

For his part, Gierek said the party and government expected to profit from the experiences of recent weeks.

WITH A CHANGE in the cast of characters, the script so far reads about as it did in 1956.

Then, as now, the riots had their roots in economic unrest.

Then, as now, there were confessions of party errors and promises of reform.

Wladislaw Gomulka replaced Edward Ochab as first secretary of the Polish party, just as Gierek now has replaced Gomulka.

Catechism returned to the schools and in 1957 relations between church and state had improved to such an extent that the church called for support of Gomulka.

THE REFORMS lived only so long as it took the leadership to re-establish the party grip.

In 1959 the catechism was taken out of the schools.

New pressures were applied to Polish youth, and only two Catholic high schools remained in operation. Minor seminaries were closed down and seminarians made subject to the draft.

Heavy taxes were levied against church properties, including the Catholic university at Lublin.

As the church became more and more subject to government persecution, any semblance of freedom of the press disappeared and the confidence gap between the government and the people widened as the disparity between government words and deeds became more and more apparent.

IT WAS a developing situation made to order for violent unrest.

Average wages came to only about two-thirds of what it cost to support a family of four.

A crazy-quilt pattern of construction had left the country over-spent. Expensive construction equipment stood idle as the government found itself forced to abandon five out of every 15 building projects.

In the 15-19 age group, 23 per cent were unemployed, dissatisfied and ready to foment trouble.

And then as now the government sought its curb in a reduction in the price of inferior television sets and an increase in the price of food.

If You Wish An Early Fall, Gaze Into The Crystal Ball

WASHINGTON — This is the time of year when those of us in the crystal ball business must reveal what our vibrations tell us will happen in 1971.

The science of predicting is so exact that last year I was wrong on only one prediction out of 155. The prediction I erred on was that J. Edgar Hoover would retire and take the FBI with him.

I have had some strong vibrations for 1971 and here they are:

JACKIE KENNEDY will come into a windfall of money and will no longer have to make her own clothes.

The Marlboro man will give up smoking, and go back to chewing tobacco.

Three hundred and thirty-five thousand Spiro Agnew watches will be recalled because of a faulty mainspring.

"Krushchev's Memoirs" will be bought for a film, but in order to guarantee a box office, the producers will add 32 orgy scenes at the Kremlin showing Stalin as a dirty old man.

Former President Lyndon Baines Johnson's book will be published and will reveal that the person responsible for all his wrong decisions was Jack Valenti.

TRICIA NIXON will be married, but Sen. Edmund Muskie will not be invited to the wedding.

The John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts will open in September, and at President Nixon's insistence, Guy Lombardo will conduct the orchestra.

David Eisenhower will become the manager of the Washington Senators.

At the personal request of Princess Margaret, Queen Elizabeth will make Lord Snowdon high commissioner of the island of Tonga in the Pacific Ocean. Although Princess Margaret will not go with him, she hopes it will stop the rumors that they are not getting along together.

David Frost will ask for political asylum in the United States after being turned down for a knighthood in Great Britain.

RALPH NADER will marry Charlotte Ford and take over her father's family business.

Many priests will discover this year that marriage isn't what it's cracked up to be.

Panty raids will be resumed on the Berkeley campus.

With more people buying police dogs, the crime rate in the country will go down, but there will be a marked increase in the cases of rabies.

Sales of the "how to do it" sex books will have peaked early in 1971 and will be replaced in popularity by books on how to make your own wine.

Mayor John Lindsay will be the door prize at the New York Policemen's Benevolent Ball.

And finally, my vibrations tell me that in 1971 President Richard Nixon will make something perfectly clear.

Both Good And Bad News For Snorers

LONDON (UPI) —When is one deaf ear a blessing? When the other partner in the marriage snores, says Dr. I. G. Robin, a consulting surgeon to three British hospitals.

Dr. Robin took a look at what he calls "The Serious Problem of Snoring" in an article in the Medical News-Tribune and there is both bad and good news in it for all those who do not live alone.

"In my opinion," he wrote, "50 per cent of snorers can be cured, 30 per cent can be helped by palliative measures."

"But," he added, "20 per cent seem hopelessly incurable at the present time."

It is, said Dr. Robin, a baffling condition. The commonest cause is nasal obstruction yet many persons with marked nasal obstruction do not snore at all. And not all snorers snore all the time.

Sleeping with the mouth open is supposed to cause snoring. But many people asleep with their mouths open do not snore at all. Old people are supposed to snore most. Yet, said Dr. Robin, "I went to two large geriatric wards thinking I could study snores en masse. There were many persons flat out with wide open mouths and not a sound to be heard."

Can anything be done?

"In adults three conditions are the commonest—often two or even three being present. They are allergy, deflected nasal septum and collapsed alae nasi (sinus). I am sure allergic factors should be investigated more often in snores," Dr. Robin said.

"I had one man who stopped snoring after omitting tomatoes from the diet; another's problem was cheese. Hypertensive drugs and aspirin may occasionally be cited. Two of my most grateful patients were men to whom the only advice I gave was to lose two stone (28 pounds) which they did.

PARENTS HELP

Road To Recovery For 'Bad' School

By RUTH YOUNGBLOOD

HONOLULU (UPI)—Youngsters, high on glue, lounged in the hallways, daring teachers to "do something about it."

Gangs roamed the grounds, terrorizing students and faculty members.

Beatings and hijackings directed at members of minority groups were common.

If this sounds like school is there anything you can do to change it?

Stevenson Intermediate School in Honolulu was plagued with just such frightening problems until a group of parents became part of a special program designed to turn a bad school into a good one.

In two years, thanks to the program, Stevenson has gone from a school described by a state legislator as a "bloody disgrace" to one which can make Hawaii proud.

The road to recovery began when Mrs. June Leong became principal and had the courage to acknowledge the problems she found and to ask for parents' help.

"Many of the youngsters had motivational difficulties," she said. "Their feelings accumulated to a point where they couldn't handle them.

"They tuned school out, so we had to find a way to tune them back in."

Stevenson is a city school drawing on youngsters of many racial and economic backgrounds. Mrs. Leong believes Stevenson's success story could be imitated wherever concerned parents and school administrators join forces in a similar program.

One of the first things Mrs. Leong did was extend the lunch period from 35 minutes to 65 minutes and make "fun-learning" activities available.

"When I got here, the youngsters were warehoused in the cafeteria during lunch," she said. Realizing that they needed a respite from classes, parents as a starter were invited to conduct a wide range of lunch period activities, including sports, bridge lessons, fishing, camera and pet clubs.

"The principal has to open the doors and want parents involved," Mrs. Leong said. "For us, they supervise the (non-class) activities, but their main reason for giving up their time and coming is to show they care about the students and the school."

Each day a number of cooperating parents just walk around the grounds, getting to know the students.

Mrs. Leong has found that most of the 1,350 seventh, eighth and ninth graders do participate in the activities offered. "But they don't have to," she said. "I realize that young people need time to be by themselves, too, just to think."

The school also instituted a program whereby students who were troublesome and openly manifested hostility were placed in classes with teachers trained to handle motivational difficulties.

Instead of strict discipline, the staff has responded to these students with respect and gentle guidance. Good behavior is rewarded. For instance parents raised enough money by cooking and selling Hawaiian delicacies to send one special class to Hawaii's Neighbor Islands.

In the 1968-69 school year, 103 students were suspended. The figure dropped to six the year after Mrs. Leong became principal and the parent-participation program went into action.

"There is a tenure of happiness here now," the principal said. "Disciplinary problems are rare and the atmosphere of fear is gone."

Audie Murphy Is Cleared On Weapons Count

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Audie Murphy, America's most decorated soldier of World War II, was cleared Tuesday in Superior Court of charges he illegally possessed blackjacks.

Murphy, 45, now a producer-actor, testified he was authorized to possess the weapons because he was a special officer with two law enforcement agencies.

Judge James Kolts granted a defense motion for dismissal. The charges stemmed from police allegations they found the weapons in Murphy's house and car May 28 when he was arrested on assault and battery charges in connection the alleged beating of a dog trainer. He subsequently was acquitted of those charges.

Convict Labor Ruling Given

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Convicts cannot be contracted to work for private employers for profit, the State Court of Appeal ruled Tuesday.

Justice Norman Elkington said in a written opinion that such practices by the state are a burden on the free labor market.

The court said part of the convicts' wages are retained by the state and not credited to the convicts' account. For example, the state deducted $5 a day per man for "room and board" which was furnished by the Deuel Vocational Institution and the California Institution for men at Chino in Merced County where the men were hired to harvest figs.

People scoffed when Robert Fulton launched the first successful steamboat in 1807, and still were not convinced of it's practicality when it traveled 150 miles in 32 hours on it's maiden voyage. But these same people were convinced of the beauty, quality and workmanship of Early American furniture and used it in their homes before Mr. Fulton even dreamed of a steamboat. RESOLUTION NO. 3979
RESOLUTION OF PRELIMINARY DETERMINATION TO UNDERTAKE SPECIAL ASSESSMENT PROCEEDINGS AND SETTING TIME AND PLACE OF HEARING THEREON, EAST SAN RAFAEL DRAINAGE ASSESSMENT DISTRICT NO. 1, CITY OF SAN RAFAEL, MARIN COUNTY, CALIFORNIA

WHEREAS, the City Council of the City of San Rafael, Marin County, California, has adopted a map showing the boundaries of proposed East San Rafael Drainage Assessment District No. 1, City of San Rafael, Marin County, California, which said map is entitled "Proposed Boundaries of East San Rafael Drainage Assessment District No. 1, City of San Rafael, Marin County, California:"

AFTERMATH — Shattered glass lines the sidewalk along B Street in front of the I-J plant following the massive Valentines Day riot staged on behalf of Typographical Union 21. A total of seven police officers, one highway patrolman, six I-H security guards and three demonstrators were injured in the malee. Twelve demonstrators were arrested.

FIRST DAY — San Francisco International Typographical Union 21 pickets march along the driveway of the Independent-Journal's loading dock during the first day of the strike, Jan. 7, 1970. The day was marked by sabotaged composing room equipment and vandalism to I-J delivery trucks.

Anniversary Of ITU Strike At I-J

The printers' strike against the Independent-Journal — most violent labor dispute in Marin history — entered its second year today.

The walkout, which began Jan. 7, 1970, has had far-reaching effects. It has spread from the sidewalks around the newspaper plant into homes and businesses.

Violence, though disavowed by striking San Francisco Typographical Union 21, has been widespread. Advertisers' businesses have been attacked. The homes of I-J employees remaining on the job were the targets of arsonists. An I-J employee was slain, and a member of San Francisco Mailers Union 18 — an affiliate of the typographical union — has been sentenced to life in prison for his part in the crime.

The strike came after a breakdown in contract talks which centered around four main issues:

1. Reproduction or "bogus" — the practice of setting into type and then throwing away material which already has been published.

2. Discharge procedures — the union's demand that appeals by discharged employees be adjudicated by the union alone.

3. Grievance procedures — the right of the management to direct work pending settlement of a grievance.

4. Foreman's membership in the union — the union's demand that the composing room foreman fall under union disciplinary powers.

None of the issues has been fully resolved. Negotiations have been futile, and strike matters have wound up in courts.

About 45 printers struck the morning of Jan. 7, and other union employees — though not all — stayed out in sympathy. The night before, I-J typesetting equipment and delivery trucks were sabotaged. When other employees tried to enter the plant after picket lines went up, they were harrassed and, on several occasions, jostled and assaulted.

That marked the start of a year of strike-connected violence which has spread from Marin to as far away as Santa Clara County. I-J advertisers from San Francisco to Santa Rosa have reported attacks by window-smashing vandals, much of the damage coming after warnings to stop doing business with the paper.

In San Jose, a large warehouse, source of newsprint for the I-J and other Northern California newspapers, was destroyed by a blaze set by an arsonist, causing $500,000 damage.

In Marin, property damage suffered by the I-J, its employees and advertisers at the hands of vandals has run into the tens of thousands of dollars.

More than 20 persons — many of them typographical union members — have been charged with strike-related crimes.

Several prolabor rallies have been held. One, on Valentine's Day outside the I-J, resulted in window damage and other vandalism to the plant and the arrest of 12 persons and injuries to 14 others, including several policemen who tried to clear a dense crowd of chanting pickets away from the plant.

Of the 12 arrested, seven went on trial in Solano County Superior Court on charges ranging from assault on a police officer to participating in a riot. A jury in the trial was still deliberating today.

The others arrested that day are awaiting trial in Vallejo Municipal Court.

Daly, a systems design analyst with the I-J, died of gunshot wounds suffered when two armed youths burst into his home on July 4. The Mailers' Union member, Frank J. Thurber, was convicted by a San Francisco jury of first degree murder, conspiracy and first degree burglary and robbery in connection with the slaying.

The prosecution contended Thurber hired the two youths, who earlier admitted entering the Daly home and were sentenced to long-term commitment with the California Youth Authority. They are Richard A. Wamsley and Larry G. Rutherford, both 17, and, like Thurber, from San Bruno.

Pending also in Solano County is the trial of three printers arrested in Strawberry in June on suspicion of conspiracy to break windows of businesses which advertise in the I-J. Also pending in that county is the trial of Henry A. Stacy of San Francisco, arrested in June for allegedly firing a bullet through an I-J window.

Another rally staged was on July 25, when farm worker leader Cesar Chavez led a peaceful parade of about 1,200 union members and their supporters from San Anselmo to San Rafael. Chavez, as typographical union leaders have throughout, called for economic boycott of advertisers.

Last month, four unions and several of their officials were found guilty of criminal and civil contempt of a federal court injunction prohibiting secondary boycott activity against advertisers. The contempt action, filed by attorneys for the National Labor Relations Board, stemmed from hit-and-run picketing in November.

During the picketing, truck drivers making deliveries were threatened and vandalism against advertisers increased.

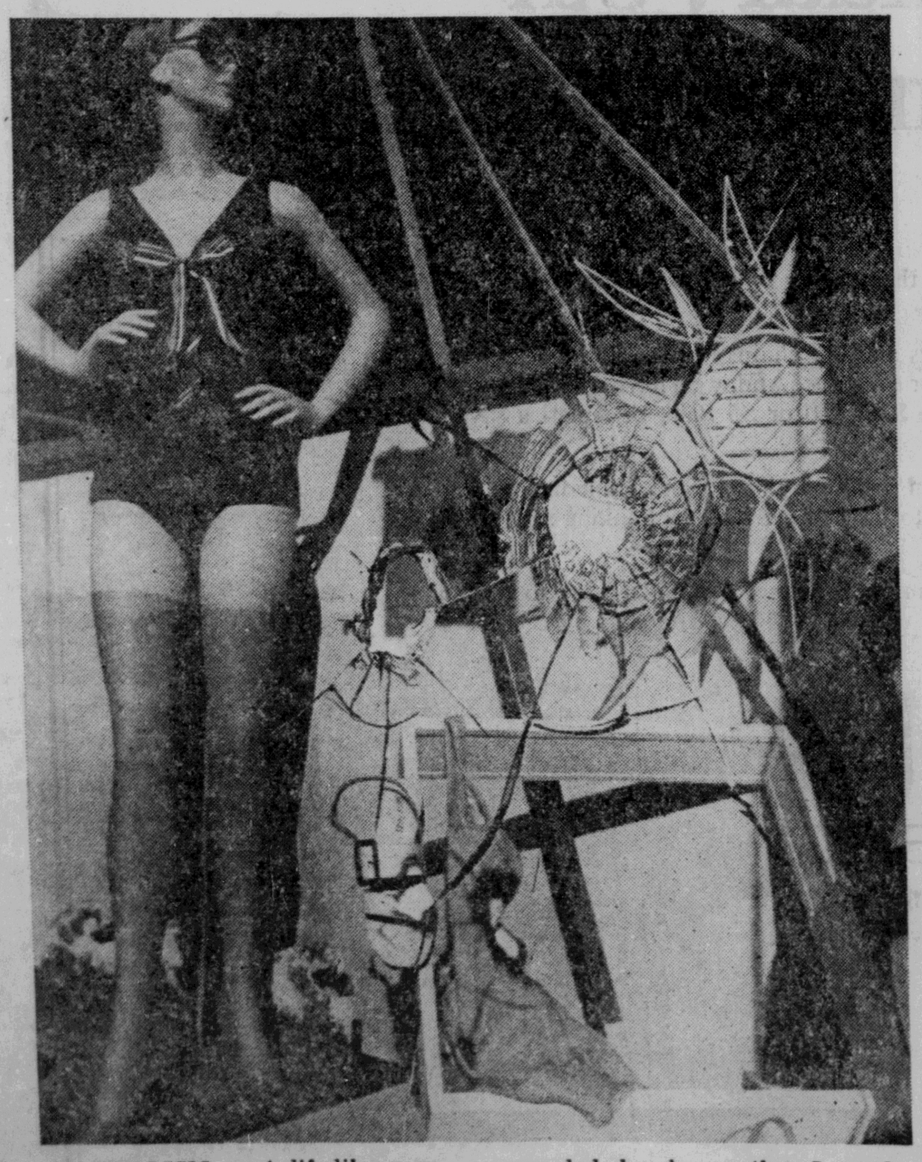
Found guilty of criminal contempt were Local 21 and its organizer, Donald Abrams; Teamsters Union 70 of Oakland and its president, James R. Muniz, and Teamsters Union 85 of San Francisco and its business manager and recording secretary, Timothy J. Richardson.

Found guilty of civil contempt were local 21's vice president, John J. DeMartini of Mill Valley, and the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union 10. Judge William T. Sweigert has set Jan. 21 for fines or sentences.

It was one of several cases reaching the National Labor Relations Board during the year. In another, an examiner ruled that Local 21 had illegally disciplined a member, the composing room foreman, for firing a fellow employee. In another, the NLRB itself upheld an examiner's decision that three unions, including Local 21, had engaged in an unfair labor practice by picketing a San Francisco pier that contained newsprint bound for the I-J.

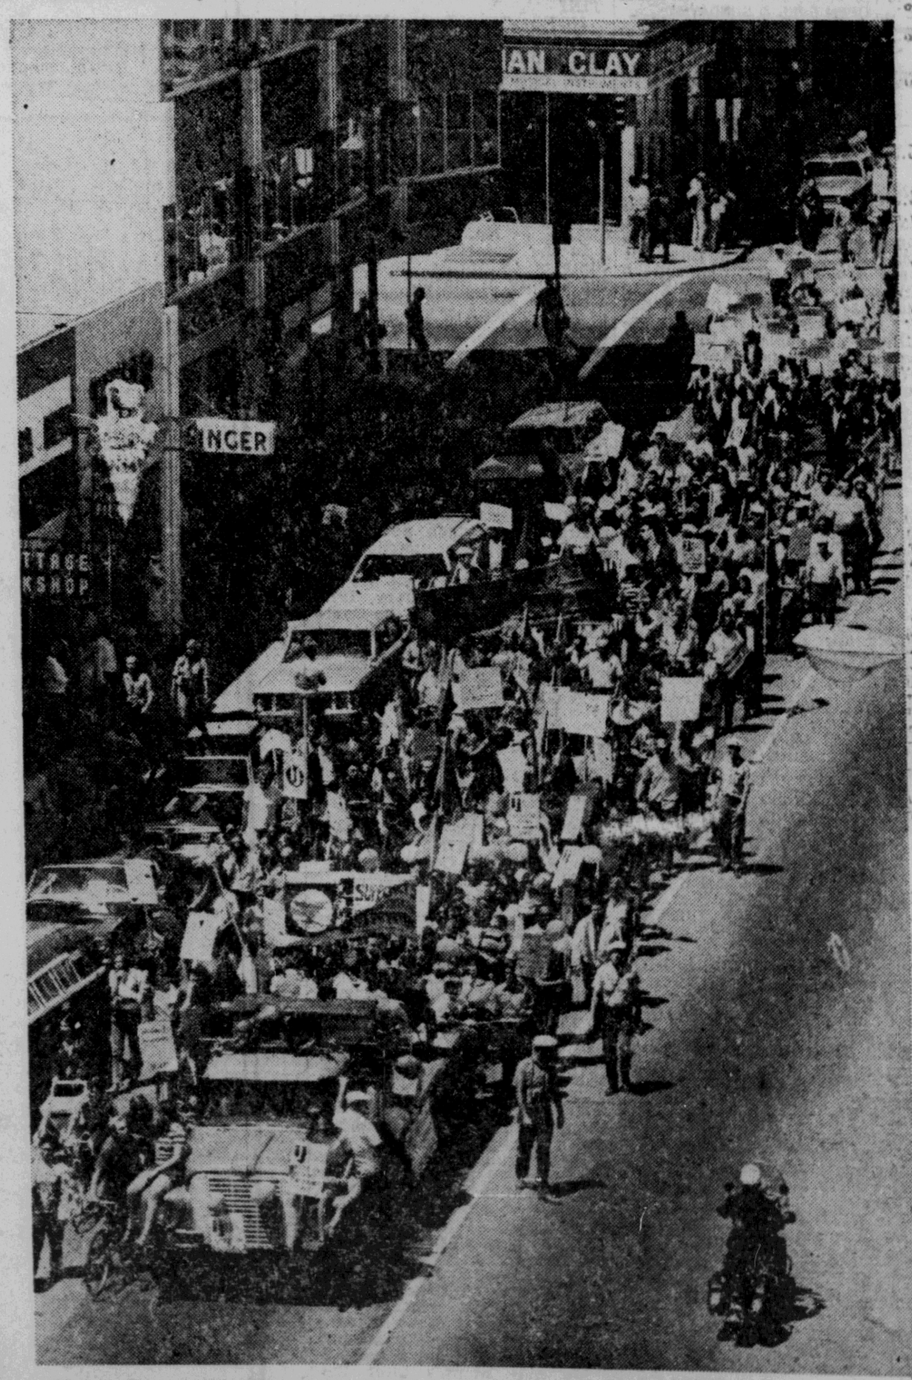
Local 21 and labor officials have insisted the NLRB has discriminated against the typographical union in its decisions and that the I-J has failed to bargain faithfully, but the NLRB has rejected the complaints.

SECONDARY BOYCOTT — Typographical Union 21 supporters picket outside the Emporium at Northgate Shopping Center. The illegal secondary boycott, which began in March, ended June 24 when Typographical Union 21 was found guilty in federal court of contempt of court for staging the boycotts. Eight Marin and San Francisco stores were picketed.



VANDALISM — A life-like mannequin is left undamaged at Stan's for Sports in Novato after the store was victimized by night-riding slingshot vandals. The damage to Stan's windows preceded by hours the June 3 arrest of three printers on suspicion of vandalizing I-J advertizers. Damage to windows and supplies has run into the tens of thousands of dollars.

CLEARING PATH — Police in riot garb attempt to clear a path for car entering the I-J's loading dock during the Feb. 14 union rally. The scene exploded minutes later with scuffles between police and union supporters who tried to block the vehicle's path.



CHAVEZ MARCH — Led by a truck mounted band, hundreds of unions sympathizers parade through San Rafael in support of striking typographical Union 21. Called by farm workers organizer Cesar Chavez, the rally held July 25 ended at Albert Park with a plea for a nonviolent boycott of businesses advertising in the I-J.

Report Ties Angela To CRLA Feuding

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A Reagan Administration report charges that antipoverty lawyers tried to arrange a meeting in prison between Angela Davis and the convict brother of a youth killed in the Marin County Hall of Justice shoot-out.

The charge came in a 283-page report made public Wednesday. The administration called the report "documentation" supporting Gov. Ronald Reagan's veto of a $1.8 million federal grant to the California Rural Legal Assistance (CRLA).

The CRLA said it had no knowledge of the alleged meeting plans. It accused the administration of using "McCarthy-style" tactics.

The report also implied the CRLA attorneys "involved themselves" in the "Soledad Seven" case arising from the slaying a year ago of a prison guard at Soledad Prison.

The report, prepared by the governor's antipoverty chief, Lewis K. Uhler, a former John Birch Society member, was presented to the Nixon Administration's antipoverty officials in Washington.

It said "prior to the court house incident, attorney Faye Stender and CRLA attorneys interceded at Soledad in an attempt to arrange a visit for Angela Davis to meet with the older Jackson brother.

"Since these cases are currently awaiting trial, further comment would not be in order at this time," the report added.

Mrs. Stender is the attorney for George Jackson, a Soledad convict charged with slaying a guard. Jackson's brother, Jonathan, 17, was killed in the courthouse shootout at San Rafael last summer in which four persons were slain.

Miss Davis is accused of murder for allegedly providing guns used in the escape attempt by two convicts.

"I don't know anything about that," said Martin Glick, director of litigation for CRLA and the organization's second man in command.

Glick charged Reagan was "attempting to justify the veto by trying to link us with Angela Davis and other people that are unpopular with the public."

"We have no cases involving the Soledad brothers or any cases involving the murder disputes in Soledad prison," he said. "It is a clear case of trying in McCarthy-style to provide guilt by association."

He said "we rarely handle cases out of prisons" and said the federally financed legal aid group is prohibited from handling criminal cases.

Reagan said three of the accused convicts "have been visited by either CRLA staff attorneys or CRLA staff members for conferences." The documentation did not say whether the attorneys approached the defendants as private lawyers.

When the governor announced his veto, he said CRLA attorneys were not properly serving the poor and had violated federal regulations which state that antipoverty lawyers cannot act in criminal cases.

Reagan said he had documents showing that a CRLA attorney "subtly threatened an inmate at Soledad and suggested that the inmate, at best, suppress evidence, and, at worst, commit perjury in the Soul Brothers murder case."

He said he had testimony by the directing legal secretary and office manager of CRLA's Salinas office from Sept., 1966, to June 1969 on the Soledad case.

The woman, according to the governor, stated:

"Cases were accepted for clients charged with criminal offenses ... many conscientious objector cases to avoid the draft were accepted and defended by (CRLA attorney Mr. Daniels) in federal courts.

"Mr. Daniels was involved with the inmates at Soledad prison in the preparation of cases to be presented in court by the inmates seeking writs, new trials and so forth."

The report also cited these examples as other violations of federal regulations by the CRLA:

— A newspaper called "People's Paper" was published in the Marysville office of CRLA and listed CRLA attorney Peter Haberfield as a contributing writer-editor. It said one article called the U.S. attorney general "Pig Mitchell" and urged Negroes to arm themselves.

—The CRLA "has acted as attorney for entrepreneurs who staged a rock festival in El Centro Dec. 15, 1970, at Buckland Park."

—Monroe Carter Taylor, a member of the CRLA advisory board in Modesto, said he was told by Assembly candidate Malcovio Lopez that the CRLA had contributed to his campaign and had printed campaign brochures and bumper stickers for him free of charge.

San Diego Mayor Is Cleared

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)— Mayor Frank Curran took a felt-tipped pen and scrawled "not for rent" on a poster on the door of his office.

Amid hugs, kisses and shrieks Wednesday by secretaries and stenographers, Curran returned to his office after being acquitted by a Superior Court jury on charges of bribery and conspiracy.

The former president of the National League of Cities characterized the trial as a "disservice" here and in Southern California and said he thought it would discourage qualified persons from seeking office at the risk of exposure such as he faced.

But he added, "I don't think it's hurt me one iota."

A nine-man, three-woman jury returned the innocent verdict after it deliberated nearly nine hours. It was the first in the cases of eight public officials and a campaign worker accused of various counts of bribery and conspiracy. Specifically, they were accused of accepting money for their support in approving taxi fare increases in 1967.

Charles Pratt, former president of San Diego Yellow Cab Co., testified he gave Curran $3,500 to help get the cab fare increases passed in 1967. Pratt has been granted immunity for his testimony.

Curran testified he accepted the money but no offer was made and the donations were recorded among his campaign contributions.

Curran said after the trial it now would be harder for candidates to get contributions. He said that according to the prosecutor, nobody could offer any help to a candidate without being in violation of the law.

Curran's trial began Dec. 7. Two other officials, former state assemblyman Tom Hom and councilman Mike Schaefer are on trial on similar charges. The others are scheduled to go on trial in the near future.

State Will Sell Land At Squaw

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The state plans to call for bids next week on the sale of its multimillion-dollar Sierra land holdings at Squaw Valley, site of the 1960 Winter Olympics.

Parks and Recreation Department spokesman Dick Thompson said Wednesday that bids on the property will be received April 2.

"What it amounts to is all the property the state has at Squaw Valley, including all the concession agreements," Thompson said. He said 1,220 acres of land were involved, plus the Olympic Village complex, ski lifts and other improvements.

Squaw Valley State Recreation Area now is shared with private operators. Cirtics say the state has lost $300,000 a year on it.

The sale would be the second major property transaction announced by the Reagan administration in a matter of months. Last year it announced it was selling 230 acres next to the California Exposition in Sacramento.

The 1967 Legislature authorized Parks Director William Penn Mott Jr. to sell state interests at Squaw Valley, subject to legislative approval.

The operation was delayed by complications including a land swap with the federal government. The state received 1,200 acres of U.S. Forest Service land at the ski lift area in trade for 7,000 acres in Plumas County.

Traffic Toll Drops In '70

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The nation's highway death toll for 1970 dropped sharply, indicating the government's auto safety standards are beginning to pay dividends in human lives, traffic experts said today.

A preliminary survey by the National Highway Safety Bureau indicates 55,300 persons died in traffic accidents in 1970, a decline of 1,100 from 1969.

The decline was the first since 1967, the year the government's initial safety standards took effect. Between 1967 and 1969 the death toll increased at an average of 2 per cent a year —but this compared with an average of almost 7 per cent for the five years previous to 1967, a spokesman for the Transportation Department said.

Precise plans for additions and improvements to properties owned by Tiburon developer Fred G. Zelinsky have been endorsed by the city's planning commission.

Planning director Wayne E. Moody said the commission Monday recommended approval of the plans. Final approval must come from the city council.

Approved were a restaurant-bar-lounge at 7 Main Street; a two-story office addition to Tiburon Vintners, 72 Main Street; and a lounge addition to Tiburon Lodge, 1651 Tiburon Boulevard.

The commission also recommended approval of an amendment to the city's subdivision ordinance containing technical changes in submission requirements and expiration dates for minor subdivision applications.

Allen Takes On Task Of Making Redskins Winners

WASHINGTON (UPI) — George Allen, fired as a winner in Los Angeles, took on the task today of making winners out of the Washington Redskins who have been losers in every pro football season except one since 1955.

Allen was signed as head coach and general manager Wednesday only minutes after Redskin President Edward Bennett Williams announced the dismissal of Bill Austin who had been given the coaching post after the death of Vince Lombardi last September.

Exactly one week before, the 48-year-old Allen had been fired by Los Angeles Ram owner Dan Reeves despite his five-year record of 49-17-4. Allen and Reeves did not get along.

After flying in from the West Coast for a Washington news conference, the new Redskin coach declared his goal: "I plan to win in 1971."

He stopped short of predicting he would produce a championship team next season.

"To say that we will win the whole ball of wax would be presumptuous," Allen told a questioner. "But when you come in the dressing room after the games next year, you will be proud of the Redskins and they will be proud of themselves."

He said he hoped to meet, before returning to Los Angeles later today, with Washington's aging star quarterback Sonny Jurgensen and other Redskin players in the area.

His first major task, he said, will be to strengthen the Redskins defensively. "The big thing —the No. 1 goal —is to improve the defense," Allen explained. "You can't win a championship —even with a quarterback like Jurgensen — without a great defense."

Nor was he going to be patient about building a winner in the nation's capital. "I've never believed in long-range planning," the new Redskin football boss commented. "If the opportunity comes to get a needed player through a trade, we'll trade."

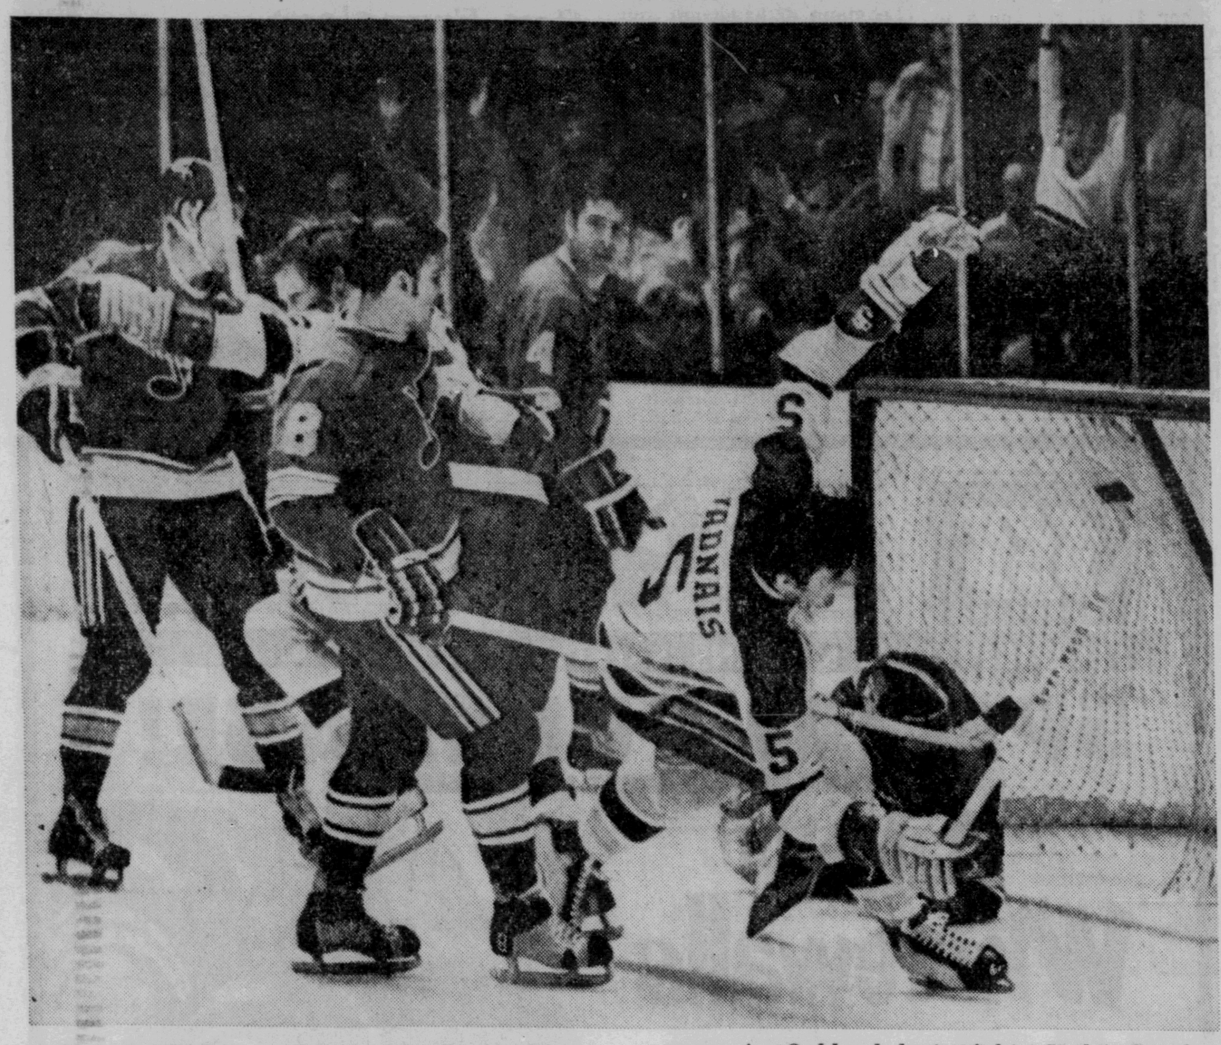
On the other hand, he was pleased that the Redskins this year will have their first round draft choice for the first time since 1967.

When he took over a losing Los Angeles club in 1966 as a first-time pro head coach, Allen traded shrewdly and drafted smartly to convert the Rams into a championship contender almost immediately.

He stressed defense —a field in which he won his reputation as an assistant to the Chicago Bears under George Halas. The Los Angeles "Fearsome Foursome" anchored on Dave Jones, Merlin Olsen and Roger Brown featured the Rams rise to powerhouse caliber.

However, his Los Angeles teams never won a pro championship despite their winning ways. They were NFL conference leaders in 1967 and 1969 but were knocked off in playoffs.

In his new job, Allen becomes the fourth Washington head coach in less than two years. Lombardi replaced Otto Graham on Feb. 6, 1969, and turned out a winning team with a 7-5-2 record but was stricken with cancer and died last September. Austin was named Lombardi's successor and wound up with a 6-8 showing.



SEALS SCORE — California's Dennis Hextall (partially obscured at left) raises stick in triumph after scoring goal against St. Louis in first period of National Hockey League game in Oakland last night. Seals' Carol Vadnais slides into Blues' goalie Glenn Hall. The Seals won, 6-3.

Comeback Victory For Marin

With three of their players scoring in double figures, the high-flying College of Marin Tars opened their Camino Norte Conference basketball season in victorious fashion last night, downing Skyline College in San Bruno, 64-58.

It was the Tars' 16th victory of the season, their 11th straight, against a single loss, a record that has given the Marin team ninth ranking among junior colleges in California.

Last night the Tars' record, best in the state, appeared in jeopardy as Skyline jumped off to a 26-23 lead, but then Coach John Panagakis' Kentfield crew went on a 41-point second half spree to sew it up.

Roosevelt Green tallied 21 points for Marin and was ably assisted in the scoring charge by Joe Smith with 17 and Ken Gommeringer with 11. Green and Smith have been averaging 18 points apiece in Marin's best season in several years.

The Tars open their home conference season Saturday night at Kentfield against Solano College of Vallejo.

Marin had a cold first half, shooting only 30 per cent from the floor, but then Coach Panagakis unleashed his crew on a full court press in the second half that resulted in several Skyline turnovers. Smith tallied 14 of his points in the second half and Green chipped in 12. Also, the shooting of Gommeringer kept the pressure on the upset minded Skyline quintet.

Slumping Warriors Fall To The Braves

Thurmond Is Tossed From Game

BUFFALO, N. Y. (UPI)— Nate Thurmond, the hottest San Francisco Warrior of late, got cooled off in a hurry Wednesday night.

After only nine minutes of action against the Buffalo Braves, referee Mark Mano decided he had enough and gave the towering center the heave-ho.

Going into the National Basketball Association contest, Thurmond averaged 27 points in the last 10 games. As it turned out, the loss hurt the Warriors, who dropped their third straight game, 115-108, to the Braves, who ended an eight-game drought.
game drought.

Despite the loss of Thurmond, the Warriors battled back—twice wiping out 10-point deficits—only to lose when Fritz Williams was whistled for a technical foul. That, plus a five-point spurt by Don May in a 57-second span, put the game out of reach and evened San Francisco's record at 23-23.

Jerry Lucas and Clyde Lee carried the Warriors' attack with 25 points apiece. In addition, Lucas pulled in 24 rebounds.

A SMALL AMOUNT

Dope Is Found In Liston Home

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)— Small quantities of marijuana and heroin were found in Sonny Liston's plush home Wednesday and the coroners office said after an autopsy there appeared to be needle marks on the arms of the former heavyweight champion.

However, officials said the initial autopsy gave no clues to the cause of death. Toxicological and microscopic tests were to be conducted today to determine what was in Liston's blood at the time of death.

Liston, self-styled "bad guy of the ring," was found dead Tuesday night.

Sheriff's Capt. Gene Clark said about one-fourth of an ounce of heroin was found in a balloon in the bedroom where the body was discovered. Clark also said an ounce of marijuana was discovered. He said there was no indication of foul play.

The ex-champion's wife, Geraldine, discovered Liston's body when she returned home from a 10-day trip. Newspapers dated from Dec. 29 were stacked on the porch of the home at the 16th tee of the Sahara-Nevada Country Club. Deputy Coroner Dick Mayne said Liston had been dead about a week.

The glowering 6-foot-1, 200-pound ex-convict began his professional boxing career at 21 after developing his skills while serving a prison term for robbery. His career total in a 17-year span was 50 wins and four losses. He won by knockouts in 39 bouts and was knocked out himself three times.

He beat 33 of 34 opponents before winning the championship from Floyd Patterson Sept. 25, 1962, on a first-round knockout. In a rematch July 22, 1963, he again kayoed Patterson in the first round.

He lost the title to Cassius Clay Feb. 25, 1964, on a seventh round knockout and lost a rematch to Clay in the first round May 25, 1965.

Liston's purses from title fights came to nearly $4 million and he lived in the style of a wealthy former champion.

Pro Golf Kicks Off Today In L.A.; Cerrudo Is Back

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Defending champion Billy Casper and 138 other pro golfers including Arnold Palmer and Lee Trevino kick off the $7 million 1971 pro tour today in the first round of the $110,000 Glen Campbell Los Angeles Open.

Five amateurs round out the field of 144.

All of the pros would like to get off to a good head start (not to be confused with the poverty program) in this lucrative event, the first of 63 scheduled for 1971 by the Professional Golfers Association with prize money totaling more than $7 million.

Casper and young Hale Irwin of Boulder, Colo., tied at the end of regulation play in the 1970 open with scores of 276, eight under par for the 72 holes. The cool Casper who will be 40 come June 24 birdied the first extra hole to win it and then took three more titles including the prestigious Masters. Wednesday Casper shot a three-under-par 68 to win one bracket of the pro-amateur prelude.

Trevino won two championships in 1970 and was top moneyman for the second year with $157,037. Casper was No. 2 with $147,372. Irwin was No. 49 with $46,870 and he should take heart from that position—the 49ers have done all right from the Gold Rush down through history.

Palmer, who failed to win a tournament for the first time in his 15-year pro career during 1970 collected plenty loot—$128,853.

Palmer is a threetime winner here. At 41, he says he's driving the ball longer and straighter than ever although he lacks a bit of confidence in his putting. In boxing, a fighter's legs are the first thing to go. In golf, it seems to be a pro's putting that fails him with age.

The L.A. Open is one of the oldest tournaments in the United States and this is No. 45. The event goes back to 1926 when it was won by Harry Cooper.

The scene is the 6,800-yard Rancho Park municipal course, a par 35-36—71 layout that is a good test of golf with its rather narrow fairways, small greens, a variety of full grown trees plus a few out-of-bounds holes which are well-trapped.

Ron Cerrudo, former San Rafael young man now living in Napa, will be returning to the tour in this tournament. He missed most of last year with a sore back.

The Seals Just Love Home Ice

OAKLAND (UPI) —Home cooking does wonders for the California Golden Seals.

They removed some of the tarnish off their recent trip, in which they lost all five games, by whipping the St. Louis Blues 6-3 before a feeble audience of 3,476 at the Coliseum-Arena Wednesday night.

Nine of the 12 Seals victories this season have comeon home ice. The win over St. Louis was especially palatable because it was only the third time in four seasons that the Seals were able to beat the Blues.

What crumpled St. Louis Wednesday night was a four-goal second period that boosted the Seals lead to 6-0.

California goaltender Gary Smith tired in the final period and lost his shutout when Jim Lorentz and Red Berenson scored within 20 seconds of each other, and Tim Ecclestone beat him again with 2:52 remaining.

Dennis Hextall collected two goals for the Seals, his 12th and 13th, while brothers Billy and Ernie Hicke kept even in the goal-scoring department by each picking up his 12th.

Gerry Ehman and Norm Ferguson scored the other Seals goals.

After California unloaded six goals and 28 shots in the first two periods on St. Louis goalie Glenn Hall, he was replaced by Ernie Wakely.

Seals coach Fred Glover will probably tell his players to get a lot of rest the rest of the week because the current home stand was very limited—one game.

The Seals go back on the road Saturday against the Flyers at Philadelphia and will play four games in five nights, including Boston, St. Louis and Toronto before returning home Jan. 15 for a date with the New York Rangers.

CARDS FIRE COACH

Add Winner To The List

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Charley Winner has been added to the swelling ranks of unemployed head coaches in pro football.

George Allen, Bill Austin, Phil Bengtson, Tom Fears, Clive Rush and Winner have all lost their jobs as head coaches in the National Football League. The number is unusually large in a year when realignment of divisions allowed more teams to win.

Winner lost his job with the St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday while he was working on the club's list of College players who will be drafted. His work was interrupted when he was called into the office of the club's president, Charles "Stormy" Bidwill.

"I was shocked," Winner said. "I had been in to see Stormy earlier about another matter. When I went in the second time he told me he had bad news."

"I had been making plans for next season," Winner said. "I'm sorry that I'm not going to be with the team to see it develop."

Winner had been with the Cardinals five seasons, and his record with the team was 35-30-5. His best season was the 9-4-1 record of 1968, when the team finished one-half game behind the Cleveland Browns in the NFL's Eastern Division. But the Cardinals slumped to 4-9-1 in 1969, and Winner's job appeared to be in jeopardy. However, he received a vote of confidence from Bidwill and the team's vice president, William Bidwill, for the 1970 season.

This past season the Cardinals were not expected to be champions but they came close to winning the division title. They won seven of the first nine games before playing a 6-6 tie with the Kansas City Chiefs. Then they beat Philadelphia and were closing in on the title. But the Cardinals lost the last three games to the Lions, the Giants and the Redskins and saw the division title go to the Dallas Cowboys, whom they had beaten twice during the season.

Stormy Bidwill cited the collapse during the last three games in talking about the reasons for Winner's dismissal.

"You get a shot at the title very few times," he said. "We were a game and a half on top with three to go, and we fell apart. The team didn't hold together, and there was nothing there to stop it."

Winner, however, discounted the function of the coach in keeping the team at a high psychological level.

"It's overplayed," he said. "Your players get themselves up for the game."

"One of the things that really irks me is to hear people say that 'when you lose, the players aren't psychologically ready,'" Winner said. "A football game is won on five or six plays. It could be a missed field goal; the difference is very slight."

Winner, 46, said he hopes to become head coach with another NFL team.

"This is such a surprise that, of course, I have no plans," he said. "I'd like to have the opportunity to be a head coach."

Stormy Bidwill said the Cardinals would accept applications for their head coaching job "from anybody who is interested, including our own assistant coaches."

Referee Dies During ABA Contest

By United Press International

Rick Barry hasn't been seen much with the New York Nets this season, but when he's around, his presence is certainly felt.

Barry, who has played in only 15 games because of a series of injuries, scored 40 points for the third time to lead the Nets to a 110-101 victory over the Memphis Pros Wednesday night. Barry got five of his 40 points during a fourth quarter spurt as New York outscored Memphis 11-5 to go ahead 93-86 with five minutes left.

The game was marred, however, by the death of referee Andy Hershock, 43. Hershock, a Philadelphian survived by his wife and 11 children, called time out and complained of illness in the first quarter. He rested on the Memphis bench and collapsed when he tried to get up. A half hour later, the four-year veteran American Basketball Association referee died in the ticket office despite efforts to revive him.

Terra Linda Cagers Lose

Terra Linda High School closed out its practice basketball season yesterday by losing to Castlemont High in Oakland, 77-61.

Joe Casteel with 15 points and Bill LaHaye with 14 were leading Terra Linda scorers.

An ABA Trade

DALLAS (UPI) —The Texas Chaparrals Wednesday traded 6-foot-8 center Manny Leaks to the New York Nets for veteran guard Levern Tart and second-year center Ed Johnson in an American Basketball Association trade.

Billie Jean Back In Form

EAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Billie Jean King appears to be ready to reclaim her crown as the world's top woman tennis player.

After getting off to a frustrating start Wednesday in the $15,000 British Motors Women's Professional Tournament, top-seeded Mrs. King rallied to defeat Esme Emanuel of South Africa, 6-2, 6-3.

At one point in the second set, the one-time American queen of tennis who is making a comeback after knee surgery trailed 2-3.

In today's quarterfinal round, Mrs. King will meet Francoise Durr of France who eliminated the second of three Australian entries, Judy Tagert Dalton, 6-2, 7-5.

England's Ann Haydon Jones, the 1969 Wimbledon winner, had to overcome a 3-0 deficit to defeat young Kristy Pigeon of Danville, Calif., 6-4, 6-3.

Mrs.Jones meets Kerry Melville, the only surviving Australia, who defeated veteran Darlene Hard, Van Nuys, Calif., 6-2, 6-4.

In a third quarterfinal match, Peaches Bartkowicz, Los Altos, meets Nancy Richey, San Angelo, Texas, who beat Valerie Ziegenfuss, San Diego, 6-1, 6-2.

Another singles winner Wednesday was No. 2 seeded Rosemary Casals, San Francisco, who downed Australian Karen Krantzcke in straight sets, 6-2, 6-2. Mary Ann Curtis, St. Louis, also advanced with a 6-2, 6-2 victory over Stephanie Johnson, Denver.

Both Miss Casals and Miss Curtis drew singles byes today but will team together in a doubles match.

Lanier Has More Job Security Now

Hal Lanier knows now that the Giants plan to keep him at shortstop for the 1971 baseball campaign. He wasn't sure about his job last month when the winter baseball meetings were under way and it became common knowledge that the Giants were trying to swing a deal for a shortstop with a heavier bat and greater range to his left.

But now that the Giants have traded away Ron Hunt, it is clear to Lanier that Tito Fuentes no longer is a threat to his job security. That sounds like a non sequitur. But it works this way: Hunt was the second base insurance of the Giants behind Fuentes who can play second or short. So now Fuentes no longer will be available for swing duty. He will have a full time job at second, his natural position.

LANIER DIDN'T try to hide his displeasure at the reports that the Giants were in the winter market for a shortstop. He particularly resented the fact that the Giants pinpointed his position as the one they were trying to bolster. He issued a "trade-me-or-play-me" ultimatum.

However, ball clubs don't deal players for such reasons unless they are trouble makers. And Lanier is anything but that. He is a clean cut fellow whose wife, Nancy, will present him with their first born in spring. He is acting like any expectant father, happy and slightly dazed.

WHAT WAS not made clear to Lanier at the time the Giants were trying to deal with him was that neither Horace Stoneham nor Charlie Fox ever intended giving him away. Stoneham is not a stupid ball club owner and Fox proved he is a pretty sharp manager after taking over from Clyde King as the Giants' field boss last May.

Fox never downgraded Lanier's glove ability but Fox would have been anything other than realistic if he did not objectively evaluate Lanier's foot speed for ground balls zipping up the middle. To his right Lanier is super and his trowing arm from the deep hole is superb.

LANIER'S BATTING problems are not made easier by batting No. 8 in front of the pitcher. He seldom gets good pitches to hit. Enemy moundsmen don't have to give him anything fat because they aren't worried about the next man up, the pitcher. In other words, Lanier doesn't have a solid batter behind him to make a pitcher think twice. As ball players say, Lanier doesn't have any protection.

As for his "trade-me-or-play-me" ultimatum, the Giants won't hold that against Lanier. Ball club owners and managers understand such statements. In fact, they secretly admire players unafraid to speak their mind. Any ball player worth his salt wants to play instead of sitting on the bench.

EVEN WILLIE McCovey some years ago issued a "trade-me-or-play-me" ultimatum when the Giants had another first baseman named Orlando Cepeda. Alvin Dark was manager of the Giants at the time and when he learned of McCovey's statement, Dark said: "I'd say the same thing under the same circumstances."

Morton To Miss Practice

DALLAS (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys walking wounded list was struck from a new angle Wednesday when quarterback Craig Morton was felled by a sore throat that will keep him from practicing this week for the club's Jan. 17 Super Bowl date with Baltimore.

Coach Tom Landry reported that Morton was "pretty sick" and had gone to a doctor for treatment with antibiotics in hopes that he will be able to join the team in time for their flight to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Sunday.

"We're concerned about his voice and the doctor may put him on a silence regimen," Landry said.

"At any rate, he won't work out any this week because he can't talk above a whisper.

"I'm sorry that he's sick, because he could use the throwing," Landry said.

"He wasn't too effective against San Francisco (7 of 22 for 101 yards), but he was throwing all right."

Landry said that Morton's elbow, which had been of prime concern prior to the Forty Niners' game, was "probably okay" but mentioned that his quarterback had hurt a knee "a bit" in the game.

Bruins, Rangers Dominate

NEW YORK (UPI) —The Boston Bruins and New York Rangers, fighting it out for the title in the National Hockey League East, join forces Jan. 19 against the West in the 24th annual All-Star Game at Boston Garden.

The Bruins placed five men and the Rangers six among the top 12 places on the Eastern All-Stars announced Wednesday by the league.

Bobby Orr, Phil Esposito and Johnny Bucyk were unanimous choices for the Stanley Cup champion Bruins, and they were joined by teammates Ken Hodge and John McKenzie. The Rangers named included both goalies, veteran Ed Giacomin and rookie Gilles Villemure, as well as defensemen Brad Park and Jim Neilson, center Jean Ratelle and left winger Dave Balon.

The only player not chosen from New York or Boston was veteran Jean-Claude Tremblay of the Montreal Canadiens.

Eight more players will be chosen by East coach Harry Sinden. The first 12 were selected by 21 writers in the National Hockey League Writers' Association.

The biggest omission from the East team was Gordie Howe, playing his silver anniversary season in the NHL. The Detroit right winger, 42, played in 21 of the previous 23 All-star games but suffered a rib injury this season. He still is eligible to be chosen by Sinden, who returns to coaching for this game.

Orr, 22, won the James Norris Memorial Trophy last season for the third consecutive time as the league's outstanding defenseman.

THE SKI SCENE

There Is Racing For Recreation

By CHARLIE COANE

Ever want to race? You've got your chance now. No, you don't have to be a class A racer, or "B" or "C" or anything. If you can ski, you can race. NASTAR it's called, and it stands for National Standard Race.

The idea started during the 1968-69 season as a racing program for recreational skiers and drew 2,500 competitors at a few areas across the country. Last year: 27,500. This year 75,000 skiers are expected to dash for the gold, silver and bronze medals of NASTAR at 78 areas.

This is the way it works: A NASTAR course is a not-too-difficult, modified giant slalom run. In the morning you sign up to race at the designated time and you're given a racing bib with a number. If the race begins at noon and you're number is 18, 17 racers will go ahead of you and then it's your turn. You'll get a countdown and away you go.

Results are electrically timed. Each area participating in the program will have a pace-setter who races the course on a NASTAR race day to establish the "par" for the day. Your handicap is established as a certain per cent over "par." The whole thing costs $2 and you keep the bib. Another $1 will get you a second crack. All who compete receive a NASTAR race card. And depending upon your sex and age, you can win a gold, silver or bronze medal.

A junior (14 and under) can win a gold by coming within 30 per cent of "par," a silver, 45 per cent, a bronze, 65 per cent. Percentages for women are 25, 40 and 65; for men they're 15, 30 and 50; seniors (over 40): 25, 40 and 65. Par is made by the area pacesetter who has his own handicap established during the nationwide pacesetter competition in December. So then "par" is what the best or "zero" pacesetter should have done in the course on the particular day.

In California, both Bear Valley and Alpine Meadows had particularly successful programs last season, ranking second and third nationally in total participants. Bear Valley Ski School Director Rich Carney heads the program there, and Sandy Gerson organizes activities well at Alpine. Those areas also have California's fastest pacesetters: Michel Lehmann (2 handicap) and Jimmie Huega (4 handicap) at Bear Valley, and Jorg Dutschke (5 handicap) at Alpine Meadows. The country's "zero" pacesetters are Pepi Steigler of Jackson Hole for the West, and Manford Krings of Mt. Snow, Vermont for the East. The more active areas like Bear and Alpine may have 20 to 30 race days during the season. Other participating areas in California include Boreal Ridge, Dodge Ridge, Heavenly Valley, Mt. Shasta and Snow Summit.

Dave Davis Leads Bowl Tournament

ST. PAUL (UPI)—The 192-man field in the U.S. Open Bowling Tournament was pared to the 64 high scorers Wednesday night and still leading was Dave Davis, a Miami, Fla., left-hander.

The spindly Davis, fifth in earnings last year with almost $40,000, turned in a 1706 eight-game block in the third qualifying round and shows 5252 for the tourney, which began here Monday. His average over the span is almost 219 pins per game.

Dick Ciprich, a right-hander from Buffalo, N.Y., tossed the best set of the event—an 1836—to move into the runnerup spot just five behind Davis.

Next was Dick Ritger, an eight-time titlist from Hartford, Wis., whose 1718 gave him a total of 5167 for 24 games.

The 64 survivors roll another eight games Thursday, after which the lineup will be cut to 24.

NATE GETS THE GATE

San Francisco Warriors' star Nate Thurmond (left) was ejected from the game by referee Mark Mano during National Basketball Association game in Buffalo last night. Coach Al Attles (at right) put up a vain protest. Thurmond was ousted late in the first quarter for unsportsmanlike conduct and the Braves went on to down San Francisco, 115-108.

Bowlers Victory Legion

Some 634 finalists will be competing this weekend in the annual Bowlers Victory Legion (BVL) tournament at Nave Lanes, near Ignacio.

Action begins Saturday at 12:30 p.m. and continues through the day and all-day Sunday.

The tournament is organized bowling's big national charity tournament which last year raised $327,911.54 for veterans hospitals across the United States. California topped the list of state contributions with more than $93,000.

The BVL was formed in 1942 to aid in the World War II effort and supplied the armed forces overseas with recreational and other materials. At war's end, Col. Theodore Bank, then chief of the U.S. Army Special Services and now head of the Athletic Institute, felt BVL was needed more than ever to aid hospitalized veterans.

The first BVL bowling tourney was held in 1947, with seven hospitals participating. This past season, 92 hospitals participated. BVL sends thousands of copies of the Sporting News to hospitals, as well as thousands of copies of baseball, football and other sporting guides.

In addition, rehabilitation articles are supplied the patients with funds from the tournament. They include special wheelchairs, television sets, radios, pillow speakers, movie projectors, stereo equipment, bowling balls, pins and shoes. For years, BVL has made an annual contribution of $25,000 to the Blinded Veterans Association.

In 25 years, the nation's bowlers have contributed almost $4 million to veterans. This year in Marin County, a record number of 2,654 entrants contributed $2,710 to the California state fund.

No Contract Talk Until After Game

DALLAS (UPI)—The Dallas Cowboys will not discuss a new contract with star pass catcher Bobby Hayes before Dallas' Super Bowl game in Miami Jan. 17, according to Cowboys President Tex Schramm.

"I'm not about to distract Hayes' thoughts on the eve of the Super Bowl with any contract talk," Schramm said Wednesday. "We're going to Miami to win, and I don't want anything to disrupt any of the 40 players we're depending on—and I don't think he (Hayes) would either."

Schramm commented in response to reports in the local press that Hayes' attorney had threatened the Cowboys, warning that if they didn't have a satisfactory contract for Hayes before they left Miami, they would lose him.

Hayes is playing out his option this season.

Baseball

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Baseball Hall of Famer Bob Feller has been sued for divorce by his wife of 27 years.

Mrs. Virginia Feller filed for divorce Wednesday and asked support for herself and the couple's only minor child, Bruce, 20.

The Fellers also have two adult sons, Stephen and Martin.

Feller, ace Cleveland Indians pitcher of the 1950's, was inducted into the Hall of Fame in 1962.

Football

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Lamar Lundy, former member of the Los Angeles Rams' "Fearsome Foursome" defensive line, was named to the coaching staff of the National Football League San Diego Chargers Wednesday.

Boxing

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI)—Cassius Clay, who will try to reclaim his world heavyweight title from Joe Frazier March 8, has agreed to compete in two four-round exhibition matches here Jan. 22.

Clay will box four rounds against Rufus Brassell of Lima, Ohio, and four rounds with another fighter to be named later.

Hockey

DETROIT (UPI) —A 30-year working association is over but, insists Sid Abel, a 30-year friendship remains.

Abel, 52, quit as general manager of the Detroit Red Wings Wednesday but took no slap shots at his boss, Bruce A. Norris.

Girls' Basketball In San Rafael

The San Rafael Parks and Recreation department is still accepting registrations for its girls' recreational basketball program.

The program, including instruction in fundamentals as well as league play with organized teams, costs $1 for San Rafael residents, $2 for nonresidents.

Practices will be held at Davidson and Vallecito junior high schools, with games on Saturdays at Davidson.

Scouts Are Flocking To Senior Bowl

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI)—Lou Saban, coach of the Denver Broncos, says pro teams can't afford to overlook even the unlikliest of prospects while planning for the college draft which takes place later this month.

"With 26 teams picking from the same pool, there's only so much top-grade talent to go around," pointed out Saban, who is here in this Gulf Coast city to coach the North squad for Saturday's Senior Bowl game.

This, said Saban, is why more than 100 pro scouts are in town for the game.

"A lot of people figure that the real prospects are pretty well cleaned out by the end of the fourth or fifth round," said Saban. "This isn't necessarily true. Teams often come up with that one sleeper we'd all like to get, sometimes as late as the ninth round or later."

"Generally speaking, we've all got a pretty good idea as to what we're looking for," said Saban, he'll be picking ninth in the draft. "We've got our notions as to how big a lineman should be, but you've got to be careful because sometimes that boy who plays at 225 in college will grow up on you. You've got to constantly project what a prospect might become."

Saban, who also coached here last year, and Miami Dolphins Coach Don Shula, last year's South squad coach, both feel that the big emphasis is the first round of this year's draft, which starts Jan. 28, will be quarterbacks.

"They say that this is the year of the quarterbacks and I agree," said Shula, who doesn't have a first round pick this time. "They're certainly more top-drawer quarterbacks available than I can recall.

Today is Thursday, Jan. 7, the seventh day of 1971.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening star is Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1789 George Washington was elected the first U.S. president.

In 1918 Nikilai Lenin established a dictatorship of the proletariat and abolished the constituent assembly of the Soviet Union.

In 1927 regular trans-Atlantic telephone service began between New York and London.

In 1967 U.S. combat troops in Vietnam entered the Mekong River delta for the first time.

A thought for today: French Novelist Andre Maurois said, "Modesty and unselfishness, these are the virtues men praise and pass by."

Flu Outbreak Plagues Florida

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI)—The seasonal flu outbreak in Florida has reached epidemic proportions in Broward County, where 18 deaths have been reported among 13,000 cases of flu and flu-related diseases.

Dr. Paul Hughes, Broward County health director, said his estimate of 13,000 cases was based on a survey among 10 doctors. A total of 10,000 or more persons affected by the flu qualifies the outbreak as an epidemic, Hughes said.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Going Down One At Match-Point May Win You A Tournament

When you cannot make a doubled contract at rubber bridge, you don't cry your eyes out at suffering a penalty of 300 points. You take your loss like a little man and go on to the next hand in the hope of picking up a game or a slam. At tournament bridge all hands are equally important, and making a slam on the next hand won't get you out of the hole. There's no glory in going down one at rubber bridge, but it may win a tournament for you at match-point bridge.

FORCES RUFF

West opens the king of hearts and continues with a heart to the ace. East wisely switches to a low diamond, and West takes two diamond tricks with the ace and queen. West then leads a third diamond, forcing South to ruff.

At this stage South has lost four tricks and is sure to lose a trick to the ace of trumps. At rubber bridge South might lead the king of clubs, planning to enter dummy later with a spade in order to lead the next club from dummy for a possible finesse with the ten.

This line of play would take the next club with the jack and would lead a fourth diamond to make South ruff for the second time. West would get in with the ace of clubs to lead a fifth diamond, and now West's seven of clubs would win a trick since South would run out of trumps.

EARLY FINESSE

South guards against the bad trump break by leading a spade to dummy to begin the trumps by trying a finesse with the ten. West wins with the jack of clubs, but cannot lead a fourth round of diamonds since dummy can ruff.

West gets only his two sure trump tricks, and South gets out for down one. This costs only 100 points, which should assure South a fine score. At many other tables of a tournament East-West would score more than 100 points for a part score in diamonds or no-trump. As a result, the South player we have been watching would get a good score for being minus only 100 points.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1-NT (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - K Q 7 4

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs, the Stayman Convention, asking partner to show a major suit of four or more cards.

If he bids a major, you will raise to three; if he bids two diamonds (denying a major suit of four or more cards), you will bid 2-NT.

Costly To Replace Lost Stock Shares

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. We have lost our stock certificates. How can we replace them? — E. M.

A. Your first step should be to write to the transfer agents for your stocks — any broker can give you their names and addresses. In your letters you must give all pertinent information about your certificates — their number and the name in which they are registered.

You should request the transfer agent to put a "stop" on the missing shares. This would prevent transfer in case the shares turned up in the wrong hands. The transfer agent will then send you a form on which to make a formal request for new certificates.

Customarily there is a six-month delay before new shares are issued in the hope that the certificates will be found. If they are not, you must post a bond covering the value of each certificate — a rather expensive proceeding.

Your unfortunate predicament points up the importance of putting certificates in a safe-deposit box or fireproof safe as promptly as possible after they are received.

Q. I do not agree with your ideas of diversification in investments. I believe it is only an excuse for poor selection. I want to put every dollar I can get my hands on into IBM. Please give me your views. — G.B.

A. I have only one view with respect to your question: you'd better sit back and think of what would happen if you did make a mistake. The most thorough method of selection imaginable will not guarantee you stock market profits.

Investing is an art that deals with the future, and since the future is an unknown quantity, there is no way to be absolutely certain of your judgment. To protect yourself against irretrievable loss, you can either avoid stocks completely or diversify your holdings.

Most investors, of course, diversify. I recommend that you consider it, too. Diversification is no "excuse" but rather a form of insurance against large losses in any individual situation.

NYSE Increases Listing Fees

NEW YORK (UPI — The New York Stock Exchange has scheduled increases in listing fees for common and preferred stock and for warrants, effective April 1.

No change was made in the present one-time fee of $120 per million dollars of face value of bond issues.

Initial listing fees for each issue of common or preferred stock or long-term warrants will go up to 1 cent from ½ cent for the second million shares listed, and to ½ cent from ¼ cent for the third and fourth million shares. The rate remains at ¼ cent for the next 300 million shares and ⅛ cent a share beyond that.

DETROIT (UPI) — A federal grand jury will begin an investigation Feb. 23 to determine whether the Big Three automakers may have violated antitrust laws by discontinuing discounts to fleet buyers of vehicles.

"This is purely investigatory," said Ralph B. Guy Jr., U.S. attorney for the Eastern District of Michigan. "This is not an indication that there has been any wrongdoing."

The investigation will be handled by the Justice Department's Antitrust Division, Guy said.

Orders Engines

HARVEY, ILL. (UPI) — Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co. has announced receipt of a contract for 1,643 diesel engines for use by the Defense Department in powering 60 kilowatt generators. The contract was awarded by the Fermont Division of Dynamics Corp. of America.

Consumer Loan Interest Cut

NEW YORK (UPI) — Chemical Bank New York Trust Co. has cut interest rates on consumer loans sufficiently to save a car buyer $90 on a three-year $3,000 automobile instalment loan.

Chemical also cut its rate for prime business loans to 6 1/2 per cent from 6 3/4 per cent. The auto loan rate was cut to 5½ per cent from 6 per cent. Uninsured collateral loans were cut to 5¼ per cent from 5¾ per cent and personal loans with life insurance to 5¾ per cent from 6 per cent.

The 5 1/2 per discount rate on auto loans is equal to a true or net annual interest rate of 10.57 per cent as compared with 11.58 per cent for a 6 per cent discount.

Longer To Pay

JENKINTOWN, PA. (UPI) — Standard Pressed Steel Co. said it has amended a loan agreement with several banks to provide for extension of payment until April 5 of a $5 million loan installment due Jan. 2. The amendment also provides that the banks must approve payment of any dividend on the company's capital stock.

Main Street Loss Blamed On Suburbs

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — The E. J. Korvette Co. has announced plans to close its Main Street store because of unfavorable sales volume and profitability resulting from the trend toward suburban shopping.

Leonard Blackman, president of the chain, said the firm has applied for a going-out-of-business sale permit. The korvette chain has operated the Main Street store for 13 years.

13 Marin County Firms Plan To Exhibit At City Boat Show

Several Marin County firms will be among exhibitors at the San Francisco Boat and Sport Show tomorrow through Sunday at the Cow Palace — we checked out 13 definite, slightly under the number of last year's participants.

Probably the largest single boat exhibit in the entire show will be that of Sailboats, Inc. of Oakland and Sausalito, which will take up one-third of the main floor as well as some additional areas.

It will display 26-foot, 27-foot, 34-foot and the new 39-foot Columbia sailers, 23-foot, 25-foot, 27-foot and the new 35-foot Coronado motor sailers and several small boats in the Newport line.

John C. Beery Co. of Sausalito will have a good display, featuring a 29-foot Ranger (and possibly a 26-footer), a 30-foot Yankee, 21 and 22-foot Santans, a Sunfish, a Minifish, a Leo 14 and a Hobbie Cat. In a separate booth there will be a display of marine hardware.

Ann Marine, successor to Balboa Marinas Yacht Sales and Service in Sausalito will have a 32-foot and also a 36-foot Grand Banks diesel cruiser.

Golden Gate Yacht Sales, Sausalito expects to have about nine Reinell boats with inboard-outboard motors — up to 25 feet in length. Golden Gate also handles the Adventurer sail line but is not planning any models at the show.

In San Rafael, The Trailorboat Co. will feature six of its small aluminum boats, from nine to 14 feet in length.

Chuck Fillingame, who recently moved his Marin Boat House from Greenbrae back to San Rafael, will not have his own display but will serve with other dealers at the Fisher-Pierce Manufacturing Co. booth, showing a Boston Whaler and Homelite Bearcat outboard motors.

Southwest Yacht Supplies, San Rafael is showing off a working model of the Mark X auto pilot, a line of Sta-Power additives and some ultra high frequency equipment.

Chris Craft Sales of San Rafael will also man a display, with three or four big boats to be shown in that line.

San Rafael's Marine Engineering Associates was appointed a dealer for the Volvo diesel line on Dec. 1 and will have quite a few models on display, from seven to 300 horsepower.

Marin Engine and Electric Co., San Rafael is displaying several Palmer gas and Diesel engines and two Flagship V-8 engines.

Triple Z Enterprises, which is located at the same address, will also display again its electric hydraulic boat levelers.

Bamboo Reef of San Rafael has prepared a display of underwater equipment including a new one-man submarine. And it will publicize special tours for skin divers handled by its Sojourns Limited travel agency.

Ted Schuman Chevrolet of Novato is always there in some capacity. This year it joins with two other Bay Area dealers at Boise Cascade's booth of Aristocrat travel trailers and campers and will have its own man there every day and night. Although Schuman is also one of the most active of all Chevrolet recreational vehicle dealers it is not serving at the Chevrolet booth this year.

HEADS S.F. CHAMBER — Louis W. Niggeman of Kentfield, president of Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies, is new president of the Greater San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, succeeding Samuel B. Stewart, who now becomes chairman of the board. Niggeman has been president of Fireman's Fund since 1967 and is also executive vice president of its parent company, American Express Co.

LOENARD J. RUSSELL of San Rafael has been elected controller of American Express Investment Management Co. and American Express Mutual Funds. He was formerly accounting manager for the management company, where he has been since last April. Previously he was with Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies in Boston, Los Angeles and Newark, N.J.

U.S. Combat Role Ends May 1

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U. S. troops will cease to play a major combat role in Vietnam after May 1, but the Pentagon said today that more than 100,000 combat troops will remain there in a security role.

A Pentagon spokesman, Jerry W. Friedheim, mentioned the figure after Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said in Bangkok, Thailand, today that by May 1 "a major portion of our combat forces that have a combat responsibility or a combat assignment within the country will have been withdrawn."

Friedheim said that the present force level of 385,000 U.S. troops in Vietnam would be cut to about 285,000 as of May 1, and that more than 100,000 of these will be combat troops.

Other U.S. officials said the role of the remaining combat troops will be to supply the South Vietnamese with air and artillery support, logistics and security. They said the troops might be sent out on patrol as part of their security role.

As withdrawals continue after May 1, Friedheim said, combat troops will still constitute 40 to 50 per cent of the force

U.S. officials say that even when their major combat responsibility is over, American troops will still sometimes be involved in shooting and being shot at. For example, the officials said a patrol of Americans might be sent out to seek Communist troops as part of their security role.

Defense secretary Melvin R. Laird mentioned the May 1 goal for the first time publicly today during an informal news conference on arrival at Bangkok, Thailand on the second leg of a round-the-world trip. He goes on to Saigon and top-level conferences on Friday.

Laigd said most U.S. troops "with combat responsibility" will be withdrawn by May 1.

Those that remain, Washington sources said, will be used as advisers with South Vietnamese units or will be kept in a reserve status to cope with any emergency situations posing a threat to the security of other American personnel. In Paris on Tuesday, Laird mentioned a mid-summer goal of ending U.S. combat responsibilities. This and his reference today to May 1 represented the first move by the administration toward a scheduled withdrawal timetable.

RECENT RULING

Communes Face New Attacks

By MARY LEYDECKER

Marin's hippie communes may face renewed attacks by city officials in the wake of a recent ruling by a federal judge in San Francisco who found a Palo Alto anti-commune ordinance legal.

The ordinance of the Peninsula city is similar to one passed by Larkspur and considered by other Marin cities as well as the county board of supervisors.

Larkspur's ordinance has also been under attack in the courts, and because of the decision last month in the Palo Alto case, Judge Albert C. Wollenberg of the federal district court, a ruling in the local case may be expected soon.

Larkspur City Atty. Robert W. Elliott said yesterday he would soon file a final brief in that city's case in Marin Superior Court, where "The One World Family of the Messiah's World Crusade" is testing the Larkspur ordinance.

At stake is whether or not communal groups calling themselves families can live together in residential areas zoned for single-family homes.

After the advent of such communal living, Larkspur sought to get rid of groups by defining a family "as an individual or two or more persons related by blood, marriage or legal adoption, or a group not exceeding five persons, who need not be related . . . living together.

The Palo Alto ordinance set the limit for unrelated persons at four.

Schultz Wins On Design

By WAT TAKESHITA

Marin County should develop major resort centers to draw overnight tourist trade and small conferences instead of remaining as a way-stop for daytime tourists.

This is a key recommendation made by Economics Research Associates (ERA) of Los Angeles in a visitor enterprise report which will be presented tonight to the City-County Planning Council.

The council, which asked for the visitor study, will meet at 8 p.m. in the faculty lounge at Redwood High School.

The report, intended as a guide to boosting tourism in Marin, points out that the county gets 20 to 25 per cent of the daytime tourist trade in the entire Bay Area, but only 1 to 3 per cent of them are overnighters. Because they stay only a few hours, their quick movements choke the highways, and yet Marin has little to show in revnue. Almost 90 per cent of them spend less than $10 per visit.

The solution, said the Los Angeles firm, is to appeal to overnighters whose expenditures are higher and who create less traffic congestion.

Economic Research Associates completed the study at a cost of $12,500. The 110-page report said Marin could support 3,000 resort hotel rooms and 1,000 vacation trailer spaces and recommended that the county immediately master plan 1,100 acres in West Marin (the east shore of Tomales Bay to as far south as Olema) and 100 acres along San Rafael and Richardson bays for resort use.

The report added the master plan should be specific enough to insure proper balance of such facilities as resort hotels, restaurants, marinas, golf courses, commercial, entertainment and related facilities.

This should be accompanied, the study said, by strong zoning and architectural controls to preserve the environment.

Resort hotels are especially attractive because they draw weekenders and vacationers who are at present not attracted to Marin and because they do not increase the need for services such as schools and fire protection.

The important thing, said ERA, is to create a recreational attraction big enough to draw and keep overnighters — facilities like golf

Envoy Grabbed In Red Protest

MOSCOW (UPI)—U.S. Embassy sources said today three Russians grabbed an American diplomat by his lapels outside a theater Wednesday night and asked him "how would you like being treated the way Zionist thugs treat our diplomats in America?"

It was the first report of physical reprisals in the new U.S.-Soviet diplomatic war of nerves, kicked off Tuesday when the Soviets announced they could not guarantee the safety of Americans in Russia in view of "Zionist" attacks on Soviets in America.

For the first time in more than four years Soviet authorities Wednesday evening permitted a "spontaneous demonstration" in front of the Embassy. About 20 young persons stood before the gate and chanted slogans for 15 minutes.

More delegations of Soviet citizens entered the U.S. Embassy peaceably to deliver letters of protest against the harassment of Soviet officials and performers in the United States.

The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said tonight "somebody in Washington" was behind the anti-Soviet demonstrations.

The newspapers said the campaign was partly intended to distract American attention from the Vietnam War, inflation and unemployment.

Israel also has a hand in the incidents, Izvestia said.

The sources said the Russians Wednesday night approached the diplomat and his wife outside the Taganka Theater, Moscow's showplace for avant garde plays, and grasped his lapels.

"They just shook his lapels a bit and asked him how he would like being treated the way Zionist thugs treat our diplomats in America," the sources said. The incident ended in a few minutes when the diplomat and his wife entered their car, they said.

The embassy circulated a background guidance sheet to the American community on the situation today, stating, "The U.S. government... expects the Soviet government to take necessary steps to guarantee... (safety) for American officials and private citizens and organizations in the Soviet Union."

It confirmed that "threatening phone calls have been made to American officials in Moscow," and said that U.S. officials were doing all they could to protect Soviet citizens in the United States.

"It would be unrealistic, the embassy memo said, "to expect

Major Tourist Centers Urged

By LARRY MOWELL

By the slimmest of margins, the Larkspur City Council last night approved design of a disputed creekside apartment building planned by developer Neils J. Schultz Jr. (Other stories, page 3.)

Overturning a planning Commission ruling that the building would be too massive for the site, the council voted 3-2 in favor of the structure, Mayor Benton A. Sifford Jr. and Alfred Malvino against.

Concerned, however, that the decision might set a precedent for longer and longer buildings, the council decided to amend the zoning ordinance to limit building lengths. A workshop session was set for next Wednesday at 8 p.m. to discuss limits.

Councilmen Neil Brixon and William G. Fleckles said the building was just barely tolerable.

"I believe there is a limit as to where we can go," Brixon said, "I feel this has reached that limit." Nevertheless, he moved approval of architectural supervision.

"I have to second it although I think it is barely compatible," Fleckles said.

Schultz plans a 20-unit, three-story apartment building at 1005 to 1025 South Eliseo Drive. The building will stretch 141 feet

Talks On Dim Side; Third Year

PARIS (UPI)—The Vietnam peace talks entered their third year today with Allied negotiators complaining that serious negotiations had yet to begin and a peaceful settlement of the war was not in sight.

U.S. Ambassador David K.E. Bruce told the Hanoi and Viet Cong delegates their peace demands were "incompatible with any real kind of negotiations," and urged them to reconsider their approach to the two-year-old talks.

Bruce's South Vietnamese colleague, Ambassador Phan Dang Lam, opened today's 98th session with the comment: "The Paris meetings are now entering their third year without having yet produced any concrete result which would permit us to foresee that peace will soon come."

The Hanoi delegation made public today names of three American pilots it said were killed when their planes either were shot down or crashed in North Vietnam.

Delegation spokesman Nguyen Thanh Le disclosed the names which he said had already been given to a U.S. Senator and an antiwar group in New York City.

He said he was making the disclosure only because the Nixon administration had pointed to the absence of two of the names on Hanoi's official prisoner list as evidence that the list was incomplete.

The Hanoi spokesman identified the three dead airmen as Donald Maurice Singer, Arthur Stewart Mearns and Samuel Fantle III.

Their hometowns were not available and no details of the dates or places of their deaths were given.

Synthetic Hormone Called Major Feat

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — University of California researchers have announced the synthesis of the human growth hormone —a development they said could provide a major research tool in the treatment of cancer, heart disease, diabetes and problems associated with growth.

The hormone, secreted by the pituitary gland controls body growth, size and shape, regulates production of mothers' milk and has been used successfully in the treatment of a form of dwarfism which afflicts thousands of youngsters each year in the United States.

Dr. C. H. Li, 57, who headed the research team which reproduced the hormone in the UC hormone Research Laboratory, estimated it would take 5 to 10 years for commercial drug manufacturers to provide large quantities of the synthetic human growth hormone (HGH).

Li, director of the UC Hormone Research Laboratory, said a long range goal of his research was possible development of a modified hormone which would inhibit the growth of breast and other cancers.

He said several apparent attributes of HGH would be studied when sufficient quantities of the hormone are available. These include repairing bone fractures, promoting healing, lowering blood cholesterol levels, enhancing resistance to infection, and improving the actions of male and female sex hormones.

Dr. Philip R. Lee, chancellor of UC hailed the test tube duplication of the complex

Flight To Jerusalem To Save Peace Talk

By U. P. International

U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring interrupted the Middle East peace talks today to fly to Jerusalem where Israeli military sources accused Egypt of another violation of the cease-fire and said that Egypt may try to cross the Suez Canal this year with Russian help.

Diplomatic sources at the United Nations in New York said Jarring was making the trip to Israel with Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah to satisfy demands he meet with such Israeli leaders as Premier Golda Meir and Foreign Minister Abba Eban before "meakningful" peace talks can be held.

The sources said Jarring would leave tonight despite Arab opposition to the trip and Egyptian charges it was a "delaying tactic and a stalling game." A new protest came today from the Palestinian guerrillas who said in Amman that Jarring's alleged delaying tactics were aimed at undermining Arab unity.

The United States and other Western delegations supported the Jarring trip as a means of preventing collapse of the newly resumed talks.

An Israeli military spokesman in Jerusalem said two of Egypt's Soviet-built Sukhoi 7 jets flew over Israeli positions along the Suez Canal Wednesday in another violation of the truce and that a formal protest had been lodged with the United Nations.

It was the first time Israel had accused Egypt of violating the cease-fire since Egyptian aircraft made three overflights of Israeli positions along the canal last Nov. 22 and 23. It was Israeli charges of Egyptian truce violations that led Israel to pull out of the talks last August.

In Tel Aviv, an authoritative military source said Israel could not rule out the possibility that the Egyptians with Soviet backing would attempt an amphibious crossing of the Suez Canal this year. The source said such an attack would be foolhardy for the Egyptians but Israel must consider the possibility.

The sources said Soviet amphibious equipment, aircraft, tanks, heavy guns and ground-to-ground rockets were still arriving in Egypt. He said the rockets were of the Luna type, known in the West as the

McGovern Readying For Second Presidential Try

WASHINGTON (API) —Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota resigned today as chairman of the Democratic Party Reform Commission as a first step toward becoming an active candidate for President.

McGovern told newsmen that it was "a fairly accurate" assumption that he would announce for the Democratic presidential nomination later this month. He also was a candidate for the nomination in 1968, entering the race after the assassination of Sen. Robert D. Kennedy, D-N.Y.

The reform commission that he headed —and which generally was referred to as the McGovern Commission —was one of two created by the Democrats as a result of the tumult at the 1968 national convention.

Nearly all of the McGovern Commission's work so far has involved writing guidelines for selection of delegates to future conventions.

Explaining his decision to resign the chairmanship, McGovern said his schedule was becoming too heavy and that he

Jury Continues To Eye Valentine's Day Cases

I-J Special Report

FAIRFIELD — A Solano Superior Court jury continued today laboriously considering the cases of seven men arrested during last Valentine's Day's demonstration against the San Rafael Independent-Journal.

The seven were indicted by the Marin County Grand Jury on a total of 36 charges arising from the violence of Feb. 14. After the defense was granted a change of venue, the number of charges was trimmed to 34 by Judge William E. Jensen, who presided over the trial since it began Oct. 20.

The rally was called by Bay Area labor organizations in sympathy with San Francisco International Typographical Union Local 21, which went on strike against the I-J one year ago today.

Each of the seven defendants faces at least one felony charge and several misdemeanor counts.

The defendants are: John J. DeMartini, 47, of Mill Valley, vice president of Local 21, and the only striking I-J employee on trial; Charles P. Vance, 57, of South San Francisco; James S. Brooke, 36, of Guerneville; Joe Reese, 32, of Hayward; Nimmes H. Shelton, 41, San Francisco; Alvis D. Bailey, 43, San Francisco, and Terry W. Lansing, 20, of Oakland.

All are members of Local 21 except Bailey, a Teamsters Union member, and Lansing, a student.

The jury of 10 women and two men received the case shortly before noon yesterday, and soon called on Judge Jensen for help. Jurors expressed confusion as to which defendants faced which counts. Jensen gave them a sheaf of verdict forms listing the defendants and charges separately.

The jury was sequestered beginning Tuesday night in a Fairfield motel, but Judge Jensen directed it to deliberate in the courtroom.

The judge suggested that jurors consider one defendant's case at a time deliberating and voting on each 1971. You've changed. We've changed.

Change. That's what it's all about this year. And that's what we mean by putting you first.

These are uneasy times.

There are major concerns. About pollution. About safety. About the economy. About your hard-earned dollar. We know.

For the past 10 years Chevrolet research people have questioned thousands of people on every subject from rising taxes to the size of the glovebox in their cars.

We've found that price and maintenance costs, trade-in value and quality have become tremendously important.

Your car has to work. It has to last. And each new model must have more built-in value.

At Chevrolet, we understand.

You want meaningful change. You want improvements that are not just skin-deep, but deep-seated.

And one of those, among the many that you'll find in the 1971 Chevrolets, is new emission controls to help bring back clean air. In every new model, we've made further substantial reductions in both the discharge of hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide.

All 1971 Chevrolet engines run efficiently on the new no-lead or low-lead gasolines, too, which not only decreases air pollution but increases the life of your spark plugs, exhaust system and other engine components.

Caprice. The biggest, most luxurious Chevrolet ever. A complete change.

Bigness in itself is nothing. But if it allows you to lengthen the distance between the front and rear wheels (which we did), then you've got something.

You've got a smoother ride.

The idea in the 1971 Caprice was to give you the looks and comfort of a six- or seven-thousand-dollar car, without asking you to pay anywhere near that much for it. And above all, to build in as much dependability and security as possible.

So we changed the body structure for 1971, too. We made it stronger. And we made it quieter by putting a double layer of steel in the roof.

Caprice, as you can see below, is a lot of luxury at a Chevrolet price.

Vega. The littlest Chevy ever. It wasn't changed from anything.

Before building Vega, we read everything we could get our hands on about little cars. We talked to owners. We studied little cars up one side and down the other and, literally, tore them apart. We found out what made them tick, or why they didn't tick.

What ticked were gas economy and dependability. What didn't were underpowered engines, cramped quarters and getting blown around in the wind.

In our little Vega, everything ticks. It's not just another little car. You didn't want that. It's one little car that does everything well.

Laird, Generals Plan Talks As Cambodian Defense Deteriorates

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. sources said today in Saigon and Phnom Penh that the U.S. air campaign against the Ho Chi Minh Trail has experienced only limited success and that American military planes may have to fly fuel into Phnom Penh to meet the threat of a Communist Tet offensive.

The Cambodian situation was becoming so serious that the second ranking U.S. commander in Vietnam, Gen. Fredrick C. Weyand, flew to Phnom Penh for talks with Premier Lon Nol and U.S. Ambassador Emory Swank, and to have a first hand look at the deteriorating situation.

The Weyand-Lon Nol meeting preceded the weekend trip to Saigon of U.S. Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird and Pacific commander Adm. John S. McCain to discuss the same subject.

Military sources in Saigon in reporting limited success of the costly non-stop three month aerial offensive against Communist supply routes said a typical result of a full day's bombings by 30 B52s and several hundred fighter-bombers might damage or destroy less than 20 trucks with 2,500 tons of bombs. The Communists have used as many as 5,000 trucks on the trail.

With U.S. commanders warning of the possibility of a large scale Tet offensive in Cambodia the end of this month UPI correspondent Kate Webb reported from Phnom Penh that diplomatic sources were discussing the possibility of an airlift.

The Communists have cut Route 4 leading from Phnom Penh to the southern port of Kompong Som, blocking Phnom Penh's fuel supplies, They also have ambushed a number of convoys moving up the Mekong River from South Vietnam with oil and gasoline supplies and crews were reported balking at making the hazardous trip.

A government operation to reopen Highway 4 was in its second week, but there have been heavy Cambodian losses and no progress. And in their latest river ambush the Communists blew up a navy utility craft loaded with about 100 55-gallon drums of fuel.

Military gas supplies have not been rationed but a Cambodian spokesman said the air force did not know where the next fuel was coming from for its small but vital fleet of prop-driven T28 bombers, Russian-built Mig jets and old French training planes.

Saigon military sources said in making their pessimistic assessment of the results of U.S. bombing attacks they were taking into account one massive hit made by air force jets in December when they reported more than 7,000 secondary explosions on the Ho Chi Minh trail in Laos.

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — Swiss Ambassador Giovanni Enrico Bucher completed one month in captivity today, with hopes for his release increasing as a list of 70 prisoners to be released in exchange was nearly complete.

Halt Of Legal Opium Imports Asked By Panel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government officials once considered a $5 million yearly outlay to buy the entire Turkish opium crop, but rejected the idea for fear it would stimulate opium production in other countries, according to the House Crime Committee.

Turkish opium is the source of an estimated 80 per cent of illicit heroin distribution in the United States. Turkey is one of 12 nations where opium may be grown legally.

The United States imports nearly 300,000 pounds of opium each year to make morphine and other pain-killing derivatives. The committee recommended, however, that all legal opium imports be stopped because synthetic painkillers have been developed that could take the place of opium derivatives.

The committee also recommended Turkish farmers be given subsidies to turn to other crops and that satellites monitor opium growing areas.

Concerning the proposed purchasing of the opium crop, the committee said the plan put forth by "responsible" government officials was rejected "after substantial consultation" with the State Department, the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Drug Control, and the United Nations.

The committee agreed with the final decision that such purchases would "stimulate rather than stifle world opium production.

"If the world community thought that our government was in the opium purchasing business, then we can foresee nonproducing nations (with the proper soil and climatic conditions) going into opium cultivating business," the committee said.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

GI Drug Deaths

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. officials disclosed today that an improved reporting and diagnostic systems shows the number of drug deaths among American GIs in Vietnam is up to 70 per cent higher than previously thought.

A total of 93 American servicemen died from drugs in the first 11 months of 1970 according to figures supplied by military spokesmen who said actual figures for drug deaths could even be higher.

The total included both deaths whose cause was determined by autopsy and a larger number attributed to narcotics and drugs after a clinical diagnosis system took effect in August.

Capitol Safe

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Quit worrying about the U.S. Capitol falling down. A new engineering survey shows that its sandstone west front —usually referred to as crumbling —is in poor shape and needs big repairs but it isn't about to collapse.

The survey, by the New York engineering-architect firm Praeger Kavanagh Waterbury, temporarily at least stymies plans of congressional leaders to bypass the restoration job by replacing the wall with a marble one up to 88 feet further west.

Congress had appropriated funds to start planning the 4 1-2 acre extension but in a compromise settlement with the plan's opponents agreed that the money could not be spent until an alternative proposal to restore the wall as it stands had been proved unworkable by an independent engineering survey.

New DDT Ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A new government crackdown on DDT is expected within a few weeks. But it probably will fall short of the complete, across-the-board ban demanded by environmentalists, government sources predicted today.

The new action, sources said, is expected to be a cancellation of federal registrations of DDT for a number of specific uses on crops —including cotton, citrus fruits and a number of vegetables.

The action, which sources said is due during January — possibly by mid-month —will come from the new Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). It will be the third major step since the White House announced in November, 1969, its intention to cancel all "nonessential" uses of DDT by Dec. 31, 1970.

Death Toll

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. Command said today 33 Americans were killed in the Indochina war last week, eight fewer than the previous week. Another 305 GIs were wounded.

It brought to 44,441 the total Americans killed in the war since Jan. 1, 1967 and 293,529 wounded.

The wounded total last week was the highest since two weeks before when 377 Americans were reported wounded.

Besides the 33 killed in combat, the U.S. Command reported 32 GIs dead from illnesses, accidents and other noncombat causes last week, raising the total of nonbattle deaths in the war to 9,064.

Signs Aid Bill

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—President Nixon has signed into law a bill authorizing a $550 million aid program for Asian and Middle East nations, including language banning the use of U.S. troops in Cambodia.

The biggest share of the military and economic aid — $255 million — will go to Cambodia.

Also included are $150 million for South Korea, $30 million for Jordan, $13 million for Indonesia, $5 million for Lebanon, $65 million for South Vietnam and $17 million to compensate for shortages in previous years' programs.

Defends Duty

NEW YORK (UPI)—Lt. William L. Calley Jr., who is accused of murdering 102 Vietnamese civilians, says he was doing his duty in the alleged massacre at My Lai in 1968. He calls the Army a Frankenstein monster.

Calley is scheduled to testify in his own defense in the post-holiday session of his court-martial that begins next week at Ft. Benning, Ga. His opinion of his actions in the My Lai sweep by American infantry is in an interview in the February issue of Esquire, published today.

The six-officer jury in his military trial is not sequestered but has been instructed not to read about the case nor hear it discussed.

Pot Smoking Cadets Booted

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UPI)—Three cadets have been dropped from the U.S. Military Academy for smoking marijuana, West Point officials confirmed today.

An academy spokesman would not say when the dismissals occurred, nor would he divulge the names or classes of those involved. Sources said, however, the dismissals occurred just prior to Christmas leave.

The dismissals brought to six the number of cadets separated from the Academy since 1968 because of involvement with marijuana. Academy records showed two cadets resigned during the 1969-70 year and one in 1968-69.

Shipyard Strike

STOCKHOLM (UPI)—Three thousand shipyard workers went on strike two days ago in the Polish seaport of Gdansk, where the bloody December riots began, the Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet reported today.

Aftonbladet said in a front page story that the shipyard workers struck in protest against the arrest before Christmas of 200 workers who participated in the December riots.

The new strike action began Tuesday, Aftonbladet said in the report datelined Gdansk and signed by a staff correspondent Thomas Walden.

The newspaper said the 3,000 striking workers went to the shipyards both Tuesday and Wednesday but refused to work.

Here's One Man Who Believes In Women's Lib

DENVER (UPI)—Marguaret Peterson, 25, a night shift billing clerk for a local trucking firm, says she has only one regret about the way she handled a would-be attacker.

"I should have beat him to a pulp," Miss Peterson said.

The man grabbed her as she walked from a bus stop and told her: "Don't yell or I'll kill you."

Miss Peterson began screaming and tossed her attacker to the ground. When he started to run, she grabbed him and told him what she thought of him. "But you couldn't put what I said in the paper," she said.

The attacker, struggling to get away, told her, "I'm sorry, lady. I'll never do it again." He then slipped loose and ran.

Girl, 15, Bruised When Hit By Car

A 15-year-old San Anselmo girl was treated Tuesday at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael for cuts and bruises on her legs sustained when she was struck by a car while crossing Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in San Anselmo.

Police said Miriam L. Jacobs was walking in the crosswalk when she was struck at 8:20 a.m. by an auto driven by John Felix McGregor of 1675 Grand Avenue, San Rafael. McGregor told police he was blinded by the sun.

Weather Forces Bartering In Omaha

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Except for southern Florida and the Pacific Coast, cold arctic air covered the nation once again today. The economy was affected, and in parts of Omaha, Neb., it was frozen shut.

Residents on Omaha's Northwest Side had returned to the bartering system in the wake of this week's heavy snowstorm. With snow-clogged streets, heighbors had been forced to trading —a pack of cigarettes for a quart of milk, baby food for breakfast cereal. . .

It has been so cold in Arizona that citrus industry spokesmen say fruit crop losses there may run into several million dollars.

Near Franklin, Ind., a 69,000-volt transmission line snapped, leaving thousands of homes without electric power in a four-county area for varying periods Wednesday.

Four Lincoln, Neb., residents heading homeward after a vacation in Colorado said they helped 211 snowbound motorists along interstate 80 west of Lincoln during Monday's storm.

Manson Defense Drags On In Long Final Arguments

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Charles Manson's attorney told the Tate murder trial jury that it might be more interesting if he recited the Gettysburg Address, but that his job was the "drudgery" of going over the record.

Irving Kanarek was as good as his word. On the sixth day of his "final" arguments Wednesday he reached page 14,950 of the 20,000-page transcript, with no end in sight.

Even as Kanarek was speaking, Manson and his three female codefendants filed a formal motion to fire all their lawyers. Superior Court Judge Charles H. Older turned them down.

"To wax poetic," said Kanarek, "I am no Horatio at the bridge. But to paraphrase Lincoln, they won't remember what we say here, but they will remember what we do here."

Kanarek, who previously has evoked the names of Richard Nixon, George Wallace, Robert Welch, Mr. Magoo, and Charlie Chaplin, as well as the French revolution and the My Lai massacre, was expected to keep talking until Older orders him to halt.

Council Orders Signs Down

Larkspur City Council last night stood by an order for abatement of the last two billboards in the city after developer Niels J. Schultz Jr. refused to agree to take them down by March 1.

The council had ordered the abatement Dec. 2, but last night suggested the billboards, both near the Highway 101 Greenbrae interchange, might be allowed to remain until the end of February. Schultz, however, declined to agree to remove them by that date.

He held that he should be given six months to conform, as was Dr. Robert C. Ceniceros when the council ordered him to bring a fence within the city height limit.

Councilmen noted the billboards have been illegal since 1969.

Water Recedes

BANGKOK (UPI)—Flood waters in Thailand's four southernmost provinces receded today after a week of continuous rain but some lowlying areas still were under water.

Bon Air Span Repairs Could Equal Original Building Costs

Cost of repairing the Bon Air Bridge could equal what it cost to build the span in 1958, the Larkspur City Council learned last night. (Another story, page 1.)

Furthermore, the bridge might have tobe closed for up to 20 days while work is done on it, City Engineer Roy H. Hoffman told the council.

Hoffman said lowest of three bids for repairs to the foundations was $125,000. Adding $15,000 for contingencies and fees, he said, means a total of $140,000, the cost of construction 13 years ago.

Based on an estimate of $100,000 for the bridge repairs, the city had worked out an arrangement whereby the Army Corps of Engineers would pay half, the state 30 per cent, and city and county 10 per cent each. New discussion of cost sharing will be held next Wednesday, said City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst.

The bridge was weakened during Corps of Engineers dredging operations which exposed bridge piling, Bathurst said.

The Larkspur City Council also:

ABATEMENT — Delayed for a month abatement proceedings against Peter J. Hunt of 167 Via La Paz after presentation of evidence that Hunt is solving a drainage problem that dumps water into a neighbor's yard.

POLICE QUARTERS — Met with the city attorney in closed session for 15 minutes to discuss possible condemnation proceedings for new police headquarters. Under consideration is an office building immediately north of the main fire station on Magnolia Avenue.

PLANNING COUNCIL — Decided to send a planning commissioner to a City-County Planning Council meeting to judge the group, meanwhile tabling a two-year-old planning commission recommendation that Larkspur become a member.

ASSESSMENT DISTRICT — Heard from Bathurst that forming an assessment district for construction of a road in Greenbrae is stymied by refusal of the majority property owner, Marin Rod and Gun Club, to participate.

BUILDING CODE — Adopted a new uniform building code, along with slight raises in inspection fees.

NORTH RIDGE — Authorized Mayor Benton A. Sifford Jr. to discuss with Crote Madera and Mill Valley a plan for the cities to buy open space along the ridges which separate them.

MOSQUITO DISTRICT — Reappointed Gilbert Dubuc to a two-year term on the Marin Mosquito Abatement District board.

RAISE — Gave final approvalof a 7.5 per cent raise to Bathurst, increasing his salary to $20,000 per year.

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of Jame Lienkaemper from the parks and recreation commission and set next Wednesday to interview three persons who have filed for his seat: John Rocky, Carol Bindi and Guilio Boeri.

POLICE CARS — Authorized purchase through the state of two American Motors police cars.

CONFLICT OF INTEREST — Discussed problems resulting because City Atty. Robert W. Elliott also represents developer Niels J. Schultz Jr., but took no action.

BURGLARY REPORTS — Asked that printing of a week's burglary roundup in the Independent-Journal be discussed at the next meeting of the Council of Mayors and Councilmen. Councilman Alfred Malvino said, "I personally can see no benefits to printing such a list."

Toll Plaza Plans To Be Discussed

Preliminary engineering plans for modernizing the Golden Gate Bridge toll plaza, at a cost of $3.3 million, will be considered by bridge district directors at 10 a.m. tomorrow in the toll plaza office.

The directors hired outside engineers in 1969 to begin work on the project, which will include reversing the one-way toll collection system to collect from northbound traffic. Southbound traffic will be routed around the west side of the administration building via a new roadway.

The finance-auditing committee will meet first at 9:30 a.m.

Hillcrest Board Plans New Hospital

By BONNIE BARD

Hillcrest Hospital directors told city officials from Southern Sonoma last night that they plan to build a new hospital in East Petaluma next year.

The hospital board thus revealed competition with plans by Quantas Development Co. for a 200-bed hospital at the rear of McDowell School on Petaluma's east side.

Hillcrest administrator Joseph Horner and planners from the firm of Stone, Marraccini and Patterson of San Francisco said 250 beds would be needed by 1990 to meet a projected population of 85,000 in Southern Sonoma.

Representatives of Quantas and its associate firm, Young American Homes Inc., attended the meeting at Petaluma City Hall but made no comment. City officials from Petaluma, Rohnert Park and Cotati were at the session.

Horner said directors had chosen a location near Highway 101 to build a new hospital. He said the present 57-bed hospital would be retained for specialized care such as obstetrics or geriatrics.

The hospital's planners had advised against any large building program on that hillcrest site because of the hilly terrain and rock base that would make construction costly and difficult, the meeting was told.

The planners estimated the cost of a new 100-bed hospital at between $8 and $10 million. Horner said the hospital district would not be eligible for massive government aid and that the large share of construction costs would probably have to be financed by general obligation bonds approved by voters. The hospital district includes Petaluma, a small section of North Marin, Rohnert Park and Cotati.

Hillcrest board president Jack Garrison said that if Quantas's plan is superior to Hillcrest's and the rival facility could provide better medical facilities at less cost, the board would support it and make planning information available to them.

He said, however, that Hillcrest began its long-range plan studies last October, months before the Quantas plans became known.

Final approval for hospital plans lies with the Bay Area Comprehensive Health Facilities Planning Council.

Dr. William Heneks, president of the Sonoma County Comprehensive Health Planning Association, said his group's policy has been to support one large medical facility for Southern Sonoma, rather than several small facilities.

He said the association would officially review Hillcrest's plan next month. While he stopped short of assuring endorsement, Dr. Heneks said past applications for expansion funds have always received the association's support.

Any plan for a hospital in East Petaluma was soundly criticized by Rohnert Park representatives, who said they felt their city should be selected for the site.

Developer Paul Golis and Councilman Arthur R. Roberts questioned the planners population projections for Rohnert Park as being too low and said they should have a hospital of their own.

COMMUNE

the Palo Alto ordinance, Judge Wollenberg said that the commune members "are unquestionably sincere in seeking to devise and test new life styles . . ."

However, the judge found, such groups are not protected by the same longtime rights afforded to traditional families.

Several factors distinguish traditional families from "voluntary" ones, he wrote in his decision. "The traditional family is an institution reinforced by biological and legal ties which are difficult, or impossible, to sunder."

The traditional family "plays a role in educating and nourishing the young which, far from being 'voluntary' is often compulsory. Finally, it has been a means, for uncounted millenia, of satisfying the deepest emotional and physical needs of human beings," the judge wrote.

Judge Wollenberg said that "emotional ties between commune members may exist, but this is true of members of many groups." He termed the communes similar to such traditional groups as religious communities and residence clubs.

"The right to form such groups may be consititutionally protected, but the right to insist that these groups live under the same roof in any part of the city . . . is not," he concluded.

The judge said that these groups are free to live together in other than in residential zones.

Finally, the judge touched on an economic question raised by Palo Alto city attorneys.

"Many older neighborhoods have large, once-distinguished town houses and often owners find it more profitable to rent . . . to large groups of unrelated persons with independent sources of income," the judge said.

This practice could cause the rent structure of a whole neighborhood to rise, he concluded.

Larkspur's One World Family lives in an old, 18-room house which was formerly a convalescent home.

courses, marinas, or spectacular outdoor settings. These must be supplemented by a mix of other recreational facilities to diversify the visitors' stay, and service shops such as restaurants, gift shops and drug stores to supply visitors' needs.

In the off-season winter months, the report said, small conferences would be an ideal complement to the tourist trade. Conferences of executives, special discussion groups and training groups draw up to 40 persons and do not require the large convention-type hotels, the study added. "Most conferences are scheduled to avoid weekends and summer weekends and summer vacation period, thereby providing an ideal seasonal balance," the report said.

Vacation trailer spaces would attract families on a more modest budget and with more rugged objectives, ERA said.

Marinas to complement resort hotels are most promising in Richardson Bay and San Rafael Bay, and on a limited scale along Tomales Bay, the firm said.

ERA recommended that the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitor's Bureau act as a permanent advisory board with whom prospective investors in resort and hotel facilities could consult. The chamber could then act as liaison between public agencies and prospective investors. The $30,000 per year which the county gets from its motel and hotel room tax should be used by the chamber to acquaint potential investors with Marin's assets as a resort area, ERA said.

ERA predicted that a full complement of resort hotels with related services and recreational facilities would bring in $100 million annually for the next 20 years in the form of new construction and retail sales.

the series of demonstrations in the United States to come to a sudden end, although the U.S. government is acting to prevent recurrence of violence."

The Soviet protest delegations preceded and followed the brief demonstration outside the embassy Wednesday night when 20 young Russians chanted slogans for about 15 minutes before being shood away by a Soviet sentry.

The chanters followed a delegation of what the Soviets called "indignant workers" who peacefully entered the embassy to deliver letters protesting incidents in the United States in which militant Jewish demonstrators attacked Soviet offices, diplomats, artists and entertainers.

Attorney For Angela Comments

One of Angela Y. Davis's attorneys said today that "it is premature" to speculate on possible motions for a change of venue in her trial on charges stemming from the Aug. 7 Hall of Justice shoot-out.

And a Marin County bail bondsman said Miss Davis should have "no trouble at all" arranging bail, even if the courts set a figure as high at $500,000.

Attorney Howard Moore Jr., reached in Atlanta, Ga., today told the Independent-Journal that "people are a little ahead of themselves" in speculating whether Miss Davis's trial might be moved from Marin County to either San Francisco, Los Angeles or elsewhere.

(Meanwhile, Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty said he "certainly wouldn't welcome" a change of venue to Los Angeles, according to United Press International.)

Attorney Moore said he and Miss Davis's other attorneys plan to return to Marin Superior Court on Feb. 5. At that time, Moore said, the defense will present further arguments on two motions made earlier this week, to have the court set bail, and to set aside the grand jury indictment against Miss Davis.

Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson said Tuesday that he would ask an outside judge to rule on the motions.

Moore said today he will be in charge of Miss Davis's defense during the actual trial — if the attorneys fail in their attempts to win dismissal. Attorney Michael Tigar will handle most of the pretrial matters, Moore explained.

Miss Davis's bail — if granted — would be "no trouble at all," according to Joe Pecora, owner of the Marin Bail Bond Agency.

A number of bail bondsmen would divide the coverage among themselves, Pecora explained today. He said that "10 or 15 or 20" persons each could pledge collateral consisting of deeds of trust, bank deposits or other security, to the bondsmen. The bondsmen's fee would be the standard 10 per cent of the amount of bail set by the court, Pecora said.

"We'll bail anybody so long as there's collateral," Pecora added. "We're not judging the guilt or innocence; anybody's entitled to bail if the court says so."

Pecora said he had inquiries on bail for the former UCLA college professor as soon as she was returned to Marin County.

In a sidelight to the Davis case, yesterday entertainer Dick Gregory told an audience of 2,000 Laney College students and the press at Oakland's Civic Auditorium that Miss Davis was "definitely a political prisoner" and a "victim of a plot."

He said the Federal Bureau of Investigation has thoroughly infiltrated Communist Party circles.

saying "peace is still very far from our reach."

The Allied negotiators attacked the communist demands for the overthrow of the Saigon government and the unilateral and unconditional withdrawal of U.S. and other Allied forces from the south as obstacles to the opening of genuine negotiations.

Bruce also complained about the Communist attitude toward prisoners of war, repeating his charge Hanoi was guilty of "cynical exposure of prisoners of war to public curiosity for propaganda purposes" when it allowed a Canadian television correspondent to make a controlled and later censored film on American prisoners in North Vietnam.

Bruce began his conference statement by telling the Communist delegates "serious negotiations call for willingness to discuss reasonable proposals without posing demands on a take-it-or-leave-it basis or as preconditions to discussion."

Mrs. Duskin Gets Alimony, Support

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The wife of wealthy dress manufacturer Alvin Duskin has received a final divorce decree, custody of three minor children and $2,166 a month in alimony and child support.

Duskin also agreed to pay $7,000 on a piece of property and give it to Mrs. Constance Duskin.

TOURISM

over two lots on the bank of Corte Madera Creek, according to plans presented by Schultz.

Schultz and his architect, Richard R. Zahm of Kentfield, made a one-hour presentation that included color slides designed to show why the building proposed would be compatible with the north shore of the creek.

Schultz said, "We are not requesting any variance or any privilege. This is something we are entitled to by right under the ordinance of Larkspur."

No variances were required because the planned structure met all setback, height and other limitations of an R-3 area. However, Schultz had to gain approval for design of the building.

While opposing planning commission rejection of the building's design, Schultz did concede: "I think the one (argument) that was most pervasive was building across lot lines."

Planning Chairman Robert H. Lee agreed last night. He said it "boils down to excessive mass of this structure."

He said approval would signal the first three-story structure built across lot lines along the creek. "This would create a tunnel effect," he said.

"I'd like them (the council) to consider what our limitations are about building across lot lines. Where do we stop?" he said.

He read from a memorandum from City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst which said, "As a matter of policy, structures occupying widths in excess of two parcels along either side of Corte Madera Creek must be discouraged."

Lee said a new plan to cover three lots with a building has reached the commission on the heels of Schultz's plan.

Several citizens in the audience of 40, including representatives from the Larkspur Town Meeting, backed Lee.

Schult's appeal to the council was the first time in at least five years, and probably the first time ever, that a decision on architectural design was appealed to the city council, Bathurst told the Independent-Journal.

Bathurst, whose staff had recommended approval with certain modifications to the planning commission, again recommended approval of the Schultz plan last night.

"It was the general consensus opinion that what the staff did not like was the visual mass of the building from Corte Madera Creek," he said.

However, he added, "In all, looking at the lot again, we feel that this structure can be compatible." He suggested indenting the building slightly at one point to eliminate the mass problem. Schultz agreed and so changed his artists's rendition of the building.

The council action came only three months after it had denied a commission request for a moratorium on creek building to allow time to work out criteria for creek development.

Lee's comment on the tunnel effect, a phenomenon disputed by Schultz, related to a claim by conservationists opposing an earlier building application that the apartments were creating a "Chinese Wall" keeping the public from the creek.

Schultz argued his plan would not harm the creek and "in fact, our landscaping will increase the natural amenities of the creek."

count in turn before taking up another defendant.

In the courtroom turned over to the jury are three motion picture projectors, a projector for viewing the nearly 200 still photographs taken of the demonstration, and other evidence including a slingshot, two blackjacks, a picket sign and a variety of missiles.

Solano County Clerk Neal Crawford said yesterday the case, transferred from Marin County, was the longest and most expensive in Solano County history. So far, he said, it had cost more than $17,000 in jury fees, court aides' expenses and other items, for which Marin County will be billed. hormone as "a great basic research breakthrough with possible applications ranging from the study of growth and development of human beings through the possible treatment of cancer and arteriosclerosis."

Its first beneficiaries will probably be the 10,000 to 50,000 children suffering each year from hyper-pituitary dwarfism. They could grow to normal size with HGH treatment.

Li, who has spent 32 years studying the pituitary gland its hormones, likened making HGH to building a highway.

The hormone, which is made naturally in the pituitary, a pea-sized gland at the base of the brain, consists of 188 amino acids and is the most complex protein ever synthesized by man.

"We had to put 188 amino acids together, one block at a time, then we had to build two bridges —a small one, like the Golden Gate bridge, and a large one, like the (San Francisco-Oakland) Bay Bridge," Li said.

"We built the highway first — block by block. That took about two years. Then we spent two years on the bridges."

There was one difference — every time a mistake was made on the "highway," Dr. Li and his colleague, Dr. Donald Yamashiro, had to start constructing it all over again. The "bridges" are essential chemical bonds connecting a pair of specific amino acids on the long "highway." Without them, the hormone doesn't function.

Li and his team first isolated and purified HGH, one of 100 hormones made by the pituitary, in 1956. They determined its structure a decade later.

In 1961, they started using HGH taken from dead bodies to treat undersized children suffering from one form of dwarfism. With steady medication over a period of several years, the youngsters grew to normal size.

However, an inadequate supply of HGH from cadavers limits the treatment to about 1,000 children a year in the United States. Pediatricians estimated another 10,000 to 50,000 youngsters are being condemned to permanent dwarfism because of the supply shortage.

FROG (Free Rocket Over the Ground). He said they had a range of between 37 and 44 miles and were highly accurate, highly mobile and already were operational with Egyptian crews.

The authoritative Israeli source said if the war of attrition along the canal were renewed more firepower would be involved. He said the Russians by using the Luna rockets would not have to risk their planes near the canal.

The source also said the array of Soviet SAM missiles along the canal was more dangerous now than last summer and that Israel could not ignore nor afford to take lightly recent Egyptian threats to resume the war of attrition.

In Paris, meanwhile, Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad conferred with French Foreign Minister Maurice Shumann on how to speed up efforts to restore peace in the Middle East. Riad has said Egypt might not extend the current ceasefire beyond its Feb. 5 expiration date if Israel does not make a firm commitment to withdraw its troops.

might be a presidential candidate. Since he might become involved in trying to win delegates, he said he felt he should not be telling them how they should be chosen.

McGovern described the 1968 convention as a "traumatic shock" to the party. He predicted that the 1972 convention, as a result of revised procedures, would be "the least boss-ridden" ever.

He said that in getting state Democratic organizations to comply with commissions' proposals, the group already was "at least half way home." By July 1 more than half of the states will be in compliance and most others will be near the goal, he said.

OBITUARIES

REID KIMBALL

Memorial service for Reid Kimball of Synanon's Marshall facility will be tonight at the Synanon Santa Monica center he once headed.

Kimball, 52, died Monday at a San Francisco hospital after suffering from a heart condition for several years.

A reformed heroin addict and gangster, he rose to a top position in the ranks of the organization dedicated to reforming addicts and to forging a new life style.

Born in Logan, Utah, he moved to Santa Monica as a child and became an addict as a young man. He was also a gambler and hoodlum operating in San Francisco and Los Angeles, according to Charles Dederich, founder of Synanon.

"He was quite a roller, closest thing to a gangster that the West Coast had at that time," Dederich said.

The head of Synanon told of a time when Kimball was arrested in Santa Maria with $35,000 or $40,000 in his pocket. Police, unwilling to be responsible for it, locked the cash in the cell with him.

Kimball never served time in prison.

In 1959, in failing health and down in his luck, he joined the year-old Synanon. He kicked the drug habit after 20 years.

He was a Synanon director from 1962 to 1967 and was head of the San Diego branch in 1965 and the Santa Monica facility, the group's largest, in 1966 and 1967.

He was in Marin in August of 1964 when Synanon opened its Marshall facility, but returned to Southern California until a year and a half ago.

Surviving are his wife, Ronna of Marshall and two sisters living in Santa Monica.

His great-grandfather, Heber C. Kimball, was the first president of the mormon Church after Brigham Young.

A native of San Francisco, Steinbach moved to Oakland as a child. He served with the Oakland Police Department for 27 years, retiring 16 years ago.

He moved to Petaluma in February 1969 and made his home with his daughter, Elaine Luther.

Steinbach was a member of the Widows and Orphans Association of the Oakland Police Department and the Building Service Employees Association of Oakland.

He is also survived by a brother, Henry Steinbach of Oakland; 12 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Wendy, nose pressed against the door, appears as hesitant as her twin sister. However, Jill Weger, 4, looks on more cooly since she is a veteran of the rubella campaign of November and December when more than 18,000 youngsters aged 1-11 were vaccinated. The makeup clinics are to run through Jan. 26 at locations throughout the county. (Independent-Journal photo).

'Airphibious,' Space Age Boat, Will Carry Mail At Sports Show

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—"Airphibious One," so-called space age boat, will carry U. S. mail on its historic world's first indoor balloon flight at the Friday opening of the San Francisco Sports and Boat Show.

Airphibious One is a combination boat and balloon, or skyboat, designed by Brooks Stevens, Milwaukee, famed industrial designer. It is designed for sale to anyone who wants to fly from his own backyard to the nearest lake.

There will be 500 inaugural flight memorial covers to be carried as U.S. mail the first day. These will be addressed to the boat show office and taken to the Vistacion Valley Post Office to be cancelled and returned. The inaugural covers will then go on sale to stamp collectors for $1 each.

In the four-times-a-day flights of Airphibious One during the course of the 10-day show "commemorative" covers will be flown as well as post cards. These will be sold at a post office in the lobby and are intended to be mailed to friends.

The strange new aircraft will be piloted by Don Piccard, Swiss-born son of famed balloonists Jean and Jacques Piccard.

He designed the balloon on the craft. It measures 35 feet high by 28 feet at the equator. The gondola boat is six feet in diameter and powered with a 35 horsepower outboard motor which, when idled, fans the balloon on course, and in water powers the boat.

New Fire Station Talk Is Launched

The San Rafael Fire Commission has started a new discussion of a new main fire station.

Fire Chief Vance Trivett said the commission, which met Tuesday, "spoke generally" of the area of Second and C streets and Third and C streets as possible locations.

A new station was rejected by San Rafael voters last June.

Trivett said the commission's interest now is simply to present possible locations to the city council for their consideration.

He said the commission will continue its hunt for flat property away from one-way streets.

He listed lack of space and a deteriorating building as reasons for moving from the main station located at C Street and Fifth Avenue.

In other action, the commission formally hired seven new firemen at $794 per month each.

The new firemen are Terry Butler, Anthony Ginocchio, Brent Marshall, John Williams, James Vell, Don Thompson and James Coffey.

Heavy Vote At College Of Marin

A heavier than usual turnout of voters was reported yesterday at the College of Marin during the first day of student body elections.

About 300 students voted yesterday, a college spokesman said, predicting this spring's election would have one of the largest ballot counts. Voting ends today.

The last election, held in October, saw only about 190 students vote.

The higher count yesterday may have been the result of wide differences in political philosophies among candidates.

PEOPLE'S PARTY

One group of five candidates, representing the People's Government Party, maintains it will "have student government relate to the people."

Composed of what it terms "the most far out people on this campus," the party claims it relates to the plight of all people.

A campaign statement calls for student government to cease being "the symbolic puppet" for administration and faculty and for an end to administration "harrassment" of students through use of disciplinary probation.

INDEPENDENT SLATES

Other students running for office are Steven C. Banks and Dean Paul Carry for president, Kenneth Batt and Tim Nielsen for vice president, Olga Lynne Nicholes for secretary, Douglas W. Hunt for public relations commissioner, Robert A. Mayer and Michael Satterlee for college center commissioner, Mark A. Buckley for rallies and assemblies commissioner, Richard G. Mills for spirit and athletics commissioner and Rosemary MacFarland for head yell leader.

The campaign statement of candidate Carry calls for a return to constitutional government and then adds that all political activities concerning the "outside world" be held off the campus.

Candidate Banks said if elected he will work toward a solution to student problems, such as finding doctors and dentists offering discount rates for needy persons, low cost housing, job placement, child care centers and an analysis of where the college's money goes.

Nejedly Bill Bans Soap Phosphates

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The sale and manufacture of phosphate detergents—the key ingredient of modern laundry soap that housewives depend on—would be banned under a bill introduced by Sen. John A. Nejedly.

The Walnut Creek Republican said Wednesday medical evidence indicates that phosphate poisoning attacks the liver, kidneys and intestines. He estimated soap manufacturers do a $150 million annual business in California.

"In the prevention of use lies the most appropriate answer," Nejedly told a newsman who inquired why a ban is necessary.

The lawmaker also said phosphates cause algae to proliferate in fresh water lakes. The algae extract oxygen from the water and clog fish gills, eventually suffocating them," he said.

The freshman lawmaker, who for two years has led an unsuccessful attempt to completely ban DDT, estimated 6 million pounds of phosphates seep into California's underground water supply annually from septic tanks and sewage treatment plants.

Nejedly, a member of the Sierra Club, when asked where housewives would find substitutes to do the family laundry, replied:

"What did grandmother do? She used a fat and lye combination soap that was biodegradable."

The legislator said manufacturers are capable of producing laundry soap without phosphates that has the same cleansing power. "If housewives understand what they (detergents) are doing to the environment, they'd be for the ban," he said. "Now they're compelled to contribute to the contamination."

The measure would ban the sale or use of any pre-soak product containing phosphates beginning Jan. 1, 1972 and would prohibit any phosphate soap as of Jan. 1, 1973.

VERBAL BATTLE

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Big John Wayne and anti-war protestors had a verbal shootout in the streets of Sacramento, according to a complaint filed with police by a 22-year-old Sacramento man.

The incident allegedly occurred Monday night as the Academy Award-winning star of countless Westerns left the Sacramento auditorium, where he had served as master of ceremonies at Gov. Ronald Reagan's inauguration gala.

Witnesses asserted that Wayne saw the group and also noted that the antenna had been broken from the car he was using and said "what the — is that?"

He then reportedly walked toward one person carrying a VC flag, but was restrained by a companion.

"You haven't even been there and don't know what it's all about," one witness said Wayne told the group. "I have been."

TRIES AGAIN

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A bill easing the restrictions on the teaching of sex in public schools was submitted Wednesday by Sen. Albert S. Rodda, D-Sacramento.

The measure would allow sex education courses without parental consent if a mother or father could inspect the class materials during or after the course. Currently, no sex education course can be taught unless a parent or guardian gives prior written permission.

The Rodda bill is similar to legislation defeated last session.

MINORITY CHIEF

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Sen. Fred Marler of Redding has been chosen minority floor leader by Senate Republicans.

Chosen unanimously Wednesday for the post of GOP leader in the upper house, the lawmaker pledged "to keep a unified Republican party."

"We have slipped periodically into factions that have prevented us from being a workable, viable minority," said Marler, who was elected to the Senate in 1965.

He also said he would try to "put aside pure partisan politics so we can settle down to do the people's business."

'False Advertising' Charges By FTC

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) issued false advertising charges today against the makers of "Veg-e-Matic," a food cutter, and Telex hearing aids.

The FTC said Veg-o-Matic television commercials claim the product will cut and slice raw carrots, ripe tomatoes and similar foods, but the packaged instructions warn:

"Don't slice raw carrots, raw beets, lemons, oranges, ripe or overripe tomatoes. Veg-o-Matic is not intended to slice these foods."

The FTC said Telex hearing aids, contrary to their advertising, neither are new inventions nor have new mechanical or scientific principles, are not invisible when worn, and will not enable many people with hearing disabilities to consistently distinguish sounds in group conversations or amid background noise.

The agency said Telex advertisements also create the "false impression" that the firm offers free books on hearing disabilities with no strings attached.

Actually, the FTC said, names of people responding to the offer are given to dealers who send hearing aid salesmen to the respondents' homes.

Both FTC actions were proposed consent orders. The firms can sign them, agreeing to stop the allegedly deceptive ads without acknowledging guilt; or contest the case before an FTC hearing examiner.

Applicatants for the apprenticeship program must apply before Feb. 11 by contacting the Plumbing, Heating and Cooling Contractors Association at 857 Sweetser Avenue, Novato.

Young men 18 to 25 years old, who have a high school diploma or its equivalent, may apply. Applicants must also have a valid driver's license and must be willing to attend classes two nights a week for instruction.

Jose A. Silva has been nominated for a sixth term as chief of the Bolinas Volunteer Fire Department by the Bolinas Volunteer Firemen's Association. Fund For Machine Gets Boost

Two major gifts have swelled the campaign for funds for a Marin General Hospital linear accelerator past the $35,000 mark, and a leading figure of the entertainment world has agreed to headline a fund-raising dinner for the campaign Monday night.

The gifts, announced today by Mrs. Walter G. Strauss of Terra Linda, campaign chairman, are $10,000 from the William G. Irwin Charitable Foundation of San Francisco and $2,000 from Marin Lodge 1108, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks.

The show business headliner is Edgar Bergen, who will fly from Hollywood with his wooden alter-ego, Charlie McCarthy, to entertain at a dinner Monday evening at Sabella's of Marin.

In addition to Bergen and McCarthy, familiar to two generations of radio listeners, movie goers and TV watchers, the entertainment will include Julie Dickinson and John Scott, who are appearing in the Fairmont Hotel's New Orleans Room in San Francisco. Also on the program will be a Dixieland band made up principally of Marin County physicians.

Sabella's will donate all food and facilities for the dinner, and restaurant employees will donate their services, in hope of bringing the campaign to its goal of $50,000, said Mrs. Strauss. If that much can be raised, Marin Hospital District will provide the rest of the funds for purchase of the linear accelerator, she said.

The machine would replace the cobalt bomb unit at the hospital for treatment of cancer. It is a more recent development and more effective, according to the medical profession.

Stabbing Of Inmate Is Fatal

A 30-year-old San Quentin convict was stabbed to death as he returned to his cell from an evening meal yesterday.

Harvey C. Fortner of San Pablo was stabbed three times in the back and once in the stomach about 5:15 p.m., said Associate Warden James W. L. Park. He was pronounced dead at the prison hospital at 6:02 p.m., Park said.

A 12-inch home-made knife was found in the cell unit and is presumed to be the murder weapon, Park said. One suspect was held today in an isolation cell, he said.

Fortner was originally convicted of burglary in Contra Costa County and later escaped from a work camp in Lake County.

17 Road Deaths

MANILA (UPI)—Seventeen persons were killed and 54 others injured in two separate road accidents in the Philippines Wednesday, police reported today.

Woman To Plead In High-Speed Chase

A San Francisco woman has been arraigned in Marin Municipal Court on charges of reckless driving and failure to heed a red light and siren after she allegedly led California Highway Patrol officers and sheriff's deputies on a bizarre high-speed chase New Year's Day.

Kathryn Ann Ours, 27, was arrested after the chase, which began in Kentfield and ended when the woman rammed two sheriff's cars on the Waldo Grade with her auto, officers reported.

The highway patrol gave this belated account of the events leading to the arrest of Mrs. Ours, who was reportedly distraught over marital difficulties when the incident occurred:

A motorcycle officer, on patrol in Kentfield, saw Mrs. Ours speeding east on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at 9:45 a.m. and gave chase. Lights flashing and siren wailing, he pursued her onto Highway 101 and south on the freeway until she exited on East Blithedale Avenue in Mill Valley.

Another highway patrolman in a car joined the caravan of pursuing officers as Mrs. Ours drove south on Highway 101 at a high rate of speed.

Finally, with the highway patrol cars in front of and behind Mrs. Ours's car, and with the sheriff's cars on either side, the woman was brought to a halt, but not before she had rammed the sheriff's vehicles.

The highway patrol said Mrs. Ours did not stop because she thought the officers had been called by her husband to arrest her.

She is scheduled to enter a plea next Tuesday, in Marin Municipal Court.

Student Reports Are Due Study

The Marin Junior College District board, meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at Olney Hall, will hear four reports on students at the College of Marin.

The reports include a survey of dropouts, enrollment, a study on black students and a student characteristic report.

In other action, the board will consider changing the district's name to Marin Community College District and a teacher training agreement with the University of California and review the college's study program for the winter quarter.

Panel To Discuss Police Relations

A police-community relations workshop will be held Saturday at 10 a.m. at Christ Episcopal Church, Sausalito.

The program, which will run until 3 p.m., will feature a panel discussion on "Police Community Relations in Sausalito" with a panel made up of policemen businessmen and two members of the street ministry.

Purse Stolen From Car: $600 Loss

A purse containing about $600 in cash and jewelry was stolen yesterday from the front of an auto parked outside Wigs-N-I at Corte Madera Shopping Center, police said today.

Officers said Irene R. Speed of Hayward, district manager for the wig company, parked her car at about 7:45 p.m. When she returned 10 minutes later, the purse, containing $126 in cash and between $400 and $500 in jewelry, was missing.

Eviction Panel Back For Study

A proposal to establish a five-person tenant eviction panel to review and make decisions on evictions from public housing has been sent back to the drawing board by commissioners of the Marin County Housing Authority.

According to Wallace K. Shepherd, authority executive director, commissioners indicated Tuesday they favored the idea of such a group, but objected to committing the authority to the decisions of the panel.

The commission also wanted further time to study the plan, he said.

Shepherd said the panel would include one representative from each of the following groups: Senior Citizens Coordinating Council, Marin City Community Services District, Tenants Union, Department of Public Social Services and Housing Authority.

The proposal again will be resented at the commission's Jan. 20 meeting.

The Marin County Housing Authority also:

TV CABLE — Awarded a bid for wiring and amplification necessary to install a television cable system in Marin City Public Housing to Cable Antenna Systems of San Rafael, whose low bid was $24,708.

SENIOR CITIZENS — Agreed to renew for another year a contract with the Marin Senior Coordinating Council to provide employment, transportation and recreation for senior citizens qn Marin City and other housing authority housing projects. The commission agreed to pay the council $6,000 in 1971.

BOILER SYSTEM — Awarded a contract for a boiler system for heating to the E. H. Morril Co. of San Francisco with a low bid of $8,853.

REPRESENTATIVE — Chose Melvin Randolph, manager of Marin City Public Housing, to represent the authority on the Marin Economic Opportunity Council board.

WORKSHOP — Authorized the executive director to attend the National Association of Housing and Redevelopment Workshop in San Diego Jan. 15 and 16.

SUBSTANDARD HOUSING — Adopted a resolution stating the housing authority will not in the future allow any substandard dwellings to be placed under the leased housing program.

Pay Hikes In Dixie Ruled Out

There will be no pay raise in the Dixie School District for fiscal 1970-71 the Dixie School District board decided without comment last night.

Supt. Clifford W. Campbell said that while the formal action was to deny teachers' request for an 11.8 per cent raise retroactive to July 1, the intent was to refuse any raise at all.

The Dixie teachers may be the only ones in Marin denied an increase this year, according to Campbell.

The board made it clear, said the superintendent, that it refused the raise because of its pledge to the electorate in connection with a tax increase election last April.

However, the session was not all salt in the wounds for the teachers. Campbell said the board, considering the projected budget for next fiscal year, decided there will be money for raises in 1971-72, and that teacher pay will be a high priority item. The superintendent predicted negotiations will start within two months.

Campbell said a slight increase of revenue is predicted, and fewer teachers will be needed because of decreasing enrollment.

1,000 Laid Off At Westinghouse

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Westinghouse Electric Corp. has confirmed a report that 1,000 workers will be laid off within the next two weeks at its columbus, Ohio, major appliance factory.

The plant employs 5,000. The company said falling sales and a substantial accumulation of inventory had forced the layoff decision.

Miller Slide Issue Slips Past Council

After months of hesitation, the Mill Valley City Council agreed today to hire a San Francisco engineer to conduct soils tests of the Miller Avenue earthslide.

The action, which came on a 3-2 vote at an adjourned session, followed a 15-minute closed meeting with city Atty. Leland H. Jordan.

The soils investigation is needed if the city is to collect damages from the owner of the land on which the slide occurred.

Today's vote was identical to one on Nov. 2, when the council voted 3-2 to appropriate $3,500 to hire the firm of Dames and Moore to conduct the soils tests.

Although funding was approved in November, signing of the contract was delayed until today. Councilmen Edward J. Boessenecker, Jean S. Barnard and Robert H. Andresen voted for the investigation, while Mayor George E. Wickham and Councilman Jerome C. Hauke opposed it.

City Mgr. William H. Cunningham said the work would start within 10 days and probably would be completed in three months.

The slide once was owned by Thomas Collison, former Mill Valley resident now living in Spain, but it was sold in November to Melinda Rowe-Beddoe, Collison's daughter. She lives in Berkshire, England.

To Perform

The Marin Youth Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Hugo Rinaldi, will perform Feb. 6 at 9 a.m. on Radio KKHI.

Rec Program Set Monday

The Corte Madera winter recreation program will begin Monday, offering 33 activities ranging from belly dancing to bridge.

The courses, most of which will run for 12 weeks, also include: Preschool play group, preschool Polynesia, tumbling, preschool dance, preschool creative art, arts and crafts for 8 to 10 years olds, ice skating, ballet, baton twirling, guitar, judo, ceramics, knitting, creative dance, yoga, tennis, exercise group, hula lessons, drawing, fundamental of investments and a drop-in center for high school students.

Registration may be made in person or by phoning the Corte Madera Recreation Department.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL

IRS Plans To Audit More Tax Returns This Year

There are a few people who do not pay their taxes fully, completely and on time and these few people do run up the costs of collection. There may be more of them than we think and Uncle Sam intends to do a great deal more auditing this year than he has in the past.

The IRS asked for an increase in its budget of over $53 million for fiscal 1971. They claim this increase is necessary because they expect to process over 113 million returns.

The thing we are interested in is that they have asked for an increase of 41.5 million for compliance and an increase of 2,894 people in the compliance section.

To my mind this indicates that each return is going to get a more thorough going over than in the past and that more returns are going to be audited.

Actually the percentage of returns audited is declining according to the IRS. In 1963 it audited 5.8 per cent, in 1969 3.18 per cent and they are estimating 2.6 per cent for 1970 and a slight increase of 2.83 per cent for 1971.

While the percentage of returns audited has been declining, I believe that the audits have been a good deal rougher.

NO CHANGE

IRS states that about 41 per cent of all audits result in no change and they are trying to establish criteria for doing audits that will produce a higher percentage of change audits and a lower percentage of no change audits.

To achieve this, they plan to do more "interview" type audits as opposed to the correspondence audits. In other words, you may be asked to come in and bring your supporting material.

The IRS states that "the interview process takes a greater amount of time" and that's one reason the total number of examinations has decreased over the years, and they are going to concentrate on the interview type examination for low income tax payers. On the other hand, those in higher brackets can handle the matter easily by correspondence because they are usually dealing not with the taxpayer but with his tax accountant or his lawyer.

IRS FORMULA

The IRS is using a mathematical formula on individual returns to determine which returns should be audited.

Your deductions must be within a certain percentage of your adjusted gross income, otherwise your return will be selected for audit.

The big question is what percentages can you deduct and be safe.

If you have a deduction that seems to you to be large in relation to your income, you should fully explain it on your tax return or on a sheet of paper attached to your tax return.

If you have a deduction, you should take it regardless of the amount, and since your taxes are self-assessed and since the burden of proof is on you, you should maintain adequate records to prove every item entered on your tax return.

KEEP RECORDS

People lose deductions not because they are not entitled to them, but because they cannot substantiate them. Good record keeping is over half the battle.

It is very important to report all of your income and deductions accurately, and be sure to put them on the proper lines and check your arithmetic carefully. Accurate reporting on the proper lines with correct arithmetic should let your return slide through the computers unnoticed. However, if there is anything wrong with your return, it jams up the computer or makes for editing before it can be put through the computer and it does get extra scrutiny which may lead to being marked for audit.

While most of us have nothing at all to fear from an audit, it is a time consuming process and it always seems to occur at a time when we are busiest and least able to give it the care and attention it deserves.

Hearing Set In Auto Theft

Ronald Bernard Coy, 20, of San Francisco, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of auto theft.

Preliminary hearing was set for Tuesday.

Coy was arrested in San Francisco after police gave chase when he made an illegal left turn in a car stolen in Novato Nov. 27, according to Novato police.

"America's Tastiest"

Thai Power Play Favors General

BANGKOK (UPI)—A general who already is the most politically powerful man in Thailand is a good bet to become the nation's next prime minister.

For a man who insists he is a soldier and not a politician, Deputy Prime Minister Prapass Charusathiara is remarkably adept at the science of polics.

Prapass sounds like a soldier when he says, as he did again last week, that it has never been his intention to be the prime minister.

He moved back into the politician's stance when he followed that remark with this one: "One human being, however, never knows what the future will hold for him."

Prime Minister Thanom Kittikachorn has indicated his intention to retire at the end of 1971.

There are other possible contenders for the top job, but few doubt that Prapass can have it if he wants it.

For the record, Prapass stands firmly behind Thanom, whose daughter is married to Prapass' son.

There have been local press reports that Prapass has let it be known to all political factions in the country that he firmly supports Thanom.

This message reportedly warned against any attempt to change the government through unconstitutional means under the misconception that he himself might favor such efforts.

So what appeared to be a pledge of support, leaked to the press, came a few days after Thanom had reshuffled his cabinet, bringing in Sen. Prasit Karnachanawat, long regarded as a close associate of Prapass.

The appointment of Prasit, a member of the Liberal Party, as Deputy Minister for Economic Affairs, may have been aimed at bringing the Liberals closer to the ruling government party.

In any case, it appeared to strengthen Prapass' position as a possible successor to Thanom.

Some observers believe Prapass prefers to wait and take over the job of prime minister in a peaceful transition rather than forcing a showdown which could be risky as well as disruptive.

Prapass, who also commands the Thai army and heads the Interior Ministry, is the top contender, but some others are considered in the running.

They include Prasert Ruchirawongse, director general of police; Air Chief Marshal Dawee Chullsapya; Lt. Gen. Sawaeng Senanarong, a minister attached to the prime minister's office; Gen. Kris Srivara, deputy defense minister, and Deputy Foreign Minister Sanga Kittikachorn, younger brother of the prime minister.

Thanom, beset with a host of governmental problems he has been unable to solve, appears to be operating on borrowed time.

There is division in the ranks of the government as well as the ruling party, a long standing problem of insurgency within Thai borders and a serious economic slowdown.

The snipers are beginning to undermine Thanom, a moderate man and a popular leader when times were good.

But now that hard times are here, the followers of Prapass say the reins of power should pass officially to the strong man, the man who has always held them anyway.

Just Not In On The Prank

MANSFIELD, Ohio (UPI)—Service station attendant John Kennedy wasn't in on the gag pulled on a newly married couple. When he saw a note in a car's gas tank which read "Help, I'm being kidnapped," he called police.

Four Ohio highway patrol cars converged on the service station here Tuesday.

The patrolmen found a recently rubbed out "just married" sign on the back of the couple's car.

William F. Sinzinger, the driver, said his uncle must have been responsible for the note.

"I guess my uncle's sense of humor isn't exactly funny," he said.

Reagan Cut In Medi-Cal Draws Fire

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A delegation of welfare rights advocates urged legislators Wednesday to reform California's welfare system and increase grants.

Assemblyman Willie L. Brown, D-San Francisco, who set up the talk session, told the 15 legislators present they were "here as students" to liste n to the 10 "specialists" in welfare.

The welfare panel was harshly critical of the Reagan administration's recent 10 per cent cutback in Medi-Cal spending. The cut was initiated last month to head off a threatened $140 million Medi-Cal deficit, according to the administration.

Helen Little of San Francisco, coordinator of the group and a recipient of aid to the disabled, asked the lawmakers to eliminate "the differences in the grants" of various aid categories in favor of "an adequate flat grant" of at least $300 a month for a single person plus $100 a month for each additional person in the home.

"I'd like to see any of you live on $140 for one month for a mother and one child," she told the legislators.

Sausalito Planners Veto Idea For Central Ferry Terminal

The Golden Gate Bridge District's bid for a single ferry terminal in central Sausalito took a direct hit amidships last night when the city planning commission turned thumbs down on the proposal.

The planners voted unanimously after a two-hour hearing to recommend to the city council that the district's request for a terminal at Litho Street and Bridgeway be denied.

The city's planning director, H. Eric Borgwardt, had recommended rejecting the district's plan in a report issued last week.

The district's proposal called for construction of a pier facility that included an underground 350-car parking lot and some commercial development.

Unless the district is able to convince the city council it should overrule the planner's decision, it will be forced to honor a commitment it made to the city last June and construct a ferry terminal in Marinship.

Dale E. Luehring, general manager of the bridge district, told planners last night that only 26 persons from the Marinship area are using the commute ferry. He said he felt that if most Sausalito residents were forced to drive north to catch a ferry into San Francisco, they would just continue to drive their own cars in to work and defeat the purpose of the ferry operation.

He also said the Litho Street site — which is adjacent to the land just purchased by the city and which is earmarked for construction of a library and other municipal buildings — would be ideal to handle the heavy weekend tourist ferry traffic.

The city wants the Marinship terminal to handle weekday commute use and a smaller terminal developed in downtown Sausalito for weekend tourist use.

Borgwardt was adamant in his opposition to the Litho Street site. He said a terminal there that included parking and commercial development would turn that residential area of the city into "another Union Street."

"The primary objection to that site is its impact on the surrounding area," he said. "Do the residents of this city really want the area, which is primarily reserved for residential use, engulfed in people?"

The commission seemed to object most to the parking facility which the bridge district has proposed. Commissioner John M. Davis admitted he didn't like the Marinship site, but indicated he felt the parking facility would be a significant detriment to the area around Litho Street.

Several commissioners pointed out that while few Marinship commuters were using the ferry now, establishment of a terminal there might prompt new residential development in the area.

The commission also asked Luehring to consider developing the temporary ferry landing now being used which is adjacent to the Trade Fair. Luehring said this was being considered.

Luehring last night showed the commission a model of a new ferry the bridge district hopes to build soon. Costing $2.1 million, the ferry has a possible speed of 25 knots carrying 750 passengers and is 165 feet long, Luehring said.

Luehring said that as soon as a terminal site is decided upon, he hopes to order at least four of the new boats, with one of the new craft being assigned to the Sausalito run and the other three being designated to the planned Central Marin-to-San Francisco route.

N. Marin Board Sets Rates For Point Reyes, Inverness

North Marin County Water District directors have approved rates and connection charges for new customers in the Point Reyes Station and Inverness Park area.

The district is scheduled to take over the Point Reyes and Inverness Park water companies operated by James J. Downey within a few weeks.

District Mgr. Eugene S. Churchill said the takeover, tentatively scheduled for Jan. 12, could be delayed, pending approval from the state Public Utilities Commission.

A bi-monthly rate of $3.50 plus 30 cents per 100 cubic feet of water was set for the new customers, and a connection fee for standard hookups will be $350, Churchill said.

The rates are higher than in the eastern sector of the district but about what was estimated at earlier hearings on the proposal to acquire the two private companies, he said. Takeover of the two companies was approved by voters last year.

The North Marin Water District Board also:

BILLS — Revised its policy on paying excess costs resulting from leakage in a consumer's line, agreeing to pick up half the costs beyond double the normal bill, as compared to the former policy when the district picked up half the costs beyond four times the normal bill. Churchill estimated the change would cost the district about $850 a year.

OCEANA MARIN — Authorized James D. Fritz, chief engineer, to determine project costs and assessment spreads for a proposed improvement district to finance sewage facilities in Oceana Marin Unit One, near Dillon Beach, covering 57 lots.

White Heads Novato Park Commission

Martin C. White has been elected chairman and Renata Barton, vice chairman, of the Novato Parks and Recreation Commission at a reorganizational meeting.

John Briggs, a senior at San Marin High School, the first high school student appointed to the commission, joined the board at Monday's meeting. Briggs will complete the unexpired term of John F. McConnell, former chairman, who resigned last month. The terms ends Dec. 31, 1971.

Edward W. Adams, parks and recreation director, reported attendance at recreation events was 28,128 last month, up 9,354 from December 1969.

The commission adjourned until 8 p.m. Jan. 18 at the Novato Community House.

Plastic Age Invading U.S. Homes

NEW YORK (UPI)—The "Plastic Age" is making it big on the American home furnishings scene.

By 1980, more than three-fourths of all furniture will be made in part or entirely of plastic, according to an executive of a leading producer of cycolac, a material largely responsible for the trend to modern plastic furniture.

"While plastic will continue to be used in large volume as a substitute material in structural and decorative applications, the greatest growth will be in exciting new designs that bring plastic out in the open by capitalizing on their visual appeal and design versatility," says Jack L. Shafer, vice president and sales director for Borg-Warner's Marbon Division.

"There also is an ever increasing demand for color in furniture, and only plastic can offer such a wide variety."

Sales of plastics for furniture are expected to rise from about $100 million in 1969 to $500 million by 1980, he estimates, citing industry predictions that by such time up to 80 per cent of all furniture in offices and homes, as well as appliances, sporting goods, toys and other products, either will be made entirely of plastic or use plastic in major sections.

Cerebral Palsy Appeals Mailed

United Cerebral Palsy of Marin has mailed appeals to 4,000 past contributors in an effort to raise $10,000 to carry the organization through its 1971 program.

Leif W. Evensen, president of the organization, said that the group has depleted its reserves.

Dr. Rudolph Kupfer, chairman of the group's professional advisory committee, pointed out that the organization receives no funds from the United Bay Area Crusade. Funds raised are used to help support camperships, a swimming program, a workshop and respite home for cerebral palsy victims.

Cold Wave's Big Gas Bill

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A California cold wave resulted in a new record for the consumption of natural gas, Pacific Gas & Electric Co. said Tuesday.

Between 7 a.m. Monday and 7 a.m. Tuesday, the company's 2.2 million customers in Northern and Central California used 3.635 billion cubis feet of the gas.

The old record of 3.3 billion cubic feet was set last December and PG&E predicted the new mark would also be broken rapidly.

Helen Clinton's Friends To Hear Concert At Party

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Another party in observance of the 90th birthday of Mrs. Delmar Smith Clinton will be given Sunday at 3 p.m. at the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley, with a concert as the highlight of the afternoon.

Mrs. Clinton, born on Christmas Day, 1880, in San Francisco, but a resident of Mill Valley most of her life, has been a leader in Marin social and music circles for many years.

She is giving the party herself, but it is being co-sponsored by personal friends who are members of the Outdoor Art Club, of which she has been a member for more than 60 years, serving as president in 1927-28.

SINCE ONE of Helen Clinton's major interests over the years has been music, many of the 85 guests expected to attend the party will be friends who are members of Marin music organizations such as the Marin Symphony Guild and Marin Music Chest that she helped to found.

Highlight of the afternoon will be a concert by the Symphony Piccola, a group of first chair players in the Marin Youth Orchestra led by Hugo Rinaldi. The performance, which was one of the items offered in the recent auction sponsored by the Marin Symphony Guild, was purchased as a gift for Mrs. Clinton in recognition of her interest in and support of young musicians. She has attended every concert of the Marin Youth Orchestra since its inception 17 years ago.

The young people performing will be Mary Helen Weinstein, Peter Manu, Dan Smiley, Carole Tomlinson, Carma Romano, Judy Sakanari, Carolyn Thode, Linda Begeley, Laurie True, Steven Levintow, Jed Barahal, Michelle Bergman, Joan Oakley, Scott Sinott and Cindy Hill.

They will play the kind of music Mrs. Clinton loves — Vivaldi's Triple Violin Concerto, Greig's "Elajic" Suite, Tchaikovsky's Variations on a Rococo Theme and the Handel Concerto Grosso, Opus 6, No. 1.

THOUGH SHE lived in San Francisco during her ealry years —her maiden name was Helen Mar Davis — Mrs. Clinton spent all of her summers in Main on her uncle's 160-acre ranch that was located in what is now Scott Highlands, Mill Valley, and has many fascinating memories of those horse and buggy days. She remembers when the land for the town of Mill Valley was auctioned at a sale in Old Mill Park.

In San Francisco Helen led the gay life of a popular belle in the Bay Area at the turn of the century. During this time she was the first woman to drive an automobile — an electric one — in San Francisco and was probably one of the first women to go up in a balloon.

At a bon voyage party for her and her widowed mother, who were going to visit a friend who was the American consul general in Tientsin, China, Helen met and fell in love with Delmar Smith Clinton, a young civil engineer, and they were engaged by the time the ship reached Manila, where he had a building contracting business in the Philippines.

Married in 1906, they lived in Manila 20 years, taking an active part in social life. Mrs. Clinton became the captain of the first women's polo team in the Philippines.

FOR THE birth of her three children she returned to the summer home the family had in Mill Valley. Later they bought the home her stepfather had built in Mill Valley in 1902, and she still lives there with her son, John D. Clinton. Her other children are Mrs. Gerald K. Drew of Rehoboth Beach, Del., and Delmar Clinton of San Fancisco.

During World War I, when her husband became a colonel in the U.S. Army, the family lived in Washington, D.C., for a year, and after the war they lived again for two years in Man-

Weight Control Classes Begin

Registration for a second winter class in weight control sponsored by the Marin County Heart Association may be made with the Heart office in San Rafael.

First class opens Jan. 19 and the 12-week evening sessions will be held on consecutive Tuesdays from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Heart Association office in San Rafael.

The series will be instructed by Pamela Gilroy, registered dietitian. Pre-registration is required because of limited classroom space.

Open to both men and women, the course of study will feature adapting of many favorite recipes to low-calorie count, food preparation around the whole meal pattern, and shopping tips for food while counting calories.

Physician's written referral is necessary, as the course will use a 1200 calorie base with anticipated weight loss of one and one-half pounds per week.

Class sessions will also feature films, a physician speaker and physical therapist.

How To Plan The Perfect Kitchen

HACKETTSTOWN, N.J. (UPI)—When measuring the convenience factor of your kitchen, the American Institute of Kitchen Dealers suggests you consider the following:

Is there counter space between all major appliances? Can you attain access to the area behind your refrigerator for periodic cleaning? Do you have access to the items stored on the top shelves of your cabinets without having to climb, stretch or bend? Are all major appliances near a source of water?

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

In Spite Of It All Big Brothers Are Loved By Their Younger Sisters

DEAR HELEN:

You know, I've been telling my big brother I can't stand him, but I really love him, so I wrote—

What Is A 17½-Year-Old Brother?

A 17½ year old brother is the guy who spends one-quarter of his life underneath his car, another quarter under the hood, still another behind the wheel, and the last fourth doing various things such as sleeping, eating and dating, not necessarily in that order.

Who else can argue two hours with your father about "Why 'Hello Dolly" should be done in the nude?

And isn't he the guy who goes out and buys a flea collar so your mother will stop griping about his long hair?

He also has a not-so-silent protest against maxis and midis — in fact he's been known to shout in the middle of a shopping center: "Down with stupid midis!"

He says he hates all your girl friends but every time they're over he walks around like Adonis. Somehow he manages to leave his Beatles record in your room so he'll have to ask for it, too.

He writes good mad letters to the editor.

He also says he digs beautiful blondes with lots of great hair. Then why is he going with a not-so-beautiful brunette with split ends? Why else? She understands him. Oh yes, a 17½-year-old needs lots of understanding.

His idol is Joe Namath. At 17½, a guy doesn't realize Joe also throws a great forward pass.

And last week, didn't you catch him sitting in the bathtub with blue jeans on, trying to form-shrink them?

He is concerned with and dedicated to the solving of today's problems, although occasionally he has this terrible urge to laugh.

Last, there are only two words to describe my big brother: born winner. (He never got caught at anything). His only credo is: At 17½, ya can't lose!—16½.

DEAR READERS: Big Brothers are great. Here's another sister who thinks so:

A big brother is the first to tell you your levis are too tight and your skirt is too short, though he likes "that look" on other girls.

He brings his cute best buddy home just after you've put your hair up in soup cans. And by the time you're combed and made up, they've left already.

He's the one who tells you which boys are okay and which he'd better not ever catch you with — or else!

He's the one who, when you were kids and he was sick you gave your best suffed animal to... And when he lost his first love (even though you didn't like her) you thought your heart would break for him.

He tells you what a dumb bunny you are — but nobody else had better! He teases you till you cry, then gives you a big hug. He wouldn't tell you that you looked nice if his life depended on it. But he's the first one to tell another guy proudly, "That's my little sister."

He's the one who, when you finally get the guy to come to the house, takes over the conversation with talk about cars and football.

He's the fella who hollers about girl drivers, but teaches you to drive, and lets you use your car.

Now that you're older, he'll tell you off-color jokes, and embarrass himself silly. But if you tell him one — he gets "that look" on his face, and you feel silly.

A big brother is the one who, when you were going to run away, took your face in his hands, told you he loved you and talked you right out of it.

And when he goes in the service, it hits you all of a sudden what a super-great guy he is, and you only hope that some day that special fella you meet will be just like him. — ANOTHER SISTER

American Children Among The Largest In The World

American children are among the largest children in the world, according to the National Center for Health Statistics, Health Services and Mental Health Administration.

In a recent report the Center noted that increases among U.S. children ages 6 through 11 years have been about 10 per cent in height and 15 to 30 per cent in weight over the past 90 years. At 8 years of age (the age which has been used for a major international comparison) U.S. youngsters are in the highest group, both in height and weight.

Commenting on the center's report Dr. Arthur Lesser, director, Maternal and Child Health Service, HSMHA, said.

"The NCHS survey findings support the belief that improved living conditions and improved nutrition have a positive effect in helpind individual children reach the body size which genetic and other factors have determined is possible for them."

The findings were based on a health examination survey of a representative sampling of the nation's 24 million children between the age of 6 and 11. The results were compared with earlier studies of American children and with surveys conducted by other countries.

On a geographical basis, the survey showed that American boys and girls in the Midwest and Northeast tend to be taller and heavier than children in the South or the West.

American Negro children, the findings revealed, tend to be taller, while white children are somewhat heavier. Boys of both races are essentially the same height, but white boys are slightly heavier than Negro boys at each age. Negro girls are on the average taller than white girls but they weigh less until age 11. Then they become both taller and heavier than their white counterparts.

These data and their use as new U.S. standards for growing children are discussed in a new publication, "Height and Weight of Children, United States," PHS Publication 1000, Series 11, No. 104. Single copies can be obtained free from Office of Information, National Center for Health Statistics, HSMHA, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Md.

MUSIC REVIEW

Russian Shines With Symphony

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

SAN FRANCISCO — Seiji Ozawa's return to the podium and the San Francisco Symphony debut of the virtuoso Russian violinist Igor Oistrakh were the major points of interest in the orchestra's concert last night at the Opera House.

Still wearing a neck brace, the diminutive maestro conducted without his customary fiery exuberance, using small but eloquent gestures, but nevertheless still with plenty of spirit and fine control of his musicians.

High point of the evening was the magnificent playing of Oistrakh in Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnole," performed as the last number on the program. It was a rather extraordinary placing for a guest artist. In this case, however, it was logical since a program generally builds to a climax, and Oistrakh's performance certainly provided that.

The 40-year-old violinst does not have a robust tone, apparently preferring to concentrate all his energy in producing a flawless purity and richness of tone and perfection of technique at fantastic velocity without any evidence of effort or strain. His runs and trills were executed so lightly and at such lightning speed that one could barely see his fingers move. A fast vibrato resulted in a richness and warmth of tonal color that was almost vocal.

Ozawa carefully controlled the orchestral volume so that it would not be competitive with or overplay the violin tone, and there was remarkable rapport in the rhythmic feeling between Ozawa and Oistrakh.

Of course, this is just the sort of romantic music in which the Russians excel.

Preceding the Lalo work was another delightful one in the French romantic tradition, the Waverly Overture by Berlioz, who was perhaps master of them all in this genre. His richness of orchestration was evident even in this work, written when he was a student.

Outstanding was the beauty of the cello playing in the enchanting dreamlike section that preceded the brilliant close.

The real test of the orchestra's caliber came in Ives's "Three Places in New England," which ended the first half of the program. Each musician seemed to be following his own independent course in dense, assymetric passages of awesome rhythmic complexity — such as the point in the middle section, "Putnam Camp," inspired by a Fourth of July picnic, in which two bands are heard playing simultaneously. Yet Ozawa pulled it all together to create a meaningful though cacaphonous effect. Everything from sentimental popular tunes to ragtime-like passages and square church hymns required versatility in execution.

The concert opened with a smoothly flowing performance of the Mozart Symphony No. 36 (Linz) in C Major that ranges in tempo and mood from courtly grace to sparkling effervescence.

City Work Plan For The Jobless

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Housing and Urban Development Department (HUD) has worked out a $4 million pilot project to put 1,500 jobless space industry technicians and 500 former servicemen to work in Model Cities projects.

The plan, developed by HUD Assistant Secretary Floyd Hyde working with city and state officials, would recruit and give quick "orientation" courses to unemployed former aerospace workers and "Vietnam era" veterans who have either background in social sciences, managerial experience or military training that would be of use in the federal program designed to rejuvenate urban neighborhoods now on the decline.

Riles In Shakeup Of Office

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —New state schools chief Wilson C. Riles yesterday announced the demotions and reassignments of six aides of former Superintendent Max Rafferty.

"I feel it's very important to make these changes if we're going to get some accountability, direction and goal-setting," Riles, who took office as state superintendent of public instruction Monday, told a news conference.

Riles said his administration would work with the legislature and with Gov. Ronald Reagan and would pursue "a team approach to solving the problems of education here in California rather than conflictive, divisive approaches."

INTERIM AIDES

Riles also announced three interim appointments "to fill the directing and policy-making slots" in his own administration. He said he would appoint a special committee to assist him in "combing the country and recruiting" the best talent available for permanent jobs.

He also appointed Greg Lipscomb, 28, a campaign aide, as his special assistant.

"I'm reducing some of these men to the levels where they can be competent in their jobs," he said of the top Rafferty men being reassigned. "If not, we will dismiss them."

The men being demoted were:

—Everett T. Calvert, granted a four-year contract by the state Board of Education last year as deputy state superintendent for administration. Riles said he would keep his title but be reassigned to "other duties that will not be in a policy-making capacity." He said Calvert's salary would be reduced from its present $29,000 to "below $20,000." Calvert's new job could include "some research duties," Riles said.

TO FORMER JOB

—Edwin F. Klotz, chief deputy superintendent was returned to a former civil service position of national defense education consultant.

—Eugene Gonzales, acting program deputy, was reassigned to his previous post as associate superintendent and chief of the division of instruction.

—George Guftafson, special consultant in education innovation and curriculum, had his job "terminated," but Riles said he would "probably" take a civil service job.

—Collier McDermon, assistant superintendent in charge of the Los Angeles office, was being removed from that post and was also expected to revert to civil service status.

—Walf Oglesby, special assistant to the state board, was also fired and was expected to return to civil service.

Those named to interim jobs were:

—Milton Babitz, 54, former assistant chief of compensatory education, the division Riles formerly headed, to acting chief deputy superintendent.

—Tom Shellhammer, 58, former chief of evaluation in compensatory education, to acting deputy superintendent for programs.

—Alwin J. Schmidt, 61, former fiscal chief in compensatory education to acting superintendent for administration.

Riles said he expected to make permanent appointments in three to six months.

Lipscomb, a former San Francisco Chronicle reporter, worked in the election campaign under media director Sanford Weiner.

Independence Set For Daily Cal

BERKELEY (UPI)—The Daily Californian, student newspaper at the University of California Berkeley, is moving off campus to become independent, it was revealed Wednesday.

The move is part of a new agreement reached by the newspaper staff, campus publications and the chancellor's office.

The move will be effective when regents approve guidelines for the newspaper at its meeting Jan. 21-22 in San Francisco.

Plans call for the Daily Cal to be sold beginning next fall and to establish a new Publishers' Board that will have a student majority.

Under the guidelines, the board, the paper's senior staff, the associate publisher, and a special critique committee will review copies of the paper.

However, the paper will retain campus ties and receive some student fee money until it can support itself. There is no timetable.

In the past UC Regents have been sharply critical of the Daily Cal and other campus newspapers. Last July, they deplored "the frequent use of campus student newspapers as instruments of socio-political advocacy and for the dissemination of lewd and obscene articles and photographs."

For the first time in 60 years, the Daily Cal will not be under the Associated Students government. Instead, it will become an autonomous campus unit under a reorganized publications board, which is expected to give closer scrutiny to content, quality, and performance.

Bay Air Board Hires Sacramento Lobbyist

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Bay Area Air Pollution Control District directors hired a Sacramento lobbyist yesterday for the first time, but shied away from a suggestion that they hire one of the "old guard" lobbyists.

District chairman Victor Calvo, a Santa Clara County supervisor, arguing "we're wiser to tie in with the new breed," successfully supported the hiring of a 38-year-old lobbyist reportedly close to the new Assembly Speaker, Bob Moretti, D-North Hollywood.

The new lobbyist, to be paid $10,000 for the current legislative session, will be Jerry Desmond, an attorney. His lobbying firm was formed last year after he served for four years as a lobbyist for the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Both Desmond and an "old guard" lobbyist, Daniel J. Creedon, were suggested to the district board by its chief administrative officer, D. J. Callaghan. Creedon is widely regarded as one of the most influential men in the Capitol, but Calvo objected that Creedon last year was linked with former Sen. Richard J. Dolwig, R-Redwood City, in reports of special favors that allegedly benefitted Dolwig's insurance business.

Calvo said that Creedon's record was "not exactly lilly white in the past." Creedon, 55, is a former assemblyman.

Bay Area Air Pollution Control District directors also:

ADVISORY COUNCIL — Reappointed James F. Reed III, mayor of San Anselmo, and Joseph D. Coons of San Rafael, a consulting engineer, to the district's advisory council. Reed, as a member of the Marin Conservation League, was one of four on the 20-member council representing organizations active in environmental fields.

VIOLATIONS — Received report that the number of observed violations during 1970 totaled 1,421, down from 1,901 in 1969. Marin had 36 last year and 47 the previous year. Callaghan attributed the drop to a better enforcement program, thus forcing air pollution sources to keep their guard up.

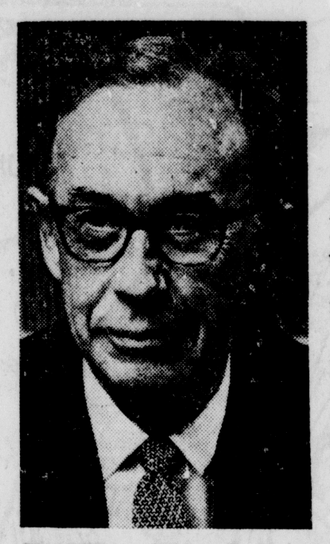
SPEAKERS — Received report that district representatives had made 292 speeches during 1970, reflecting a rapid increase in interest in air pollution. The figure for 1969 was 149, and for 1968 it was 69.

COMPUTER — Voted to set up an electronic data processing system, and to create a position of data processing supervisor with a monthly salary of $1,007 to $1,224.

CARS — Voted to buy 25 new American Motors compact cars from G. K. Hardt of Santa Rosa at a total cost of $56,258.

RADIOS — Voted to buy 10 mobile radio units from the Radio Corporation of America for $6,500.

MONITORS — Voted to buy a sulfur dioxide monitor for $5,279.



NAMED — Edgar F. Kaiser, chairman of the board of Kaiser Industries, will serve as Bay Area chairman of a "Take Stock in America" savings bond drive.

$700 In Tools Taken From Shed

Tools valued at $700 were stolen last weekend from a construction site in the 700 block of Bolinas Road near Fairfax, sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

The tools were stolen from a shed owned by Jorgenson and Davis Inc.

Solano County Attacked

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Bay Area smog officials denounced Solano County yesterday for seeking to exempt half its territory from their jurisdiction.

The smog officials also got a warning from Sonoma County Supervisor Bob Theiller that his county "may take the same position."

The six-county Bay Area Air Pollution Control District, which includes Marin, has tried for 15 years to annex Sonoma, Napa and Solano counties. The district finally won the battle last year in the Legislature with a new law forcing the annexation next July 1.

But the new law provided a partial escape for the three northern counties by allowing them to ask the State Air Resources Board to exempt portions of their territory from the Bay Area District.

Solano County supervisors exercised this provision Tuesday in a 4-1 vote to ask the state board to exempt the northeastern half of the county, a largely agricultural area that includes Dixon, Vacaville and Rio Vista.

The Bay Area district's chief administrative officer, D. J. Callaghan, promptly urged his board yesterday to oppose Solano's petition when it is heard by the state board.

Callaghan said that the area Solano wants to exclude from the district "does cause pollution that blows into the Bay Area."

Contra Costa County Supervisor James P. Kenny warned that if Solano succeeded, then other counties in the district would seek to secede. "They only want less enforcement and less cost," he said of Solano. "To them, the question is which district can they get the best deal from."

There is no district in the Sacramento Valley area yet, but a 1970 state law assures that one will be formed soon. Thus the county's agricultural areas cannot escape regulation, Callaghan noted.

District directors postponed formal action on opposing Solano's bid, pending a presentation of Solano's arguments at 9 a.m. Jan. 22 in district offices, 939 Ellis Street.

Theiller, noting his county supervisors may also move to seek an exemption for a portion of Sonoma, said its representatives also will speak at the Jan. 22 meeting.

Callaghan noted that Sonoma's "only immediate problem" would be the need for a dump in the central part of the county. The county's government, he said, is acting to acquire such a dump.

The district's ban on backyard burning, as well as all its other regulations, will be applied to the northern counties as soon as possible, several directors indicated yesterday. The regulations can take effect 90 days after they are annexed on July 1.

To smooth the way to imposing the regulations in the three counties, district directors voted to pay representatives from the three as "consultants" at the regular directors' fee of $50 a meeting plus expenses until they are seated as directors after July 1. Each of the three counties will get two representatives on the board.

Novato's Foretaste Of Transit Issues

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

The Golden Gate Bridge District's rapid transit plans, which could cost up to $1 billion, still are "years ahead of us," the district board's new president declared last night.

President Lowell Edington of Napa, speaking at a Novato hearing on the plans, said they were ordered by the 1969 Legislature to "show what we can do."

But he said that the district nevertheless will be able to "keep pace with the demand without getting too far in hock — and before you people have to face this great bonded indebtedness."

Edington, who stressed he was voicing his own opinion, said that existing district reserves, combined with expected federal grants, should be able to finance a joint bus and ferry system adequate to relieve congestion for many years.

The plans and their huge price tags were not intended to "scare people," he said. The plans anticipate a bond issue up to $277 million, an issue that would require two-thirds voter approval.

Edington did not offer an estimate of how many years it may be, however, before full rapid transit will be needed. The cost estimates in the plans, drawn by the district's consultants, assumed it would take five years to arrange financing and five years to build a system. It would be completed by 1980 under the consultants' plans.

The plans, under the edict of the 1969 Legislature, must be presented to the 1971 Legislature in April. The district's bonds will be retired this year, and the plans must also include a suggestion on how to dissolve the district in event this is sought by the Legislature.

The plans proposed five alternative transit systems, ranging from "fixed guideway" — perhaps a rail system —to buses on an exclusive right-of-way from Novato to downtown San Francisco. The bus rapid transit would be the cheapest, at $495 million.

Routes proposed in the plans include variations of a second deck on the bridge, an underwater tube and a new bridge to Richmond to link Marin to the Bay Area Rapid Transit District.

—One member of the audience, Fred MacDonald, recalled that bridge engineers eight years ago had vetoed plans to put BART trains on the bridge.

But the bridge district's engineer, Robert E. Shields, said that he and the consultants were "convinced" train cars could be designed to be accommodated on a lower deck. BART's cars were too heavy, he said.

MacDonald, who said he favored freeways over transit, predicted that new freeways will be needed despite any transit system because of the crush of weekend and holiday traffic. "People have enough restrictions Monday through Friday and shouldn't also have them on weekends," he said of transit.

MacDonald also said that San Francisco should restrict growth of its job market, which attracts ever more commuters, until it accepts more freeways. The pollution problem of motor vehicles will be licked, he predicted.

Also expressing doubts about the transit plans was George A. Amaroli, a director of the North Marin County Water District. He predicted that transit would encourage a population growth "unparalleled in mankind."

He proposed instead that gasoline be rationed to force car pools and that commuters riding alone across the bridge be charged a $25 toll.

Shields, however, noted that past proposals to charge tolls on the basis of the number of persons in a car always foundered on the problem of taking the time to make the head count. Such a system would back up traffic severely, Shields said.

As for the impact of transit on population growth, said bridge consultant John Torrey, "growth will occur regardless of transit."

Philip K. Buskirk of Tiburon, a member of the citizens panel advising the district on the plans, added that the cost of doing without transit also would approach $1 billion — just for new freeways. Without transit, he said, Highway 101 would have to be widened to 18 lanes, eating up 1,000 acres for new rights-of-way.

Olympic Art Exhibit Is Set

The Marin Museum Association's latest exhibit, Olympic Art 1972, will feature a series of original graphics interpreting the spirit of the 20th Olympic Games.

The collection of lithographs, serigraphs and posters will be on display on the third floor of the Marin County Civic Center from Jan. 18 through Feb. 26, 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., weekdays.

The collection was provided by the United States Olympic Committee.

It's Been Dark Year —But Bright One, Too

It has been a dark year.

One year ago today, most of the San Francisco Typographical Union members employed in the Independent-Journal's composing room threw up a picket line around the I-J Building instead of reporting for work.

The strike started with violence to equipment. Before the night crew left in the early hours of Jan. 7, 1970, someone sabotaged several pieces of the equipment with which the printers worked.

It continued with other kinds of violence.

ON ITS FIRST night, a bottle of paint was thrown through a window of the home of the mechanical superintendent, and a newspaper delivery van was forced off the road. These incidents set the pattern.

On St. Valentine's Day, a demonstration organized by the union turned into an assault in which virtually every window of the I-J Building was broken. The scene in downtown San Rafael was one to be long remembered with shame and disgust.

Throughout the long year, advertisers and subscribers have been threatened by telephone. Many store windows have been broken. Other business places have been stink-bombed. Goons have tried to halt deliveries of merchandise to I-J advertisers. Tires on automobiles of employees and suppliers have been slashed. Homes of several employees have been firebombed.

THE SAN FRANCISCO Typographical Union has disavowed the violence. But it hired attorneys tc defend seven men arrested in the Valentine's Day melee, a union member charged with firing a shot through a window of the I-J Building, three union members charged with breaking store windows.

On July 4, Alan W. Daly, who had been in charge of converting I-J typesetting to computerized operation, was shot by one of two youths who forced their way into his home. The two subsequently confessed and said they were hired by Frank Thurber, a member of the San Francisco Mailers Union, which is a Typographical Union subsidiary. When Daly died of his wounds, both youths and Thurber were charged with murder. The youths were sentenced to the California Youth Authority; Thurber, convicted, to life imprisonment.

Violence, coercion, intimidation. .

BUT IT HAS BEEN a bright year.

Despite the intimidation, despite the window breaking, Marin business houses have continued to place their advertising where it would reach the most Marin readers.

And despite the threats, readers have stayed with the I-J. Circulation and advertising have declined but little. Thousands of Marinites have gone out of their way to show their support to advertisers who refused to be intimidated.

Despite harassment, non-striking I-J employees — including the vast majority of all those who were on the job a year ago — have continued to endeavor to put out the best possible daily paper under difficulties.

And the I-J has never missed an issue.

Repeatedly, the Typographical Union and the Teamsters Union, which joined its activities although not on strike, have been held in violation of court orders and of the National Labor Relations Act. Where the facts have been presented in court, the forces of intimidation have been found in the wrong. Attempts by the Typographical Union to sustain charges against the I-J have been uniformly rejected by the courts and the National Labor Relations Board.

We hope there is not another such year — ever. But it has proved Marin will not be intimidated.

Hibernation?

When the days are short and gray and the rain comes down steadily, we struggle with a natural inclination to emulate our cousins, the bears, and sleep the winter away.

Other people report they feel the same lassitude in our gray winter days. Add to the weather the annual orgy of over-eating during the holidays, and you have a recipe for relaxation.

No, we couldn't really sleep all winter. But right now we feel like a week in bed might do it.

Sound Talk From Governor On State's Welfare Crisis

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Despite the fact that Gov. Ronald Reagan's second inaugural speech consisted of a "lot of the same," there were some truths in it that will come home to the people of California in the years to come.

The governor's discussion of the welfare situation contains some words of warning that need to be taken to heart. Without comment, therefore, we will provide some of the quotes:

"WELFARE HAS proliferated and grown into a Leviathan of unsupportable dimensions.

"We have economized and even stripped essential public service to feed its appetite.

"Now the economic downturn has brought us to the moment of truth we have avoided for too long a time.

"It has already been suggested that we meet this situation by simply adding to the taxpayers' heavy load. That, of course, is an easy out —for everyone but the taxpayer who already pays too much for government.)

"I'm inclined to believe you didn't send us here to find easy answers. A tax increase, even under the illusion that it would be a temporary expedient, will not resolve the problem. In the first place, temporary taxes have a way of outliving the problems that caused their birth. Government may protest that it never gets the money it needs, but it always manages to find a need for the money it gets. . .

"UNLESS AND UNTIL we face up to and effect complete reform of welfare, we will face a tax increase next year, the year after, and the year after that, on into the future as far as we can see.

"There is no limit to the potential growth of the present welfare structure, short of total redistribution of the earning of all who earn and produce. . .

"Over the years, we've talked about welfare, studied welfare, applied alterations, and streamlined administration where possible, but we've avoided facing up to its lack of a goal...

"The present confusion must be replaced with a program designed to save, rather than destroy, California's greatest resource — its people — a program that will maximize human dignity and salvage the destitute."

This is sound talk and straight talk. It is to be hoped the governor's warning will not have sounded in vain.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

A Sunday fisherman was hauled into court and fined $10 for catching a dozen more black bass than the law allowed. "Do you have anything to say?" queried the magistrate. "Yes, your honor," pleaded the fisherman. "Can you give me six copies of the court order to show my wife and friends?"

The recent bankruptcy proceedings against the once-mighty Penn Central Railroad reminded one Wall Street veteran of the 1929 crash story of the lad who begged his father for a toy railroad set. The father looked up despairingly from the evening stock market report and murmured, "Wait another few days, and I'll buy you the New York Central."

"Okay, you monsters! You're getting smaller and SMALLER AND SMALLER"

Sad History Of F-111 Has Lesson For America

(Reprinted from St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

The story of the TFX fighter plane — the F-111 — may go down in history as a capsule summary of that era in the Pentagon, roughly spanning the '60s, when the military budget went through the roof and the wraps came off of weapons spending. After an eight-year investigation the McClellan subcommittee has issued a report on what it calls the TFX "fiasco," and it contains all the elements that made this period, for the armed forces brass and their allies in defense industry, the golden age of the military-industrial complex.

The TFX originated in a brilliant concept which might have revolutionized weapons procurement and saved a lot of money. It was to be a single all-purpose fighter which both the Navy and the Air Force could use. But the service bureaucracies fought the idea ferociously from the start. Each wanted its own weapons system, its own particular idiosyncrasies of hardware, its own procurement apparatus. As each demanded variations in what was to be a single design, costs began mounting and never leveled off.

ON TOP of this bureaucratic wrange came the disgraceful jockeying among firms, economic interests, states and political powers for the contract. Boeing's design won the approval of most military experts, but in the end General Dynamics, with all kinds of Texas influence behind it, won the contract on a higher bid.

The McClellan committee denounces former Deputy Defense Sec. Roswell L. Gilpatric for the rawest kind of conflict of interest, and so far has has given no convincing defense. Having been intimately connected with top management of General Dynamics before joining the Defense Department, Mr. Gilpatric then played an active and forceful role in persuading Secretary McNamara to give his firm the contract. Sec. of the Navy Korth, whose role in the decision was less vital, nevertheless also acted improperly, for he had been connected with a Texas bank serving General Dynamics.

The web of business connections, political alliances and economic-military influence spread widely through all branches of government and both parties. Let it not be forgotten that after the sordid story had begun to come out, Richard M. Nixon in 1968 hunted Texas votes by promising that the TFX contract, which had become an important source of Texas jobs, would never be canceled by him.

AND WHAT is the upshot of the whole shameful history? The Navy version of the F-111 has been abandoned because it would not fly off carriers. The Air Force version has been grounded after displaying in Vietnam an unfortunate tendency to crash mysteriously. Originally the contract called for production of 1,726 airplanes at an average cost of $3,400,000. To date 538 planes have been built and the average cost is at least 14 million dollars per plane — a four-fold escalation.

A fiasco, the McClellan committee calls it. That is the understatement of the year. Secretary McNamara bears a heavy responsibility before history, and so does everybody else connected with the TFX. But the real lesson is one for the American public, and for Congress. It is for them to resolve that never again must the military establishment be allowed so large a measure of unaudited freedom, so much unmeryted awe and uncritical acceptance, as to get away with anything like a repetition of the TFX story. From secretary of defense down, the Pentagon and its allies have forfeited any claim to be taken on faith.

Defensive Driving Course Offered

The National Safety Council has had an excellent program of defensive driving going here for two years and some 475 persons here in Marin County have taken the course because of its lack of publicity. By means of a student work book, diagrams of accidents, and color motion pictures it demonstrates how to prevent accidents.

We have a group of six volunteer instructors that have been trained by the National Safety Council, and they have willingly served these past two years.

National Retired Teacher Association and the American Association of Retired Persons sponsor these courses, making it possible to offer this course to the NRTA and AARP for $1. A new class in defensive driving will start Jan. 11 at the First Methodist Church in San Rafael from 10 a.m. to noon and will continue for four weeks every Monday morning.

Congress Allows Employes To Set Own Pay Hikes

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Among the bills that slid quietly through Congress during the adjournment rush last week was one in which the lawmakers abdicated what little power they still had over the federal payroll.

Henceforth the salaries of civil service workers and members of the armed forces will be fixed by administrative action within the executive branch of the government.

The President will have the final say, as he does—at least theoretically—in all executive branch decisions. But he will have to rely on studies and recommendations made by federal employes.

THUS A CRUCIAL role in the pay-setting process will be played by civil servants whose salaries will be affected.

The only guideline laid down by Congress is that federal pay scales should be "comparable with private enterprise pay rates for the same levels of work."

Observe that phraseology carefully. Not "for the same jobs," because many federal jobs have no precise counterparts in private industry. The comparison is to be in terms of "levels of work"—a rather vague concept that leaves room for a good many subjective judgments.

And under the new legislation, those subjective judgments will be made by federal employes who have a personal stake in the resulting pay scale.

There is provision for a committee of three persons, appointed by the President from private life, to review proposed wage boosts and to advise the President whether they seem fair and reasonable. But Congress itself normally will have no part in the process. The President will simply proclaim new wage scales and they'll go into effect automatically every Oct. 1.

THE NEW SYSTEM will take effect in 1972. In the meantime, the bill allows for an interim pay boost of about 6 per cent, retroactive to Jan. 1, for 4 million civilian and military personnel.

This will cost $2.2 billion and will boost the federal payroll to $53 billion a year.

The average civil service worker will get an increase of about $584 a year, which will bring his annual pay to $10,311.

There was a time, some years back, when government worjers were clearly underpaid. But 10 across-the-board raises in the past 10 years have made federal service one of the better-paid occupations in America.

For example, Civil Service grade 11, which includes office managers, accounts and computer programmers, now commands a top salary of $15,478. The top salary (paid automatically for those with sufficient time in service) is $18,449 in grade 12, $21,791 in grade 13, $25,538 in grade 14, $29,752 in grade 15, $33,627 in grade 16, $34,810 in grade 17, and $35,505 in grade 18.

And that's before the pending 6 per cent increase takes effect.

If the new law results in additional wage boosts every Oct. 1, as it is widely expected to do, working for the government may become one of the most financially rewarding careers that a person can pursue. Moreover, federal employes also have a high degree of job security, one of the best retirement programs in existence, and a good many other fringe benefits.

Story Of 1956 Repeated In New Polish 'Reforms'

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Since the "bread and freedom" riots of 1956, relations between church and state in 90 per cent Catholic Poland have reflected accurately the state's confidence in its own security.

Thus, the new regime headed by party leader Edward Gierek may be expected to go to considerable lengths to establish good relations with Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski as it attempts to patch over the damage left by December's anti-government demonstrations.

The outspoken Polish primate already has listed his demands including freedom of expression and conscience and what Madison Avenue might call a truth-in-advertising policy to establish confidence between government and the governed.

For his part, Gierek said the party and government expected to profit from the experiences of recent weeks.

WITH A CHANGE in the cast of characters, the script so far reads about as it did in 1956.

Then, as now, the riots had their roots in economic unrest.

Then, as now, there were confessions of party errors and promises of reform.

Wladislaw Gomulka replaced Edward Ochab as first secretary of the Polish party, just as Gierek now has replaced Gomulka.

Catechism returned to the schools and in 1957 relations between church and state had improved to such an extent that the church called for support of Gomulka.

THE REFORMS lived only so long as it took the leadership to re-establish the party grip.

In 1959 the catechism was taken out of the schools.

New pressures were applied to Polish youth, and only two Catholic high schools remained in operation. Minor seminaries were closed down and seminarians made subject to the draft.

Heavy taxes were levied against church properties, including the Catholic university at Lublin.

As the church became more and more subject to government persecution, any semblance of freedom of the press disappeared and the confidence gap between the government and the people widened as the disparity between government words and deeds became more and more apparent.

IT WAS a developing situation made to order for violent unrest.

Average wages came to only about two-thirds of what it cost to support a family of four.

A crazy-quilt pattern of construction had left the country over-spent. Expensive construction equipment stood idle as the government found itself forced to abandon five out of every 15 building projects.

In the 15-19 age group, 23 per cent were unemployed, dissatisfied and ready to foment trouble.

And then as now the government sought its curb in a reduction in the price of inferior television sets and an increase in the price of food.

If You Wish An Early Fall, Gaze Into The Crystal Ball

WASHINGTON — This is the time of year when those of us in the crystal ball business must reveal what our vibrations tell us will happen in 1971.

The science of predicting is so exact that last year I was wrong on only one prediction out of 155. The prediction I erred on was that J. Edgar Hoover would retire and take the FBI with him.

I have had some strong vibrations for 1971 and here they are:

JACKIE KENNEDY will come into a windfall of money and will no longer have to make her own clothes.

The Marlboro man will give up smoking, and go back to chewing tobacco.

Three hundred and thirty-five thousand Spiro Agnew watches will be recalled because of a faulty mainspring.

"Krushchev's Memoirs" will be bought for a film, but in order to guarantee a box office, the producers will add 32 orgy scenes at the Kremlin showing Stalin as a dirty old man.

Former President Lyndon Baines Johnson's book will be published and will reveal that the person responsible for all his wrong decisions was Jack Valenti.

TRICIA NIXON will be married, but Sen. Edmund Muskie will not be invited to the wedding.

The John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts will open in September, and at President Nixon's insistence, Guy Lombardo will conduct the orchestra.

David Eisenhower will become the manager of the Washington Senators.

At the personal request of Princess Margaret, Queen Elizabeth will make Lord Snowdon high commissioner of the island of Tonga in the Pacific Ocean. Although Princess Margaret will not go with him, she hopes it will stop the rumors that they are not getting along together.

David Frost will ask for political asylum in the United States after being turned down for a knighthood in Great Britain.

RALPH NADER will marry Charlotte Ford and take over her father's family business.

Many priests will discover this year that marriage isn't what it's cracked up to be.

Panty raids will be resumed on the Berkeley campus.

With more people buying police dogs, the crime rate in the country will go down, but there will be a marked increase in the cases of rabies.

Sales of the "how to do it" sex books will have peaked early in 1971 and will be replaced in popularity by books on how to make your own wine.

Mayor John Lindsay will be the door prize at the New York Policemen's Benevolent Ball.

And finally, my vibrations tell me that in 1971 President Richard Nixon will make something perfectly clear.

Both Good And Bad News For Snorers

LONDON (UPI) —When is one deaf ear a blessing? When the other partner in the marriage snores, says Dr. I. G. Robin, a consulting surgeon to three British hospitals.

Dr. Robin took a look at what he calls "The Serious Problem of Snoring" in an article in the Medical News-Tribune and there is both bad and good news in it for all those who do not live alone.

"In my opinion," he wrote, "50 per cent of snorers can be cured, 30 per cent can be helped by palliative measures."

"But," he added, "20 per cent seem hopelessly incurable at the present time."

It is, said Dr. Robin, a baffling condition. The commonest cause is nasal obstruction yet many persons with marked nasal obstruction do not snore at all. And not all snorers snore all the time.

Sleeping with the mouth open is supposed to cause snoring. But many people asleep with their mouths open do not snore at all. Old people are supposed to snore most. Yet, said Dr. Robin, "I went to two large geriatric wards thinking I could study snores en masse. There were many persons flat out with wide open mouths and not a sound to be heard."

Can anything be done?

"In adults three conditions are the commonest—often two or even three being present. They are allergy, deflected nasal septum and collapsed alae nasi (sinus). I am sure allergic factors should be investigated more often in snores," Dr. Robin said.

"I had one man who stopped snoring after omitting tomatoes from the diet; another's problem was cheese. Hypertensive drugs and aspirin may occasionally be cited. Two of my most grateful patients were men to whom the only advice I gave was to lose two stone (28 pounds) which they did.

PARENTS HELP

Road To Recovery For 'Bad' School

By RUTH YOUNGBLOOD

HONOLULU (UPI)—Youngsters, high on glue, lounged in the hallways, daring teachers to "do something about it."

Gangs roamed the grounds, terrorizing students and faculty members.

Beatings and hijackings directed at members of minority groups were common.

If this sounds like school is there anything you can do to change it?

Stevenson Intermediate School in Honolulu was plagued with just such frightening problems until a group of parents became part of a special program designed to turn a bad school into a good one.

In two years, thanks to the program, Stevenson has gone from a school described by a state legislator as a "bloody disgrace" to one which can make Hawaii proud.

The road to recovery began when Mrs. June Leong became principal and had the courage to acknowledge the problems she found and to ask for parents' help.

"Many of the youngsters had motivational difficulties," she said. "Their feelings accumulated to a point where they couldn't handle them.

"They tuned school out, so we had to find a way to tune them back in."

Stevenson is a city school drawing on youngsters of many racial and economic backgrounds. Mrs. Leong believes Stevenson's success story could be imitated wherever concerned parents and school administrators join forces in a similar program.

One of the first things Mrs. Leong did was extend the lunch period from 35 minutes to 65 minutes and make "fun-learning" activities available.

"When I got here, the youngsters were warehoused in the cafeteria during lunch," she said. Realizing that they needed a respite from classes, parents as a starter were invited to conduct a wide range of lunch period activities, including sports, bridge lessons, fishing, camera and pet clubs.

"The principal has to open the doors and want parents involved," Mrs. Leong said. "For us, they supervise the (non-class) activities, but their main reason for giving up their time and coming is to show they care about the students and the school."

Each day a number of cooperating parents just walk around the grounds, getting to know the students.

Mrs. Leong has found that most of the 1,350 seventh, eighth and ninth graders do participate in the activities offered. "But they don't have to," she said. "I realize that young people need time to be by themselves, too, just to think."

The school also instituted a program whereby students who were troublesome and openly manifested hostility were placed in classes with teachers trained to handle motivational difficulties.

Instead of strict discipline, the staff has responded to these students with respect and gentle guidance. Good behavior is rewarded. For instance parents raised enough money by cooking and selling Hawaiian delicacies to send one special class to Hawaii's Neighbor Islands.

In the 1968-69 school year, 103 students were suspended. The figure dropped to six the year after Mrs. Leong became principal and the parent-participation program went into action.

"There is a tenure of happiness here now," the principal said. "Disciplinary problems are rare and the atmosphere of fear is gone."

Audie Murphy Is Cleared On Weapons Count

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Audie Murphy, America's most decorated soldier of World War II, was cleared Tuesday in Superior Court of charges he illegally possessed blackjacks.

Murphy, 45, now a producer-actor, testified he was authorized to possess the weapons because he was a special officer with two law enforcement agencies.

Judge James Kolts granted a defense motion for dismissal. The charges stemmed from police allegations they found the weapons in Murphy's house and car May 28 when he was arrested on assault and battery charges in connection the alleged beating of a dog trainer. He subsequently was acquitted of those charges.

Convict Labor Ruling Given

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Convicts cannot be contracted to work for private employers for profit, the State Court of Appeal ruled Tuesday.

Justice Norman Elkington said in a written opinion that such practices by the state are a burden on the free labor market.

The court said part of the convicts' wages are retained by the state and not credited to the convicts' account. For example, the state deducted $5 a day per man for "room and board" which was furnished by the Deuel Vocational Institution and the California Institution for men at Chino in Merced County where the men were hired to harvest figs.

People scoffed when Robert Fulton launched the first successful steamboat in 1807, and still were not convinced of it's practicality when it traveled 150 miles in 32 hours on it's maiden voyage. But these same people were convinced of the beauty, quality and workmanship of Early American furniture and used it in their homes before Mr. Fulton even dreamed of a steamboat. Early American at it's best has been captured in the delightful forms you will see at Colony House.

RESOLUTION NO. 3979
RESOLUTION OF PRELIMINARY DETERMINATION TO UNDERTAKE SPECIAL ASSESSMENT PROCEEDINGS AND SETTING TIME AND PLACE OF HEARING THEREON, EAST SAN RAFAEL DRAINAGE ASSESSMENT DISTRICT NO. 1, CITY OF SAN RAFAEL, MARIN COUNTY, CALIFORNIA

WHEREAS, the City Council of the City of San Rafael, Marin County, California, has adopted a map showing the boundaries of proposed East San Rafael Drainage Assessment District No. 1, City of San Rafael, Marin County, California, which said map is entitled "Proposed Boundaries of East San Rafael Drainage Assessment District No. 1, City of San Rafael, Marin County, California;"

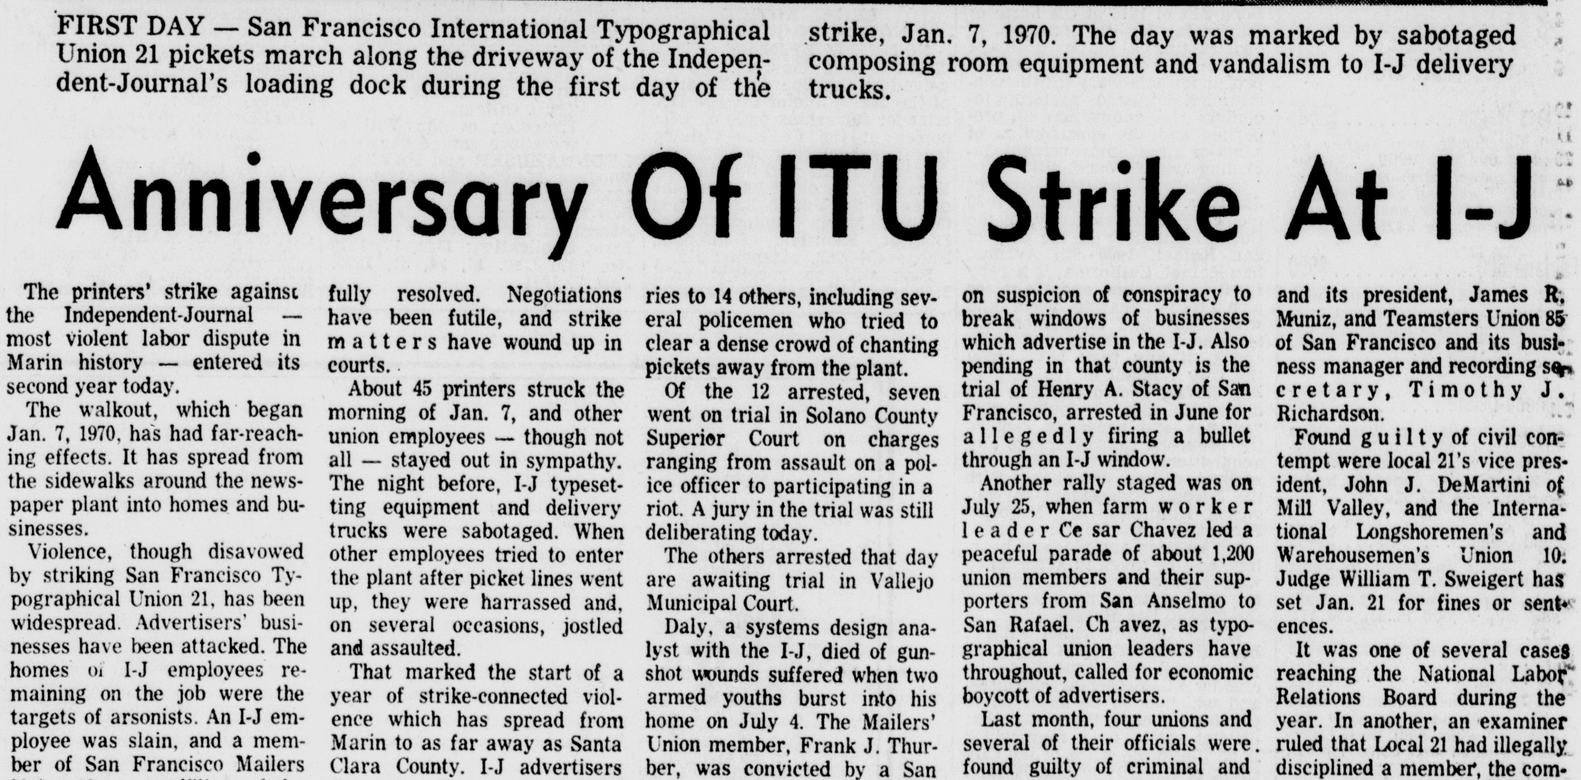
AFTERMATH — Shattered glass lines the sidewalk along B Street in front of the I-J plant following the massive Valentines Day riot staged on behalf of Typographical Union 21. A total of seven police officers, one highway patrolman, six I-H security guards and three demonstrators were injured in the malee. Twelve demonstrators were arrested.



FIRST DAY — San Francisco International Typographical Union 21 pickets march along the driveway of the Independent-Journal's loading dock during the first day of the strike, Jan. 7, 1970. The day was marked by sabotaged composing room equipment and vandalism to I-J delivery trucks.

Anniversary Of ITU Strike At I-J

The printers' strike against the Independent-Journal — most violent labor dispute in Marin history — entered its second year today.

The walkout, which began Jan. 7, 1970, has had far-reaching effects. It has spread from the sidewalks around the newspaper plant into homes and businesses.

Violence, though disavowed by striking San Francisco Typographical Union 21, has been widespread. Advertisers' businesses have been attacked. The homes of I-J employees remaining on the job were the targets of arsonists. An I-J employee was slain, and a member of San Francisco Mailers Union 18 — an affiliate of the typographical union — has been sentenced to life in prison for his part in the crime.

The strike came after a breakdown in contract talks which centered around four main issues:

1. Reproduction or "bogus" — the practice of setting into type and then throwing away material which already has been published.

2. Discharge procedures — the union's demand that appeals by discharged employees be adjudicated by the union alone.

3. Grievance procedures — the right of the management to direct work pending settlement of a grievance.

4. Foreman's membership in the union — the union's demand that the composing room foreman fall under union disciplinary powers.

None of the issues has been fully resolved. Negotiations have been futile, and strike matters have wound up in courts.

About 45 printers struck the morning of Jan. 7, and other union employees — though not all — stayed out in sympathy. The night before, I-J typesetting equipment and delivery trucks were sabotaged. When other employees tried to enter the plant after picket lines went up, they were harrassed and, on several occasions, jostled and assaulted.

That marked the start of a year of strike-connected violence which has spread from Marin to as far away as Santa Clara County. I-J advertisers from San Francisco to Santa Rosa have reported attacks by window-smashing vandals, much of the damage coming after warnings to stop doing business with the paper.

In San Jose, a large warehouse, source of newsprint for the I-J and other Northern California newspapers, was destroyed by a blaze set by an arsonist, causing $500,000 damage.

In Marin, property damage suffered by the I-J, its employees and advertisers at the hands of vandals has run into the tens of thousands of dollars.

More than 20 persons — many of them typographical union members — have been charged with strike-related crimes.

Several prolabor rallies have been held. One, on Valentine's Day outside the I-J, resulted in window damage and other vandalism to the plant and the arrest of 12 persons and injuries to 14 others, including several policemen who tried to clear a dense crowd of chanting pickets away from the plant.

Of the 12 arrested, seven went on trial in Solano County Superior Court on charges ranging from assault on a police officer to participating in a riot. A jury in the trial was still deliberating today.

The others arrested that day are awaiting trial in Vallejo Municipal Court.

Daly, a systems design analyst with the I-J, died of gunshot wounds suffered when two armed youths burst into his home on July 4. The Mailers' Union member, Frank J. Thurber, was convicted by a San Francisco jury of first degree murder, conspiracy and first degree burglary and robbery in connection with the slaying.

The prosecution contended Thurber hired the two youths, who earlier admitted entering the Daly home and were sentenced to long-term commitment with the California Youth Authority. They are Richard A. Wamsley and Larry G. Rutherford, both 17, and, like Thurber, from San Bruno.

Pending also in Solano County is the trial of three printers arrested in Strawberry in June on suspicion of conspiracy to break windows of businesses which advertise in the I-J. Also pending in that county is the trial of Henry A. Stacy of San Francisco, arrested in June for allegedly firing a bullet through an I-J window.

Another rally staged was on July 25, when farm worker leader Ce sar Chavez led a peaceful parade of about 1,200 union members and their supporters from San Anselmo to San Rafael. Ch avez, as typographical union leaders have throughout, called for economic boycott of advertisers.

Last month, four unions and several of their officials were found guilty of criminal and civil contempt of a federal court injunction prohibiting secondary boycott activity against advertisers. The contempt action, filed by attorneys for the National Labor Relations Board, stemmed from hit-and-run picketing in November.

During the picketing, truck drivers making deliveries were threatened and vandalism against advertisers increased.

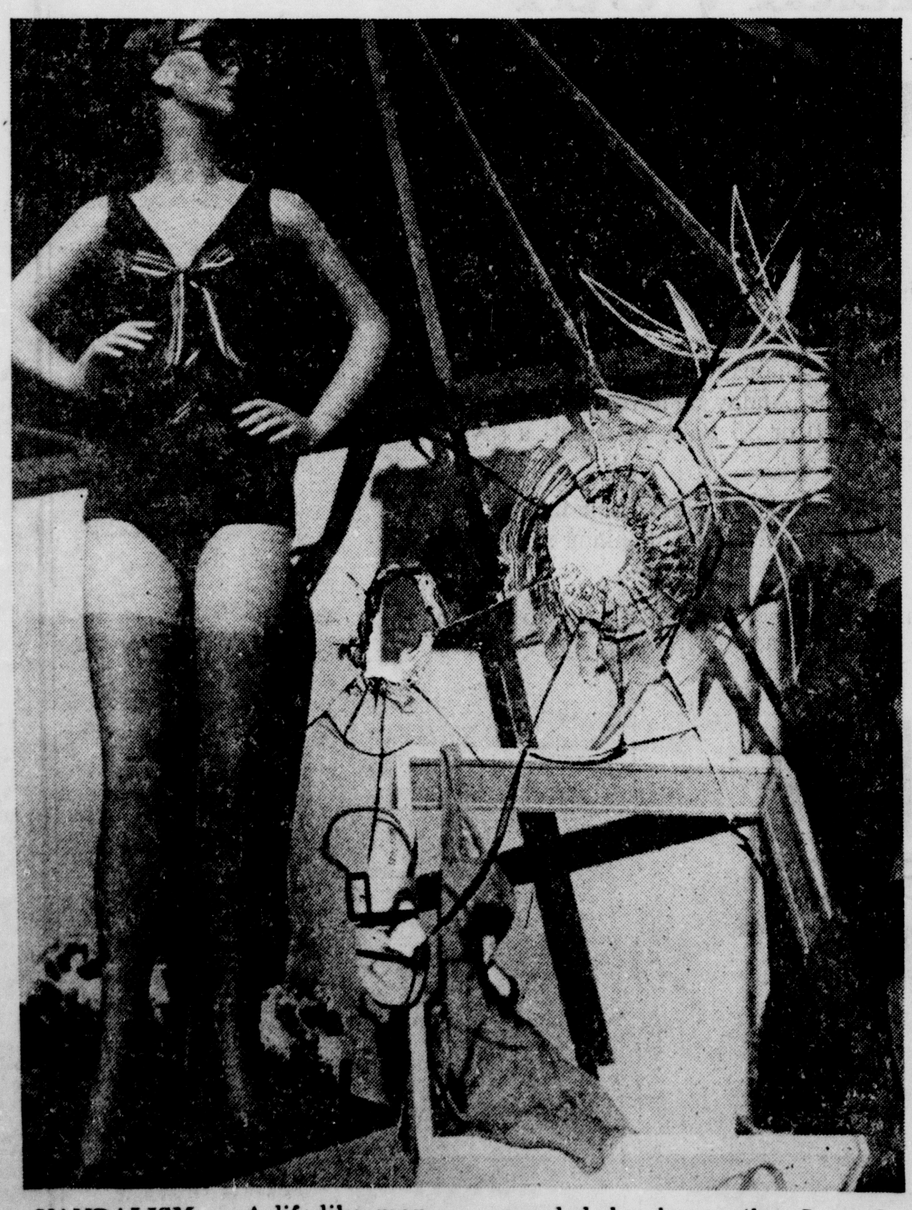
Found guilty of criminal contempt were Local 21 and its organizer, Donald Abrams; Teamsters Union 70 of Oakland and its president, James R. Muniz, and Teamsters Union 85 of San Francisco and its business manager and recording secretary, Timothy J. Richardson.

Found guilty of civil contempt were local 21's vice president, John J. DeMartini of Mill Valley, and the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union 10. Judge William T. Sweigert has set Jan. 21 for fines or sentences.

It was one of several cases reaching the National Labor Relations Board during the year. In another, an examiner ruled that Local 21 had illegally disciplined a member, the composing room foreman, for firing a fellow employee. In another, the NLRB itself upheld an examiner's decision that three unions, including Local 21, had engaged in an unfair labor practice by picketing a San Francisco pier that contained newsprint bound for the I-J.

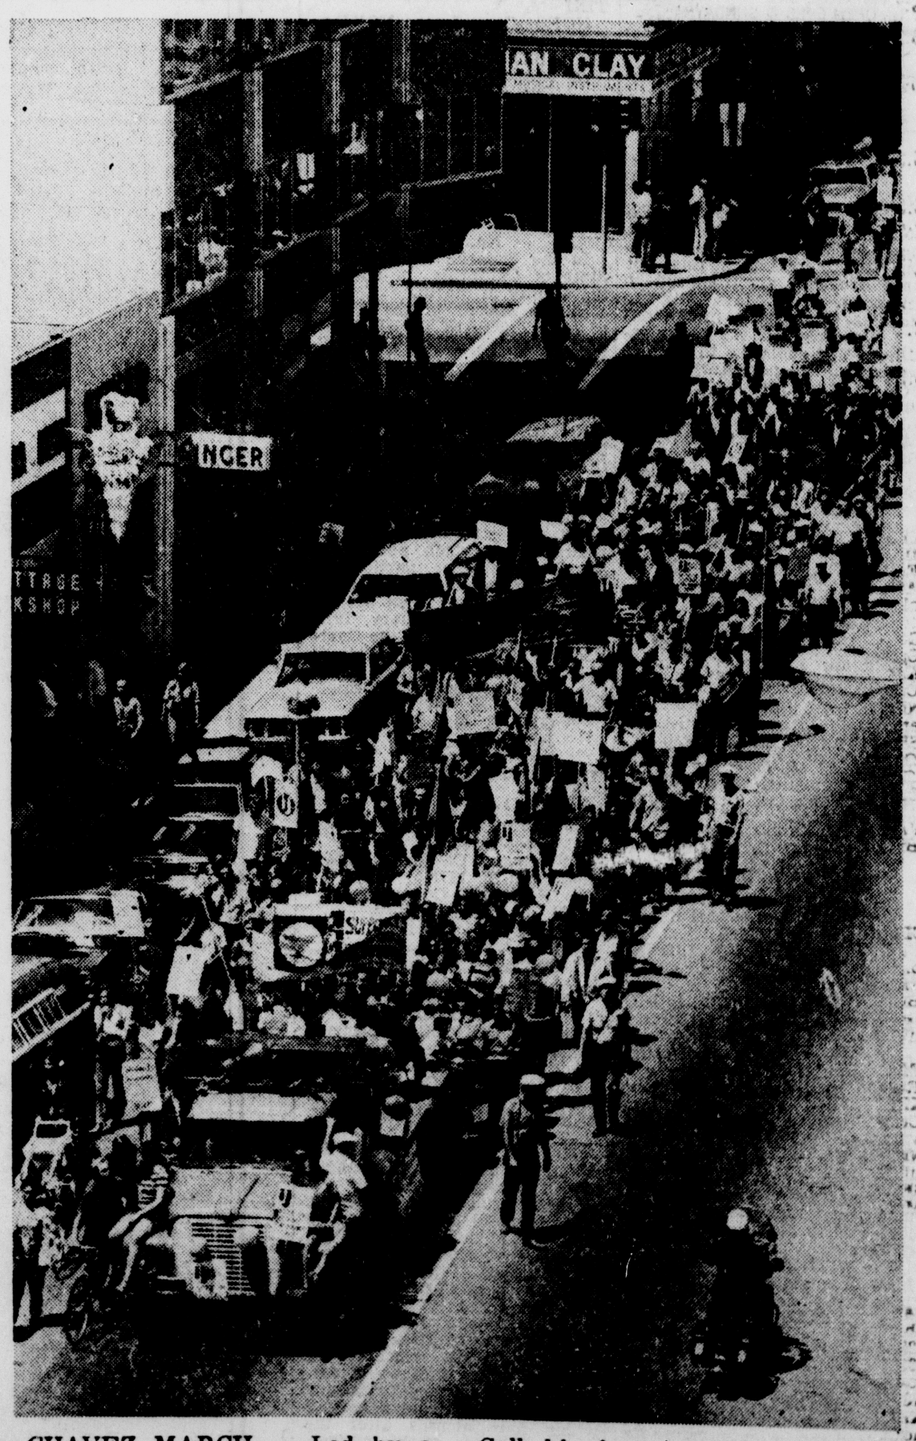
Local 21 and labor officials have insisted the NLRB has discriminated against the typographical union in its decisions and that the I-J has failed to bargain faithfully, but the NLRB has rejected the complaints.

SECONDARY BOYCOTT — Typographical Union 21 supporters picket outside the Emporium at Northgate Shopping Center. The illegal secondary boycott, which began in March, ended June 24 when Typographical Union 21 was found guilty in federal court of contempt of court for staging the boycotts. Eight Marin and San Francisco stores were picketed.



VANDALISM — A life-like mannequin is left undamaged at Stan's for Sports in Novato after the store was victimized by night-riding slingshot vandals. The damage to Stan's windows preceded by hours the June 3 arrest of three printers on suspicion of vandalizing I-J advertizers. Damage to windows and supplies has run into the tens of thousands of dollars.

CLEARING PATH — Police in riot garb attempt to clear a path for car entering the I-J's loading dock during the Feb. 14 union rally. The scene exploded minutes later with scuffles between police and union supporters who tried to block the vehicle's path.



CHAVEZ MARCH — Led by a truck mounted band, hundreds of unions sympathizers parade through San Rafael in support of striking typographical Union 21. Called by farm workers organizer Cesar Chavez, the rally held July 25 ended at Albert Park with a plea for a nonviolent boycott of businesses advertising in the I-J.

Report Ties Angela To CRLA Feuding

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A Reagan Administration report charges that antipoverty lawyers tried to arrange a meeting in prison between Angela Davis and the convict brother of a youth killed in the Marin County Hall of Justice shoot-out.

The charge came in a 283-page report made public Wednesday. The administration called the report "documentation" supporting Gov. Ronald Reagan's veto of a $1.8 million federal grant to the California Rural Legal Assistance (CRLA).

The CRLA said it had no knowledge of the alleged meeting plans. It accused the administration of using "McCarthy-style" tactics.

The report also implied the CRLA attorneys "involved themselves" in the "Soledad Seven" case arising from the slaying a year ago of a prison guard at Soledad Prison.

The report, prepared by the governor's antipoverty chief, Lewis K. Uhler, a former John Birch Society member, was presented to the Nixon Administration's antipoverty officials in Washington.

It said "prior to the court house incident, attorney Faye Stender and CRLA attorneys interceded at Soledad in an attempt to arrange a visit for Angela Davis to meet with the older Jackson brother.

"Since these cases are currently awaiting trial, further comment would not be in order at this time," the report added.

Mrs. Stender is the attorney for George Jackson, a Soledad convict charged with slaying a guard. Jackson's brother, Jonathan, 17, was killed in the courthouse shootout at San Rafael last summer in which four persons were slain.

Miss Davis is accused of murder for allegedly providing guns used in the escape attempt by two convicts.

"I don't know anything about that," said Martin Glick, director of litigation for CRLA and the organization's second man in command.

Glick charged Reagan was "attempting to justify the veto by trying to link us with Angela Davis and other people that are unpopular with the public."

"We have no cases involving the Soledad brothers or any cases involving the murder disputes in Soledad prison," he said. "It is a clear case of trying in McCarthy-style to provide guilt by association."

He said "we rarely handle cases out of prisons" and said the federally financed legal aid group is prohibited from handling criminal cases.

Reagan said three of the accused convicts "have been visited by either CRLA staff attorneys or CRLA staff members for conferences." The documentation did not say whether the attorneys approached the defendants as private lawyers.

When the governor announced his veto, he said CRLA attorneys were not properly serving the poor and had violated federal regulations which state that antipoverty lawyers cannot act in criminal cases.

Reagan said he had documents showing that a CRLA attorney "subtly threatened an inmate at Soledad and suggested that the inmate, at best, suppress evidence, and, at worst, commit perjury in the Soul Brothers murder case."

He said he had testimony by the directing legal secretary and office manager of CRLA's Salinas office from Sept., 1966, to June 1969 on the Soledad case.

The woman, according to the governor, stated:

"Cases were accepted for clients charged with criminal offenses ... many conscientious objector cases to avoid the draft were accepted and defended by (CRLA attorney Mr. Daniels) in federal courts.

"Mr. Daniels was involved with the inmates at Soledad prison in the preparation of cases to be presented in court by the inmates seeking writs, new trials and so forth."

The report also cited these examples as other violations of federal regulations by the CRLA:

— A newspaper called "People's Paper" was published in the Marysville office of CRLA and listed CRLA attorney Peter Haberfield as a contributing writer-editor. It said one article called the U.S. attorney general "Pig Mitchell" and urged Negroes to arm themselves.

—The CRLA "has acted as attorney for entrepreneurs who staged a rock festival in El Centro Dec. 15, 1970, at Buckland Park."

—Monroe Carter Taylor, a member of the CRLA advisory board in Modesto, said he was told by Assembly candidate Malcovio Lopez that the CRLA had contributed to his campaign and had printed campaign brochures and bumper stickers for him free of charge.

San Diego Mayor Is Cleared

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)— Mayor Frank Curran took a felt-tipped pen and scrawled "not for rent" on a poster on the door of his office.

Amid hugs, kisses and shrieks Wednesday by secretaries and stenographers, Curran returned to his office after being acquitted by a Superior Court jury on charges of bribery and conspiracy.

The former president of the National League of Cities characterized the trial as a "disservice" here and in Southern California and said he thought it would discourage qualified persons from seeking office at the risk of exposure such as he faced.

But he added, "I don't think it's hurt me one iota."

A nine-man, three-woman jury returned the innocent verdict after it deliberated nearly nine hours. It was the first in the cases of eight public officials and a campaign worker accused of various counts of bribery and conspiracy. Specifically, they were accused of accepting money for their support in approving taxi fare increases in 1967.

Charles Pratt, former president of San Diego Yellow Cab Co., testified he gave Curran $3,500 to help get the cab fare increases passed in 1967. Pratt has been granted immunity for his testimony.

Curran testified he accepted the money but no offer was made and the donations were recorded among his campaign contributions.

Curran said after the trial it now would be harder for candidates to get contributions. He said that according to the prosecutor, nobody could offer any help to a candidate without being in violation of the law.

Curran's trial began Dec. 7. Two other officials, former state assemblyman Tom Hom and councilman Mike Schaefer are on trial on similar charges. The others are scheduled to go on trial in the near future.

State Will Sell Land At Squaw

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The state plans to call for bids next week on the sale of its multimillion-dollar Sierra land holdings at Squaw Valley, site of the 1960 Winter Olympics.

Parks and Recreation Department spokesman Dick Thompson said Wednesday that bids on the property will be received April 2.

"What it amounts to is all the property the state has at Squaw Valley, including all the concession agreements," Thompson said. He said 1,220 acres of land were involved, plus the Olympic Village complex, ski lifts and other improvements.

Squaw Valley State Recreation Area now is shared with private operators. Cirtics say the state has lost $300,000 a year on it.

The sale would be the second major property transaction announced by the Reagan administration in a matter of months. Last year it announced it was selling 230 acres next to the California Exposition in Sacramento.

The 1967 Legislature authorized Parks Director William Penn Mott Jr. to sell state interests at Squaw Valley, subject to legislative approval.

The operation was delayed by complications including a land swap with the federal government. The state received 1,200 acres of U.S. Forest Service land at the ski lift area in trade for 7,000 acres in Plumas County.

Traffic Toll Drops In '70

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The nation's highway death toll for 1970 dropped sharply, indicating the government's auto safety standards are beginning to pay dividends in human lives, traffic experts said today.

A preliminary survey by the National Highway Safety Bureau indicates 55,300 persons died in traffic accidents in 1970, a decline of 1,100 from 1969.

The decline was the first since 1967, the year the government's initial safety standards took effect. Between 1967 and 1969 the death toll increased at an average of 2 per cent a year —but this compared with an average of almost 7 per cent for the five years previous to 1967, a spokesman for the Transportation Department said.

Burglary Charge Is Dismissed

A burglary charge against Stephen Robert Carrino, 23, of San Rafael has been dismissed in Marin Municipal Court.

The owner of the San Anselmo home Carrino was accused of burglarizing did not wish to proceed with prosecution, according to the Marin County district attorney's office.

Judge Clayton W. Horn rejected the plea of Robert K. Ballard who seeks to run for the office although he has been an attorney for only 18 months.

Planners Nod To Zelinsky's Bid

Precise plans for additions and improvements to properties owned by Tiburon developer Fred G. Zelinsky have been endorsed by the city's planning commission.

Planning director Wayne E. Moody said the commission Monday recommended approval of the plans. Final approval must come from the city council.

Approved were a restaurant-bar-lounge at 7 Main Street; a two-story office addition to Tiburon Vintners, 72 Main Street; and a lounge addition to Tiburon Lodge, 1651 Tiburon Boulevard.

The commission also recommended approval of an amendment to the city's subdivision ordinance containing technical changes in submission requirements and expiration dates for minor subdivision applications.

Allen Takes On Task Of Making Redskins Winners

WASHINGTON (UPI) — George Allen, fired as a winner in Los Angeles, took on the task today of making winners out of the Washington Redskins who have been losers in every pro football season except one since 1955.

Allen was signed as head coach and general manager Wednesday only minutes after Redskin President Edward Bennett Williams announced the dismissal of Bill Austin who had been given the coaching post after the death of Vince Lombardi last September.

Exactly one week before, the 48-year-old Allen had been fired by Los Angeles Ram owner Dan Reeves despite his five-year record of 49-17-4. Allen and Reeves did not get along.

After flying in from the West Coast for a Washington news conference, the new Redskin coach declared his goal: "I plan to win in 1971."

He stopped short of predicting he would produce a championship team next season.

"To say that we will win the whole ball of wax would be presumptuous," Allen told a questioner. "But when you come in the dressing room after the games next year, you will be proud of the Redskins and they will be proud of themselves."

He said he hoped to meet, before returning to Los Angeles later today, with Washington's aging star quarterback Sonny Jurgensen and other Redskin players in the area.

His first major task, he said, will be to strengthen the Redskins defensively. "The big thing —the No. 1 goal —is to improve the defense," Allen explained. "You can't win a championship —even with a quarterback like Jurgensen — without a great defense."

Nor was he going to be patient about building a winner in the nation's capital. "I've never believed in long-range planning," the new Redskin football boss commented. "If the opportunity comes to get a needed player through a trade, we'll trade."

On the other hand, he was pleased that the Redskins this year will have their first round draft choice for the first time since 1967.

When he took over a losing Los Angeles club in 1966 as a first-time pro head coach, Allen traded shrewdly and drafted smartly to convert the Rams into a championship contender almost immediately.

He stressed defense —a field in which he won his reputation as an assistant to the Chicago Bears under George Halas. The Los Angeles "Fearsome Foursome" anchored on Dave Jones, Merlin Olsen and Roger Brown featured the Rams rise to powerhouse caliber.

However, his Los Angeles teams never won a pro championship despite their winning ways. They were NFL conference leaders in 1967 and 1969 but were knocked off in playoffs.

In his new job, Allen becomes the fourth Washington head coach in less than two years. Lombardi replaced Otto Graham on Feb. 6, 1969, and turned out a winning team with a 7-5-2 record but was stricken with cancer and died last September. Austin was named Lombardi's successor and wound up with a 6-8 showing.

Comeback Victory For Marin

With three of their players scoring in double figures, the high-flying College of Marin Tars opened their Camino Norte Conference basketball season in victorious fashion last night, downing Skyline College in San Bruno, 64-58.

It was the Tars' 16th victory of the season, their 11th straight, against a single loss, a record that has given the Marin team ninth ranking among junior colleges in California.

Last night the Tars' record, best in the state, appeared in jeopardy as Skyline jumped off to a 26-23 lead, but then Coach John Panagakis' Kentfield crew went on a 41-point second half spree to sew it up.

Roosevelt Green tallied 21 points for Marin and was ably assisted in the scoring charge by Joe Smith with 17 and Ken Gommeringer with 11. Green and Smith have been averaging 18 points apiece in Marin's best season in several years.

The Tars open their home conference season Saturday night at Kentfield against Solano College of Vallejo.

Marin had a cold first half, shooting only 30 per cent from the floor, but then Coach Panagakis unleashed his crew on a full court press in the second half that resulted in several Skyline turnovers. Smith tallied 14 of his points in the second half and Green chipped in 12. Also, the shooting of Gommeringer kept the pressure on the upset minded Skyline quintet.

Marin	23 41 — 64
Skyline	26 32 — 58

Marin scoring: Smith, 7-3-17; Green, 9-3-21; Peden, 2-0-4; Herrnberger, 2-1-5; Small, 1-0-2; Flynn, 1-2-4; Gommeringer, 5-1-11. Totals: 27-10-64.

Skyline: Kriletch, 2-0-4; Saco, 2-0-4; Wilson, 7-1-15; Reynolds, 3-1-7; Young, 3-5-11; Burrus, 2-1-5; Kirby, 3-4-10; Pointer, 1-0-2. Totals: 23-12—58.

Slumping Warriors Fall To The Braves

Thurmond Is Tossed From Game

BUFFALO, N. Y. (UPI)— Nate Thurmond, the hottest San Francisco Warrior of late, got cooled off in a hurry Wednesday night.

After only nine minutes of action against the Buffalo Braves, referee Mark Mano decided he had enough and gave the towering center the heave-ho.

Going into the National Basketball Association contest, Thurmond averaged 27 points in the last 10 games. As it turned out, the loss hurt the Warriors, who dropped their third straight game, 115-108, to the Braves, who ended an eight-game drought.
game drought.

Despite the loss of Thurmond, the Warriors battled back—twice wiping out 10-point deficits—only to lose when Fritz Williams was whistled for a technical foul. That, plus a five-point spurt by Don May in a 57-second span, put the game out of reach and evened San Francisco's record at 23-23.

Jerry Lucas and Clyde Lee carried the Warriors' attack with 25 points apiece. In addition, Lucas pulled in 24 rebounds.

A SMALL AMOUNT

Dope Is Found In Liston Home

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)— Small quantities of marijuana and heroin were found in Sonny Liston's plush home Wednesday and the coroners office said after an autopsy there appeared to be needle marks on the arms of the former heavyweight champion.

However, officials said the initial autopsy gave no clues to the cause of death. Toxicological and microscopic tests were to be conducted today to determine what was in Liston's blood at the time of death.

Liston, self-styled "bad guy of the ring," was found dead Tuesday night.

Sheriff's Capt. Gene Clark said about one-fourth of an ounce of heroin was found in a balloon in the bedroom where the body was discovered. Clark also said an ounce of marijuana was discovered. He said there was no indication of foul play.

The ex-champion's wife, Geraldine, discovered Liston's body when she returned home from a 10-day trip. Newspapers dated from Dec. 29 were stacked on the porch of the home at the 16th tee of the Sahara-Nevada Country Club. Deputy Coroner Dick Mayne said Liston had been dead about a week.

The glowering 6-foot-1, 200-pound ex-convict began his professional boxing career at 21 after developing his skills while serving a prison term for robbery. His career total in a 17-year span was 50 wins and four losses. He won by knockouts in 39 bouts and was knocked out himself three times.

He beat 33 of 34 opponents before winning the championship from Floyd Patterson Sept. 25, 1962, on a first-round knockout. In a rematch July 22, 1963, he again kayoed Patterson in the first round.

He lost the title to Cassius Clay Feb. 25, 1964, on a seventh round knockout and lost a rematch to Clay in the first round May 25, 1965.

Liston's purses from title fights came to nearly $4 million and he lived in the style of a wealthy former champion.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at Palms Mortuary with burial at Paradise Memorial Gardens.

Pro Golf Kicks Off Today In L.A.; Cerrudo Is Back

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Defending champion Billy Casper and 138 other pro golfers including Arnold Palmer and Lee Trevino kick off the $7 million 1971 pro tour today in the first round of the $110,000 Glen Campbell Los Angeles Open.

Five amateurs round out the field of 144.

All of the pros would like to get off to a good head start (not to be confused with the poverty program) in this lucrative event, the first of 63 scheduled for 1971 by the Professional Golfers Association with prize money totaling more than $7 million.

Casper and young Hale Irwin of Boulder, Colo., tied at the end of regulation play in the 1970 open with scores of 276, eight under par for the 72 holes. The cool Casper who will be 40 come June 24 birdied the first extra hole to win it and then took three more titles including the prestigious Masters. Wednesday Casper shot a three-under-par 68 to win one bracket of the pro-amateur prelude.

Trevino won two championships in 1970 and was top moneyman for the second year with $157,037. Casper was No. 2 with $147,372. Irwin was No. 49 with $46,870 and he should take heart from that position—the 49ers have done all right from the Gold Rush down through history.

Palmer, who failed to win a tournament for the first time in his 15-year pro career during 1970 collected plenty loot—$128,853.

Palmer is a threetime winner here. At 41, he says he's driving the ball longer and straighter than ever although he lacks a bit of confidence in his putting. In boxing, a fighter's legs are the first thing to go. In golf, it seems to be a pro's putting that fails him with age.

The L.A. Open is one of the oldest tournaments in the United States and this is No. 45. The event goes back to 1926 when it was won by Harry Cooper.

The scene is the 6,800-yard Rancho Park municipal course, a par 35-36—71 layout that is a good test of golf with its rather narrow fairways, small greens, a variety of full grown trees plus a few out-of-bounds holes which are well-trapped.

Ron Cerrudo, former San Rafael young man now living in Napa, will be returning to the tour in this tournament. He missed most of last year with a sore back.

The Seals Just Love Home Ice

OAKLAND (UPI) —Home cooking does wonders for the California Golden Seals.

They removed some of the tarnish off their recent trip, in which they lost all five games, by whipping the St. Louis Blues 6-3 before a feeble audience of 3,476 at the Coliseum-Arena Wednesday night.

Nine of the 12 Seals victories this season have comeon home ice. The win over St. Louis was especially palatable because it was only the third time in four seasons that the Seals were able to beat the Blues.

What crumpled St. Louis Wednesday night was a four-goal second period that boosted the Seals lead to 6-0.

California goaltender Gary Smith tired in the final period and lost his shutout when Jim Lorentz and Red Berenson scored within 20 seconds of each other, and Tim Ecclestone beat him again with 2:52 remaining.

Dennis Hextall collected two goals for the Seals, his 12th and 13th, while brothers Billy and Ernie Hicke kept even in the goal-scoring department by each picking up his 12th.

Gerry Ehman and Norm Ferguson scored the other Seals goals.

After California unloaded six goals and 28 shots in the first two periods on St. Louis goalie Glenn Hall, he was replaced by Ernie Wakely.

Seals coach Fred Glover will probably tell his players to get a lot of rest the rest of the week because the current home stand was very limited—one game.

The Seals go back on the road Saturday against the Flyers at Philadelphia and will play four games in five nights, including Boston, St. Louis and Toronto before returning home Jan. 15 for a date with the New York Rangers.

CARDS FIRE COACH

Add Winner To The List

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Charley Winner has been added to the swelling ranks of unemployed head coaches in pro football.

George Allen, Bill Austin, Phil Bengtson, Tom Fears, Clive Rush and Winner have all lost their jobs as head coaches in the National Football League. The number is unusually large in a year when realignment of divisions allowed more teams to win.

Winner lost his job with the St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday while he was working on the club's list of College players who will be drafted. His work was interrupted when he was called into the office of the club's president, Charles "Stormy" Bidwill.

"I was shocked," Winner said. "I had been in to see Stormy earlier about another matter. When I went in the second time he told me he had bad news."

"I had been making plans for next season," Winner said. "I'm sorry that I'm not going to be with the team to see it develop."

Winner had been with the Cardinals five seasons, and his record with the team was 35-30-5. His best season was the 9-4-1 record of 1968, when the team finished one-half game behind the Cleveland Browns in the NFL's Eastern Division. But the Cardinals slumped to 4-9-1 in 1969, and Winner's job appeared to be in jeopardy. However, he received a vote of confidence from Bidwill and the team's vice president, William Bidwill, for the 1970 season.

This past season the Cardinals were not expected to be champions but they came close to winning the division title. They won seven of the first nine games before playing a 6-6 tie with the Kansas City Chiefs. Then they beat Philadelphia and were closing in on the title. But the Cardinals lost the last three games to the Lions, the Giants and the Redskins and saw the division title go to the Dallas Cowboys, whom they had beaten twice during the season.

Stormy Bidwill cited the collapse during the last three games in talking about the reasons for Winner's dismissal.

"You get a shot at the title very few times," he said. "We were a game and a half on top with three to go, and we fell apart. The team didn't hold together, and there was nothing there to stop it."

Winner, however, discounted the function of the coach in keeping the team at a high psychological level.

"It's overplayed," he said. "Your players get themselves up for the game."

"One of the things that really irks me is to hear people say that 'when you lose, the players aren't psychologically ready,'" Winner said. "A football game is won on five or six plays. It could be a missed field goal; the difference is very slight."

Winner, 46, said he hopes to become head coach with another NFL team.

"This is such a surprise that, of course, I have no plans," he said. "I'd like to have the opportunity to be a head coach."

Stormy Bidwill said the Cardinals would accept applications for their head coaching job "from anybody who is interested, including our own assistant coaches."

Referee Dies During ABA Contest

By United Press International

Rick Barry hasn't been seen much with the New York Nets this season, but when he's around, his presence is certainly felt.

Barry, who has played in only 15 games because of a series of injuries, scored 40 points for the third time to lead the Nets to a 110-101 victory over the Memphis Pros Wednesday night. Barry got five of his 40 points during a fourth quarter spurt as New York outscored Memphis 11-5 to go ahead 93-86 with five minutes left.

The game was marred, however, by the death of referee Andy Hershock, 43. Hershock, a Philadelphian survived by his wife and 11 children, called time out and complained of illness in the first quarter. He rested on the Memphis bench and collapsed when he tried to get up. A half hour later, the four-year veteran American Basketball Association referee died in the ticket office despite efforts to revive him.

Terra Linda Cagers Lose

Terra Linda High School closed out its practice basketball season yesterday by losing to Castlemont High in Oakland, 77-61.

Joe Casteel with 15 points and Bill LaHaye with 14 were leading Terra Linda scorers.

The Trojans open their Marin County Athletic League schedule tomorrow night against Drake High in San Anselmo.

An ABA Trade

DALLAS (UPI) —The Texas Chaparrals Wednesday traded 6-foot-8 center Manny Leaks to the New York Nets for veteran guard Levern Tart and second-year center Ed Johnson in an American Basketball Association trade.

Billie Jean Back In Form

EAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Billie Jean King appears to be ready to reclaim her crown as the world's top woman tennis player.

After getting off to a frustrating start Wednesday in the $15,000 British Motors Women's Professional Tournament, top-seeded Mrs. King rallied to defeat Esme Emanuel of South Africa, 6-2, 6-3.

At one point in the second set, the one-time American queen of tennis who is making a comeback after knee surgery trailed 2-3.

In today's quarterfinal round, Mrs. King will meet Francoise Durr of France who eliminated the second of three Australian entries, Judy Tagert Dalton, 6-2, 7-5.

England's Ann Haydon Jones, the 1969 Wimbledon winner, had to overcome a 3-0 deficit to defeat young Kristy Pigeon of Danville, Calif., 6-4, 6-3.

Mrs. Jones meets Kerry Melville, the only surviving Australia, who defeated veteran Darlene Hard, Van Nuys, Calif., 6-2, 6-4.

In a third quarterfinal match, Peaches Bartkowicz, Los Altos, meets Nancy Richey, San Angelo, Texas, who beat Valerie Ziegenfuss, San Diego, 6-1, 6-2.

Another singles winner Wednesday was No. 2 seeded Rosemary Casals, San Francisco, who downed Australian Karen Krantzcke in straight sets, 6-2, 6-2. Mary Ann Curtis, St. Louis, also advanced with a 6-2, 6-2 victory over Stephanie Johnson, Denver.

Both Miss Casals and Miss Curtis drew singles byes today but will team together in a doubles match.

Lanier Has More Job Security Now

Hal Lanier knows now that the Giants plan to keep him at shortstop for the 1971 baseball campaign. He wasn't sure about his job last month when the winter baseball meetings were under way and it became common knowledge that the Giants were trying to swing a deal for a shortstop with a heavier bat and greater range to his left.

But now that the Giants have traded away Ron Hunt, it is clear to Lanier that Tito Fuentes no longer is a threat to his job security. That sounds like a non sequitur. But it works this way: Hunt was the second base insurance of the Giants behind Fuentes who can play second or short. So now Fuentes no longer will be available for swing duty. He will have a full time job at second, his natural position.

LANIER DIDN'T try to hide his displeasure at the reports that the Giants were in the winter market for a shortstop. He particularly resented the fact that the Giants pinpointed his position as the one they were trying to bolster. He issued a "trade-me-or-play-me" ultimatum.

However, ball clubs don't deal players for such reasons unless they are trouble makers. And Lanier is anything but that. He is a clean cut fellow whose wife, Nancy, will present him with their first born in spring. He is acting like any expectant father, happy and slightly dazed.

WHAT WAS not made clear to Lanier at the time the Giants were trying to deal with him was that neither Horace Stoneham nor Charlie Fox ever intended giving him away. Stoneham is not a stupid ball club owner and Fox proved he is a pretty sharp manager after taking over from Clyde King as the Giants' field boss last May.

Fox never downgraded Lanier's glove ability but Fox would have been anything other than realistic if he did not objectively evaluate Lanier's foot speed for ground balls zipping up the middle. To his right Lanier is super and his trowing arm from the deep hole is superb.

LANIER'S BATTING problems are not made easier by batting No. 8 in front of the pitcher. He seldom gets good pitches to hit. Enemy moundsmen don't have to give him anything fat because they aren't worried about the next man up, the pitcher. In other words, Lanier doesn't have a solid batter behind him to make a pitcher think twice. As ball players say, Lanier doesn't have any protection.

As for his "trade-me-or-play-me" ultimatum, the Giants won't hold that against Lanier. Ball club owners and managers understand such statements. In fact, they secretly admire players unafraid to speak their mind. Any ball player worth his salt wants to play instead of sitting on the bench.

EVEN WILLIE McCovey some years ago issued a "trade-me-or-play-me" ultimatum when the Giants had another first baseman named Orlando Cepeda. Alvin Dark was manager of the Giants at the time and when he learned of McCovey's statement, Dark said: "I'd say the same thing under the same circumstances."

Morton To Miss Practice

DALLAS (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys walking wounded list was struck from a new angle Wednesday when quarterback Craig Morton was felled by a sore throat that will keep him from practicing this week for the club's Jan. 17 Super Bowl date with Baltimore.

Coach Tom Landry reported that Morton was "pretty sick" and had gone to a doctor for treatment with antibiotics in hopes that he will be able to join the team in time for their flight to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Sunday.

"We're concerned about his voice and the doctor may put him on a silence regimen," Landry said.

"At any rate, he won't work out any this week because he can't talk above a whisper.

"I'm sorry that he's sick, because he could use the throwing," Landry said.

"He wasn't too effective against San Francisco (7 of 22 for 101 yards), but he was throwing all right."

Landry said that Morton's elbow, which had been of prime concern prior to the Forty Niners' game, was "probably okay" but mentioned that his quarterback had hurt a knee "a bit" in the game.

Bruins, Rangers Dominate

NEW YORK (UPI) —The Boston Bruins and New York Rangers, fighting it out for the title in the National Hockey League East, join forces Jan. 19 against the West in the 24th annual All-Star Game at Boston Garden.

The Bruins placed five men and the Rangers six among the top 12 places on the Eastern All-Stars announced Wednesday by the league.

Bobby Orr, Phil Esposito and Johnny Bucyk were unanimous choices for the Stanley Cup champion Bruins, and they were joined by teammates Ken Hodge and John McKenzie. The Rangers named included both goalies, veteran Ed Giacomin and rookie Gilles Villemure, as well as defensemen Brad Park and Jim Neilson, center Jean Ratelle and left winger Dave Balon.

The only player not chosen from New York or Boston was veteran Jean-Claude Tremblay of the Montreal Canadiens.

Eight more players will be chosen by East coach Harry Sinden. The first 12 were selected by 21 writers in the National Hockey League Writers' Association.

The biggest omission from the East team was Gordie Howe, playing his silver anniversary season in the NHL. The Detroit right winger, 42, played in 21 of the previous 23 All-star games but suffered a rib injury this season. He still is eligible to be chosen by Sinden, who returns to coaching for this game.

Orr, 22, won the James Norris Memorial Trophy last season for the third consecutive time as the league's outstanding defenseman.

THE SKI SCENE

There Is Racing For Recreation

By CHARLIE COANE

Ever want to race? You've got your chance now. No, you don't have to be a class A racer, or "B" or "C" or anything. If you can ski, you can race. NASTAR it's called, and it stands for National Standard Race.

The idea started during the 1968-69 season as a racing program for recreational skiers and drew 2,500 competitors at a few areas across the country. Last year: 27,500. This year 75,000 skiers are expected to dash for the gold, silver and bronze medals of NASTAR at 78 areas.

This is the way it works: A NASTAR course is a not-too-difficult, modified giant slalom run. In the morning you sign up to race at the designated time and you're given a racing bib with a number. If the race begins at noon and you're number is 18, 17 racers will go ahead of you and then it's your turn. You'll get a countdown and away you go.

Results are electrically timed. Each area participating in the program will have a pace-setter who races the course on a NASTAR race day to establish the "par" for the day. Your handicap is established as a certain per cent over "par." The whole thing costs $2 and you keep the bib. Another $1 will get you a second crack. All who compete receive a NASTAR race card. And depending upon your sex and age, you can win a gold, silver or bronze medal.

A junior (14 and under) can win a gold by coming within 30 per cent of "par," a silver, 45 per cent, a bronze, 65 per cent. Percentages for women are 25, 40 and 65; for men they're 15, 30 and 50; seniors (over 40): 25, 40 and 65. Par is made by the area pacesetter who has his own handicap established during the nationwide pacesetter competition in December. So then "par" is what the best or "zero" pacesetter should have done in the course on the particular day.

In California, both Bear Valley and Alpine Meadows had particularly successful programs last season, ranking second and third nationally in total participants. Bear Valley Ski School Director Rich Carney heads the program there, and Sandy Gerson organizes activities well at Alpine. Those areas also have California's fastest pacesetters: Michel Lehmann (2 handicap) and Jimmie Huega (4 handicap) at Bear Valley, and Jorg Dutschke (5 handicap) at Alpine Meadows. The country's "zero" pacesetters are Pepi Steigler of Jackson Hole for the West, and Manford Krings of Mt. Snow, Vermont for the East. The more active areas like Bear and Alpine may have 20 to 30 race days during the season. Other participating areas in California include Boreal Ridge, Dodge Ridge, Heavenly Valley, Mt. Shasta and Snow Summit.

Dave Davis Leads Bowl Tournament

ST. PAUL (UPI)—The 192-man field in the U.S. Open Bowling Tournament was pared to the 64 high scorers Wednesday night and still leading was Dave Davis, a Miami, Fla., left-hander.

The spindly Davis, fifth in earnings last year with almost $40,000, turned in a 1706 eight-game block in the third qualifying round and shows 5252 for the tourney, which began here Monday. His average over the span is almost 219 pins per game.

Dick Ciprich, a right-hander from Buffalo, N.Y., tossed the best set of the event—an 1836—to move into the runnerup spot just five behind Davis.

Next was Dick Ritger, an eight-time titlist from Hartford, Wis., whose 1718 gave him a total of 5167 for 24 games.

The 64 survivors roll another eight games Thursday, after which the lineup will be cut to 24.

NATE GETS THE GATE

San Francisco Warriors' star Nate Thurmond (left) was ejected from the game by referee Mark Mano during National Basketball Association game in Buffalo last night. Coach Al Attles (at right) put up a vain protest. Thurmond was ousted late in the first quarter for unsportsmanlike conduct and the Braves went on to down San Francisco, 115-108.

Bowlers Victory Legion

Some 634 finalists will be competing this weekend in the annual Bowlers Victory Legion (BVL) tournament at Nave Lanes, near Ignacio.

Action begins Saturday at 12:30 p.m. and continues through the day and all-day Sunday.

The tournament is organized bowling's big national charity tournament which last year raised $327,911.54 for veterans hospitals across the United States. California topped the list of state contributions with more than $93,000.

The BVL was formed in 1942 to aid in the World War II effort and supplied the armed forces overseas with recreational and other materials. At war's end, Col. Theodore Bank, then chief of the U.S. Army Special Services and now head of the Athletic Institute, felt BVL was needed more than ever to aid hospitalized veterans.

The first BVL bowling tourney was held in 1947, with seven hospitals participating. This past season, 92 hospitals participated. BVL sends thousands of copies of the Sporting News to hospitals, as well as thousands of copies of baseball, football and other sporting guides.

In addition, rehabilitation articles are supplied the patients with funds from the tournament. They include special wheelchairs, television sets, radios, pillow speakers, movie projectors, stereo equipment, bowling balls, pins and shoes. For years, BVL has made an annual contribution of $25,000 to the Blinded Veterans Association.

In 25 years, the nation's bowlers have contributed almost $4 million to veterans. This year in Marin County, a record number of 2,654 entrants contributed $2,710 to the California state fund.

No Contract Talk Until After Game

DALLAS (UPI)—The Dallas Cowboys will not discuss a new contract with star pass catcher Bobby Hayes before Dallas' Super Bowl game in Miami Jan. 17, according to Cowboys President Tex Schramm.

"I'm not about to distract Hayes' thoughts on the eve of the Super Bowl with any contract talk," Schramm said Wednesday. "We're going to Miami to win, and I don't want anything to disrupt any of the 40 players we're depending on—and I don't think he (Hayes) would either."

Schramm commented in response to reports in the local press that Hayes' attorney had threatened the Cowboys, warning that if they didn't have a satisfactory contract for Hayes before they left Miami, they would lose him.

Hayes is playing out his option this season.

Baseball

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Baseball Hall of Famer Bob Feller has been sued for divorce by his wife of 27 years.

Mrs. Virginia Feller filed for divorce Wednesday and asked support for herself and the couple's only minor child, Bruce, 20.

The Fellers also have two adult sons, Stephen and Martin.

Feller, ace Cleveland Indians pitcher of the 1950's, was inducted into the Hall of Fame in 1962.

Football

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Lamar Lundy, former member of the Los Angeles Rams' "Fearsome Foursome" defensive line, was named to the coaching staff of the National Football League San Diego Chargers Wednesday.

Boxing

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI)—Cassius Clay, who will try to reclaim his world heavyweight title from Joe Frazier March 8, has agreed to compete in two four-round exhibition matches here Jan. 22.

Clay will box four rounds against Rufus Brassell of Lima, Ohio, and four rounds with another fighter to be named later.

Hockey

DETROIT (UPI) —A 30-year working association is over but, insists Sid Abel, a 30-year friendship remains.

Abel, 52, quit as general manager of the Detroit Red Wings Wednesday but took no slap shots at his boss, Bruce A. Norris.

Girls' Basketball In San Rafael

The San Rafael Parks and Recreation department is still accepting registrations for its girls' recreational basketball program.

The program, including instruction in fundamentals as well as league play with organized teams, costs $1 for San Rafael residents, $2 for nonresidents.

Practices will be held at Davidson and Vallecito junior high schools, with games on Saturdays at Davidson.

Scouts Are Flocking To Senior Bowl

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI)—Lou Saban, coach of the Denver Broncos, says pro teams can't afford to overlook even the unlikliest of prospects while planning for the college draft which takes place later this month.

"With 26 teams picking from the same pool, there's only so much top-grade talent to go around," pointed out Saban, who is here in this Gulf Coast city to coach the North squad for Saturday's Senior Bowl game.

This, said Saban, is why more than 100 pro scouts are in town for the game.

"A lot of people figure that the real prospects are pretty well cleaned out by the end of the fourth or fifth round," said Saban. "This isn't necessarily true. Teams often come up with that one sleeper we'd all like to get, sometimes as late as the ninth round or later."

"Generally speaking, we've all got a pretty good idea as to what we're looking for," said Saban, he'll be picking ninth in the draft. "We've got our notions as to how big a lineman should be, but you've got to be careful because sometimes that boy who plays at 225 in college will grow up on you. You've got to constantly project what a prospect might become."

Saban, who also coached here last year, and Miami Dolphins Coach Don Shula, last year's South squad coach, both feel that the big emphasis is the first round of this year's draft, which starts Jan. 28, will be quarterbacks.

"They say that this is the year of the quarterbacks and I agree," said Shula, who doesn't have a first round pick this time. "They're certainly more top-drawer quarterbacks available than I can recall.

ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, Jan. 7, the seventh day of 1971.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening star is Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1789 George Washington was elected the first U.S. president.

In 1918 Nikilai Lenin established a dictatorship of the proletariat and abolished the constituent assembly of the Soviet Union.

In 1927 regular trans-Atlantic telephone service began between New York and London.

In 1967 U.S. combat troops in Vietnam entered the Mekong River delta for the first time.

A thought for today: French Novelist Andre Maurois said, "Modesty and unselfishness, these are the virtues men praise and pass by."

Flu Outbreak Plagues Florida

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI)—The seasonal flu outbreak in Florida has reached epidemic proportions in Broward County, where 18 deaths have been reported among 13,000 cases of flu and flu-related diseases.

Dr. Paul Hughes, Broward County health director, said his estimate of 13,000 cases was based on a survey among 10 doctors. A total of 10,000 or more persons affected by the flu qualifies the outbreak as an epidemic, Hughes said.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Going Down One At Match-Point May Win You A Tournament

When you cannot make a doubled contract at rubber bridge, you don't cry your eyes out at suffering a penalty of 300 points. You take your loss like a little man and go on to the next hand in the hope of picking up a game or a slam. At tournament bridge all hands are equally important, and making a slam on the next hand won't get you out of the hole. There's no glory in going down one at rubber bridge, but it may win a tournament for you at match-point bridge.

FORCES RUFF

West opens the king of hearts and continues with a heart to the ace. East wisely switches to a low diamond, and West takes two diamond tricks with the ace and queen. West then leads a third diamond, forcing South to ruff.

At this stage South has lost four tricks and is sure to lose a trick to the ace of trumps. At rubber bridge South might lead the king of clubs, planning to enter dummy later with a spade in order to lead the next club from dummy for a possible finesse with the ten.

This line of play would take the next club with the jack and would lead a fourth diamond to make South ruff for the second time. West would get in with the ace of clubs to lead a fifth diamond, and now West's seven of clubs would win a trick since South would run out of trumps.

EARLY FINESSE

South guards against the bad trump break by leading a spade to dummy to begin the trumps by trying a finesse with the ten. West wins with the jack of clubs, but cannot lead a fourth round of diamonds since dummy can ruff.

West gets only his two sure trump tricks, and South gets out for down one. This costs only 100 points, which should assure South a fine score. At many other tables of a tournament East-West would score more than 100 points for a part score in diamonds or no-trump. As a result, the South player we have been watching would get a good score for being minus only 100 points.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1-NT (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - K Q 7 4
♥ - Q J 6 2
♦ - 10 5 4
♣ - 5 2.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs, the Stayman Convention, asking partner to show a major suit of four or more cards.

If he bids a major, you will raise to three; if he bids two diamonds (denying a major suit of four or more cards), you will bid 2-NT.

Costly To Replace Lost Stock Shares

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. We have lost our stock certificates. How can we replace them? — E. M.

A. Your first step should be to write to the transfer agents for your stocks — any broker can give you their names and addresses. In your letters you must give all pertinent information about your certificates — their number and the name in which they are registered.

You should request the transfer agent to put a "stop" on the missing shares. This would prevent transfer in case the shares turned up in the wrong hands. The transfer agent will then send you a form on which to make a formal request for new certificates.

Customarily there is a six-month delay before new shares are issued in the hope that the certificates will be found. If they are not, you must post a bond covering the value of each certificate — a rather expensive proceeding.

Your unfortunate predicament points up the importance of putting certificates in a safe-deposit box or fireproof safe as promptly as possible after they are received.

Q. I do not agree with your ideas of diversification in investments. I believe it is only an excuse for poor selection. I want to put every dollar I can get my hands on into IBM. Please give me your views. — G.B.

A. I have only one view with respect to your question: you'd better sit back and think of what would happen if you did make a mistake. The most thorough method of selection imaginable will not guarantee you stock market profits.

Investing is an art that deals with the future, and since the future is an unknown quantity, there is no way to be absolutely certain of your judgment. To protect yourself against irretrievable loss, you can either avoid stocks completely or diversify your holdings.

Most investors, of course, diversify. I recommend that you consider it, too. Diversification is no "excuse" but rather a form of insurance against large losses in any individual situation.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

13 Marin County Firms Plan To Exhibit At City Boat Show

Several Marin County firms will be among exhibitors at the San Francisco Boat and Sport Show tomorrow through Sunday at the Cow Palace — we checked out 13 definite, slightly under the number of last year's participants.

Probably the largest single boat exhibit in the entire show will be that of Sailboats, Inc. of Oakland and Sausalito, which will take up one-third of the main floor as well as some additional areas.

It will display 26-foot, 27-foot, 34-foot and the new 39-foot Columbia sailers, 23-foot, 25-foot, 27-foot and the new 35-foot Coronado motor sailers and several small boats in the Newport line.

John C. Beery Co. of Sausalito will have a good display, featuring a 29-foot Ranger (and possibly a 26-footer), a 30-foot Yankee, 21 and 22-foot Santans, a Sunfish, a Minifish, a Leo 14 and a Hobbie Cat. In a separate booth there will be a display of marine hardware.

Ann Marine, successor to Balboa Marinas Yacht Sales and Service in Sausalito will have a 32-foot and also a 36-foot Grand Banks diesel cruiser.

Golden Gate Yacht Sales, Sausalito expects to have about nine Reinell boats with inboard-outboard motors — up to 25 feet in length. Golden Gate also handles the Adventurer sail line but is not planning any models at the show.

In San Rafael, The Trailorboat Co. will feature six of its small aluminum boats, from nine to 14 feet in length.

Chuck Fillingame, who recently moved his Marin Boat House from Greenbrae back to San Rafael, will not have his own display but will serve with other dealers at the Fisher-Pierce Manufacturing Co. booth, showing a Boston Whaler and Homelite Bearcat outboard motors.

Southwest Yacht Supplies, San Rafael is showing off a working model of the Mark X auto pilot, a line of Sta-Power additives and some ultra high frequency equipment.

Chris Craft Sales of San Rafael will also man a display, with three or four big boats to be shown in that line.

San Rafael's Marine Engineering Associates was appointed a dealer for the Volvo diesel line on Dec. 1 and will have quite a few models on display, from seven to 300 horsepower.

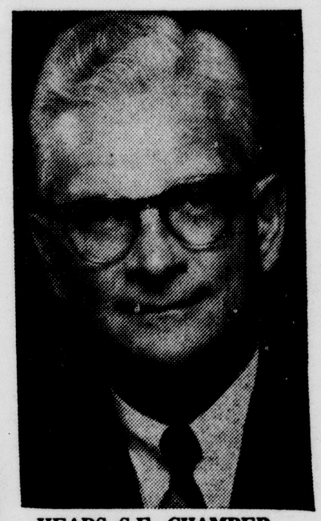
Marin Engine and Electric Co., San Rafael is displaying several Palmer gas and Diesel engines and two Flagship V-8 engines.

Triple Z Enterprises, which is located at the same address, will also display again its electric hydraulic boat levelers.

Bamboo Reef of San Rafael has prepared a display of underwater equipment including a new one-man submarine. And it will publicize special tours for skin divers handled by its Sojourns Limited travel agency.

Ted Schuman Chevrolet of Novato is always there in some capacity. This year it joins with two other Bay Area dealers at Boise Cascade's booth of Aristocrat travel trailers and campers and will have its own man there every day and night. Although Schuman is also one of the most active of all Chevrolet recreational vehicle dealers it is not serving at the Chevrolet booth this year.

LOENARD J. RUSSELL of San Rafael has been elected controller of American Express Investment Management Co. and American Express Mutual Funds. He was formerly accounting manager for the management company, where he has been since last April. Previously he was with Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies in Boston, Los Angeles and Newark, N.J.



HEADS S.F. CHAMBER — Louis W. Niggeman of Kentfield, president of Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies, is new president of the Greater San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, succeeding Samuel B. Stewart, who now becomes chairman of the board. Niggeman has been president of Fireman's Fund since 1967 and is also executive vice president of its parent company, American Express Co.

Consumer Loan Interest Cut

NEW YORK (UPI) — Chemical Bank New York Trust Co. has cut interest rates on consumer loans sufficiently to save a car buyer $90 on a three-year $3,000 automobile instalment loan.

Chemical also cut its rate for prime business loans to 6 1/2 per cent from 6 3/4 per cent. The auto loan rate was cut to 5½ per cent from 6 per cent. Uninsured collateral loans were cut to 5¼ per cent from 5¾ per cent and personal loans with life insurance to 5¾ per cent from 6 per cent.

The 5 1/2 per discount rate on auto loans is equal to a true or net annual interest rate of 10.57 per cent as compared with 11.58 per cent for a 6 per cent discount.

Main Street Loss Blamed On Suburbs

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — The E. J. Korvette Co. has announced plans to close its Main Street store because of unfavorable sales volume and profitability resulting from the trend toward suburban shopping.

Leonard Blackman, president of the chain, said the firm has applied for a going-out-of-business sale permit. The korvette chain has operated the Main Street store for 13 years.

DETROIT (UPI) — A federal grand jury will begin an investigation Feb. 23 to determine whether the Big Three automakers may have violated antitrust laws by discontinuing discounts to fleet buyers of vehicles.

"This is purely investigatory," said Ralph B. Guy Jr., U.S. attorney for the Eastern District of Michigan. "This is not an indication that there has been any wrongdoing."

The investigation will be handled by the Justice Department's Antitrust Division, Guy said.

Orders Engines

HARVEY, ILL. (UPI) — Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co. has announced receipt of a contract for 1,643 diesel engines for use by the Defense Department in powering 60 kilowatt generators. The contract was awarded by the Fermont Division of Dynamics Corp. of America.

Longer To Pay

JENKINTOWN, PA. (UPI) — Standard Pressed Steel Co. said it has amended a loan agreement with several banks to provide for extension of payment until April 5 of a $5 million loan installment due Jan. 2. The amendment also provides that the banks must approve payment of any dividend on the company's capital stock.

1971. You've changed. We've changed.

Change. That's what it's all about this year. And that's what we mean by putting you first.

These are uneasy times.

There are major concerns. About pollution. About safety. About the economy. About your hard-earned dollar. We know.

For the past 10 years Chevrolet research people have questioned thousands of people on every subject from rising taxes to the size of the glovebox in their cars.

We've found that price and maintenance costs, trade-in value and quality have become tremendously important.

Your car has to work. It has to last. And each new model must have more built-in value.

At Chevrolet, we understand.

You want meaningful change. You want improvements that are not just skin-deep, but deep-seated.

And one of those, among the many that you'll find in the 1971 Chevrolets, is new emission controls to help bring back clean air. In every new model, we've made further substantial reductions in both the discharge of hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide.

All 1971 Chevrolet engines run efficiently on the new no-lead or low-lead gasolines, too, which not only decreases air pollution but increases the life of your spark plugs, exhaust system and other engine components.

Caprice. The biggest, most luxurious Chevrolet ever. A complete change.

Bigness in itself is nothing. But if it allows you to lengthen the distance between the front and rear wheels (which we did), then you've got something.

You've got a smoother ride.

The idea in the 1971 Caprice was to give you the looks and comfort of a six- or seven-thousand-dollar car, without asking you to pay anywhere near that much for it. And above all, to build in as much dependability and security as possible.

So we changed the body structure for 1971, too. We made it stronger. And we made it quieter by putting a double layer of steel in the roof.

Caprice, as you can see below, is a lot of luxury at a Chevrolet price.

Vega. The littlest Chevy ever. It wasn't changed from anything.

Before building Vega, we read everything we could get our hands on about little cars. We talked to owners. We studied little cars up one side and down the other and, literally, tore them apart. We found out what made them tick, or why they didn't tick.

What ticked were gas economy and dependability. What didn't were underpowered engines, cramped quarters and getting blown around in the wind.

In our little Vega, everything ticks. It's not just another little car. You didn't want that. It's one little car that does everything well.
